CHICAGO PLANS HINGE IN PART ON POPULATION AGE

Contrast Home and Factory Suburbs.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Residents of Chicago's industrial suburbs have a lower average age than inhabitants of the residential suburbs. Man's average span of life is growing longer, and in planning for Chicagoland expansion when recovery gets brisk it all has a bearing on such problems as schools, parks and playgrounds, zoning, and the type of habitation—houses or apartments.

The trend is shown in a study of age groups just completed by the Chicago Regional Planning association. Industrial suburbs in the Calumet-Gary region of Illinois and Indiana show a high percentage of people under 20 years of age.

For example, in Calumet City persons below 20 years compose 43.5 per cent of the population; in Whiting, 42; Melrose Park, 43.8; Chicago Heights, 41.2; Hammond, 39.9; East Chicago, 39.6; Harvey, 39.4; Gary, 37.5 per cent. The average for the United States is 38.8 per cent.

Lower in Residential Suburbs.

In high type residential suburbs the percentage of people under 20 is lower. For example, this group below 20 composes in Winnetka 34.3 per cent of the population; in Wilmette, 34.2; La Grange, 33.9; Highland Park, 33.2; Evanston, 29.4, and Oak Park, 27.9 per cent.

The ageing of America's population has been going on for a century and more, but in recent decades it has taken on greater speed. Persons in the older groups have increased faster than those in younger groups.

To show the changing age composition: In 1820 children under 5 years in the United States were 18.5 per cent of the population. In 1900 they were 12.1 per cent, and in 1930, 9.3 per cent.

Median Age Goes Up.

As late as 1850 those under 5 years were 5½ times as numerous as those 65 years and over. But in 1930 they were only about 1.7 times as numerous. In 1820 the median age of the population was 16.7 years. By 1930 it had risen to 26.4 years. In 1930 in the United States there were 128,840 fewer children under 5 than in 1920.

To return to the survey. The regional planning experts find that the youngest group, under 5 years, forms a percentage in Oak Park of only 6.1 per cent; in Winnetka, 6.4; Wilmette, 6.8. Industrial suburbs run higher. For instance: East Chicago, 10.2 per cent; Harvey, 10.3; Melrose Park, 11.

It follows the diminishing birth rate in the white collar classes. In Winnetka, Oak Park, and La Grange those under 5 years are the smallest of any 5 year group up to 50 years due to the moving in of childless couples.

Where Age Group Is Similar.

The age group from 20 to 45 years, the regional planning association reports, forms about the same percentage of population in communities of different type.

But the sex ratio does vary decidedly. In the ages 20 to 45 the high type residential cities have more women than men. Industrial suburbs have more men than women.

Coming to the age group of 45 to 75 years, this forms a much smaller percentage of the population in industrial communities than in residential, as might be expected. In eight industrial suburbs the survey shows the average of this group is 15.5 per cent of the total population, and in six residential suburbs 24.1 per cent.

Another Variation Appears.

When the age group over 75 years is reached a variation appears. In the United States 1.6 per cent of the population is 75 years and over. In six residential suburbs of Chicago the average is 1.5, about the same as the national figure. But in eight industrial suburbs the average is less than six-tenths of 1 per cent.

One of the conclusions of the survey is that young people in normal times leave the rural areas at 20 or under for the industrial suburbs, and by 45 the drift is either to the residential areas or back to the rural regions. The shifting has an effect in apartment demand as against home owning and methods of housing, schools and playgrounds, all important factors in regional planning.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—In a scene of wild disorder the house late today voted 202 to 191 for the Patman scheme to pay the bonus to veterans. The Patman inflation forces rode roughshod over conservatives in both major parties.

A final vote on passage of the Patman bill will come tomorrow. The measure would provide for immediate issuance of 2 billion 15 million dollars worth of greenbacks to pay the adjusted service certificates of veterans.

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], curly-headed author of the plan, said he was supremely confident tonight that he would gain the votes tomorrow. Today's tally was taken on the Patman bill as an amendment to the Vinson bonus measure, reported out favorably by the ways and means committee.

Veto Is Indicated.

The Patman bill has passed the house twice before, only to be defeated in the senate. President Roosevelt has indicated that he would veto the measure should it reach his desk.

The action today was a defeat for the American Legion leaders, who had supported the Vinson bill providing that the funds for the bonus would be taken from the treasury.

On the roll call 120 Democrats and 71 Republicans registered themselves against the Patman plan. On the affirmative side the inflationists rolled in the votes of 171 Democrats, 21 Republicans, 7 Progressives, and 3 Farmer-Laborites.

The Patmanites found late in the afternoon that they had the strength and then proceeded to shout down all debate and amendments in order to bring the record vote. Several Democrats charged that this was a violation of an agreement not to have a roll call until tomorrow.

House Is Speech Weary.

Another factor that entered into the action was the weariness of house members following three days of speechmaking on the bonus question.

Representative Fred M. Vinson [Dem., Ky.], author of the Vinson bonus bill, was the last man to take the floor when the general debate period was at an end.

"The Patman bill has been passed twice and it still isn't law," Vinson shouted. "I have here a wire from a veteran saying he is 64 years old now and if he doesn't get his bonus until 1945 his address will be St. Peter's roof garden."

Then the clerk began to read the Vinson bill. After the first paragraph was concluded Patman was on his feet with a motion that his plan be substituted as an amendment.

"Would Require Bonds."

"Vinson's bill would make it necessary to issue more tax exempt interest bearing bonds," declared Patman. "The farmers, laborers, and small business men are for my bill because it would put more money into circulation."

The Patman bill proposes to permit veterans to surrender their adjusted compensation certificates immediately to the veterans' administrator and receive cash for the full face value less any amount that has been borrowed and interest on any sum borrowed prior to Oct 1, 1931. The cash the veteran is to get would be United States notes, currency, which the bill declared "lawful money." No metalic

U. S. Indicts 7 on Charges of PWA Grafting

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Two former public works administration officials, four reputed millionaires, and a banker contractor were indicted today by the special federal grand jury investigating graft in the PWA.

The seven were charged with conspiring to defraud the government in connection with the construction of a five million dollar PWA irrigation canal in Willacy county, Texas. The indictments contain a total of 28 counts against the men.

The return of the indictments in the District court constituted the first major exposé of PWA graft. The special grand jury, the first called here since the Tea Pot Dome scandal, voted the indictments after six weeks of inquiry into Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes' PWA.

Names of Those Indicted.

Those indicted are:

Charles R. Oldberg, former engineer examiner in charge of PWA irrigation projects, who was ousted by Ickes as the special grand jury launched its investigation early in February.

Perry A. Welty, former engineer examiner with the PWA Texas state office.

William A. Harding of Raymondville, Tex., said to be one of the wealthiest men in southern Texas and a member of the board of directors of the Willacy County Water Control and Improvement district.

Leonard G. Hammond, vice president of the Hammond Lumber company of San Francisco.

Harry W. Cole, president of the California Redwood association and vice president of the Hammond & Little Red River Redwood company.

Frank P. McElwrath, contractor and banker of Corsicana, Tex.

James P. Barry of San Francisco, engineer for Hammond's company.

Said to Be Millionaires.

Cole, Harding, Barry and Hammond are said to be millionaires.

The seven defendants are charged with having conspired to change the plans for the Willacy county irrigation canal to divide a profit of $400,000 among themselves. The government alleged the seven attempted to substitute a pressure system, employing redwood pipe, when approved plans called for a canal.

The Willacy county district originally applied for a loan for the construction of a canal. Oldberg approved the plans and Ickes allotted $4,853,000 to the project.

The government presented evidence to show that the plans were returned to Welty with orders that he make minor changes. Instead of making these changes, prosecutors said, Welty sought to have the plans rejected entirely in favor of the pressure plan.

Welty Takes New Job.

Shortly after recommending the substitute of the pressure system, Welty took a position with the Willacy county district which had been offered him by Harding, the indictments charged.

After leaving the government service Welty is alleged to have entered into a conspiracy with Barry, Cole, McElwrath, Hammond, and Harding to promote his recommendation. Welty and Barry, representing the Hammond Lumber company, wrote new specifications for the project.

When the specifications were completed they were sent to Washington, where Oldberg was alleged to have approved them. The indictment charges he was promised a $10,000 a year job with the irrigation project for this act. His pay with the government was $6,000 a year.

Kidnap Gang Delays Slaying of American

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, March 21.—(AP)—Although the deadline fixed for payment of ransom on Mark Fowler, kidnaped American mining engineer, expired yesterday, Mexican and American authorities were reported to have contacted the kidnapers and obtained an extension.

Fear for his life, therefore, was allayed for the present. Fowler was captured in the state of Zacatecas on March 15. A Mexican named Jasmine, taken with him, was released to obtain the $2,785 ransom demanded.

No Report on Vremsak.

Nothing further had been heard concerning Louis Vremsak, California gold prospector, who was reported kidnaped in the same state three days before Fowler's disappearance.

George Shaw, United States consul at San Luis Potosi, arrived here today to take charge of efforts to obtain the release of Fowler, whose friends in northern Mexico were understood to be ready to supply ransom money.

Mrs. Vremsak and Mary L. McKinney, who were seized with Vremsak at Juchipila, Zacatecas, 250 miles northwest of Mexico City, on March 12, were released and returned to Los Angeles to secure money for his ransom. They were on their way here today with $2,800. Vremsak was captured while hunting for 40 large bars of gold said to have been buried more than a century ago when Mexico rebelled against Spanish rule.

Planned Execution Wednesday.

José L. Navarro, attorney, was quoted in Los Angeles as saying he had received word that the kidnapers planned to shoot Vremsak and Fowler to death at 8 o'clock last night unless the ransom money was paid.

Fowler, a prominent mining engineer well known throughout northern Mexico, was believed to have been mistakenly identified by the bandits as one of the treasure hunters. A Mexican interpreter, Elias Romo, also is being held, it is reported.

The Mexican government withheld troops, fearing that a venture into the bandit territory would mean death for the two Americans.

Kill 5 Mexican Rebels.

MEXICO CITY, March 21.—(AP)—Five rebels were killed and one federal soldier wounded in a battle in the state of Zacatecas, the war department announced today.

Gunman Slain in Battle After Crash in Chase

Anthony Ignatius, 33 years old, an ex-convict, was shot and killed last evening in a battle in Elmwood Park with Policeman Alvin Eckardt of River Grove. Eckardt, who is 44 years old and has been a policeman only eight months, was wounded by one of Ignatius' bullets, but is expected to recover.

The battle followed a long automobile chase that ended in a crash of the stolen car in which Ignatius and an unidentified companion, who escaped, were riding.

Policeman Eckardt was patroling Grand avenue in River Grove when the hoodlum's car passed him, being driven eastward at high speed. He took up pursuit, but was unable to catch the speeding car and crossed the municipal line into Elmwood Park.

Chase Ends in Two Crashes.

He was close behind when, at the Milwaukee railroad crossing of Grand avenue, and almost in front of the Elmwood Park police station, the fugitives' car struck another driven by Clarence Mueller, 7808 Sunset drive, Elmwood Park. Both automobiles were damaged, but Ignatius continued to drive eastward until, a block farther on, he crashed into a fence.

The ex-convict and his companion leaped out. The second man fled south into the prairies, but Ignatius drew a pistol of the German Mauser type and opened fire on Eckardt. The policeman also jumped out of his car and fired back.

Both men fired accurately. Eckardt was struck in the right shoulder near the neck and Eckardt's bullets struck Ignatius in the chest and the liver.

Police Take Up Search.

The shooting was heard by the Elmwood Park police, who went to the scene and took up a search for the man who fled.

Police records show that in 1919 Ignatius was convicted and sent to Pontiac reformatory as a burglar. He was paroled in 1920. On May 20, 1922, he was sent to the Joliet penitentiary after being convicted of robbery with a gun. He was paroled from that institution on June 27, 1933.

The automobile he used was taken from Samuel Sainatzky, 2737 North Sawyer avenue, in a robbery March 8.

GOLD LEAF WORTH $500 STOLEN FROM CHURCH STEEPLE

Concord, Mass., March 21.—(AP)—Gold leaf valued at more than $500 which adorned the towering steeple and the four clock faces on the historic First Parish [Unitarian] church here has been stolen, it was learned today. The leaf was placed on the steeple about five years ago.

A few months ago a man called upon a church committee with the tale that he had been sent by his firm to inspect the leaf and report its condition. He examined the steeple and advised the committee that the job was standing up well, but that a fussy patching job was needed at one spot. He was told to do the job and the next week spent several days puttering about the steeple. He went off without reporting to the committee, and when they asked the company for a bill the theft was revealed.

Investigation showed that gold paint, already turning a grayish green, had been substituted for the gold leaf.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

PARIS, March 21.—After a day particularly fertile in war scares, THE TRIBUNE learned on high authority that Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, gave formal assurance to Andre François-Ponset, French ambassador, that Germany does not intend to abolish the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland.

This is the first ray of hope since war clouds started massing over Europe Saturday with the announcement by Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany's plan to rearm. It is complemented by a feeling of relief in French diplomatic circles over the wording of the German reply to France's protest. The German note, while naturally it seeks to refute all French arguments that the Nazis are violating the Versailles treaty, is worded in a conciliatory way, the foreign office finds. The opinion of French diplomats is that it leaves the way open to further negotiations, which may or may not be successful.

Many Symptoms of Conflict.

Against this important but solitary factor of optimism the day produced an impressive negative balance of symptoms of impending conflict.

The chamber of deputies approved an appropriation of $1,320,000 as premium money to encourage enlistments.

To conjure up the nightmare of a surprise attack, which haunts the French general staf, the war ministry ordered army commanders of all eastern frontier sectors to man the fortifications without delay.

Along many parts of the chain of steel which stretches from Switzerland to the Belgian border the garrisons already have been installed in the specially constructed barracks linked by underground tunnels with gun turrets. In sectors where no barracks exist, however, French poilus, in accordance with the new order, are sleeping tonight under wartime conditions in subterranean bombproofs with big guns overhead.

This precautionary measure inspired by the European crisis was revealed by Gen. Louis Philip Thomas Maurin, war minister, in a secret hearing of the army committee of the chamber of deputies today.

Tells German War Plans.

Gen. Maurin likewise described Germany's feverish military preparations as if the reich were preparing for war at an early date. In his analysis Maurin particularly called attention to the reich's impressive effort to stock up on raw materials. The reich is buying lots of American cotton and also bought up the Portuguese sardine catch up to July 1, he said. He declared Germany is increasing the size of synthetic gasoline factories.

Gen. Maurin estimated that 70 per cent of the reich's industry now is supplying war materials. He revealed that Germany now has 1,500 planes. Discussing France's alliances, he said this country has only one real military alliance—with Belgium.

Maurin said he is informed that if Germany returns to the league of nations she will claim an army as big as the largest European army, which is Russia's at the moment, with around 960,000 men.

The war minister asserted that France intends henceforth to keep its conscript army level at 260,000 men. Five thousand officers who have been retired or were scheduled for retiremen because of economy will be put back on the active list. He put the new German army strength at 36 divisions—720,000 men.

Other Developments.

Other developments or reactions of the last 24 hours in this European sector are as follows:

FIRST—There was early satisfaction over the announcement that British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon and possibly Prime Minister MacDonald would meet with Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, and Premier Mussolini of Italy at Como after the visit of the British ministers to Berlin.

SECOND—There was later dismay mingled with indignation at the news that Simon had deeclared in the house of commons he would like to see Germany participate in the Como conference. This is considered here another deadly blow to the united allied front and one which is likely to intensify the firmness of France's attitude towards Germany.

THIRD—Publication of the French note of protest to Germany and of the French telegram to the league of nations, which is a historic document, being the first time in the history of the Geneva institution that one great European power has invoked article XI. on threats to peace against another.

French Morale at Crisis.

The news of Simon's statement about inviting Germany to the Como gathering was even a greater shock to the French than Britain's decision to send a separate protest (on German rearmament) to Berlin. The effect is particularly harmful here because, in the opinion of officials, there is the most pressing need to improve the country's morale.

The feverish activity at the Quai d'Orsay to line up a united front against Germany, even if only on paper, is largely dictated by this internal consideration. Consequently any suggestion that Britain is taking a less hard boiled stand against Germany's treaty violation than the other allies plays havoc with the nerves of the man in the street here.

Franco-Russian Pact Seen.

It is highly probable the consequence of this new disappointment will be the hastening of a formal alliance between France and Russia which will automatically involve all Europe in war if trouble occurs between the reich and the soviet. This is precisely what the British are trying to avoid at all costs, but it appears to be the direction in which things are moving.

The chain of action and reaction since last week now stands as follows: France increases the term of military service because she fears Germany is going to violate the Versailles treaty. Germany violates the treaty because France increases the term of service. France appeals to Britain to join in a strong protest to Berlin. Britain makes a feeble protest without consulting France. France, without consulting Britain, then carries the dispute to Geneva, thus enraging the British, who retaliate by inviting Reichsfuehrer Hitler to participate in a conference for the suppression of Hitler.

Titulescu Seeks to Solidify Little Entente in Arms Crisis

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 21.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu, anxious to solidify little entente opinion concerning German rearmament, leaves tomorrow to visit Jugo-Slava and Czechoslovakia. At Belgrade he will see Premier Bogolyub Yevtich of the Slav kingdom, and at Bresberg, Czechoslovakia, he will confer with Eduard Benes, foreign minister of that country. Afterward Titulescu plans to visit Paris, London, and Brussels.

HITLER REJECTS ALLIES' PROTEST AGAINST ARMING

Germany Rebuffs Both France and Italy.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 21.—The Nazi government of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today announced its "refusal to consider" the formal protests of France and Italy against Germany's decision to rearm in violation of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty.

That much is certain, but the method in which the Berlin foreign office disposed of the protests of the two world war allies seems to be a matter of conflicting opinion.

The German version is that the Nazis snapped their fingers in derisive manner at France and Italy. The French and the Italians, on the other hand, insist they were "cordially" received and that the foreign office's attitude was conciliatory.

Envoys Submit Notes.

The protest notes were submitted by Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet of France and Ambassador Vitorrio Cerutti of Italy.

Newspapers indicated that the two envoys, who appeared at the Wilhelmstrasse within two hours of each other, had virtually been ejected from the foreign office.

In glaring red headlines one newspaper said, "French protests rejected."

The official German communique as published in the government controled press was brief. It said:

"The protests do not take the actual situation into consideration, and therefore must be rejected."

"There are only two things the French and Italians can do: Either start their armies on the march or decide to negotiate with us as equal powers," a qualified Nazi spokesman said after the government statement had been issued.

No Rejection, Allies Claim.

Germany's refusal to consider the protests was not a rejection, the French and Italian ambassadors said in an interview. They praised the friendliness of Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath's greeting and quoted him as saying in a philosophical tone:

"Your governments and mine will never agree on who is responsible for the failure to reach an agreement on armaments."

The ambassadors declared they did not regard this statement as a rejection of their government's protests.

Spokesmen at the two embassies furthermore suggested that the reception of the two envoys was not so brusque and discourteous as the Nazi newspapers appeared to indicate. The vigor of the denunciation of the protests as expressed in the press was designed for patriotic home consumption, the spokesmen hinted, adding that the ambassadors' treatment was actually cordial.

Nevertheless, it was reliably learned that the two ambassadors did meet with a rebuff, even though it was a "cordial" one. Von Neurath is understood to have told the representatives of France and Italy that their protests were based on arguments which begged the question and that therefore, "the German government must decline to entertain the protest."

Cerrutti, according to the official communique, was informed that "the basis of the Italian note cannot be acknowledge as the disarmament promises of the other Versailles signatories have not been fulfilled."

Both the French and Italian ambassadors reported at length to their respective governments.

Goebbels Voices Defiance.

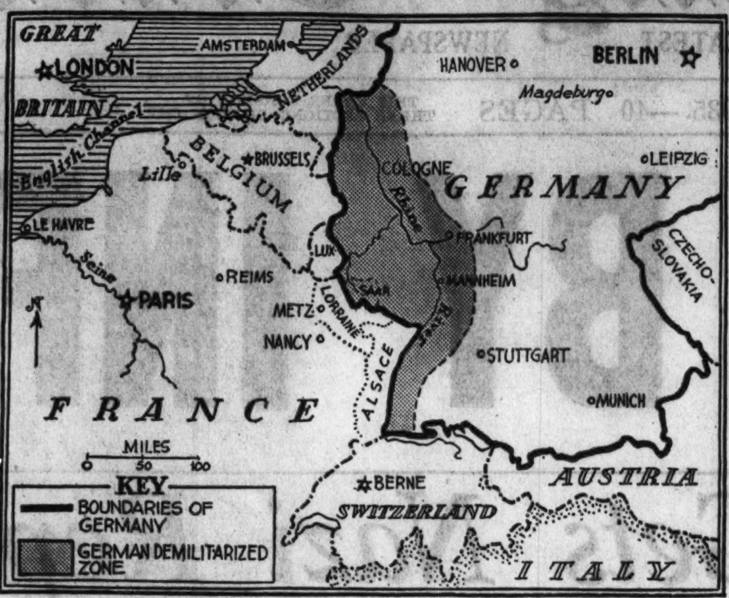
Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, contributed to the general German defiance of its world war enemies by asserting that the French are just about two years too late. He described the Franco-Italian notes as "paper protests."

"Nobody knows better what paper protests amount to than we," he said. "For 15 years we have been used to protesting about the failure of other nations to live up to their disarmament obligations and about violations of German minority rights. Two years ago we should probably have listened to France's protest. Today it is too late."

Goebbels voiced the thought uppermost in most Germans as a result of Hitler's conscript army proclamation of last Saturday when he said:

"Hitherto, when we discussed any large international question, we found our co-negotiators placing their revolvers on the table and attempting to coerce us. Now we, too, can place our revolvers on the table. If then both sides agree to take revolvers off the table, we can begin to talk business. If not, of course, there can be no negotiations."

FRANCE MANS FORTS ON NAZI BORDER



France revealed yesterday that it had ordered the eastern frontier fortifications manned under wartime conditions without delay. It was learned from Paris also that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had assured France he will not rearm in the demilitarized Rhineland (shaded portion of map).

TEXTS OF PROTEST NOTES

FOLLOWING is the text of France's note to Germany protesting Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's decision to rearm:

Receiving the ambassador of France March 16, the chancellor of the reich made known to him the text of a law promulgated the same day by which the German government reëstablished in Germany obligatory military service and increased the German army to thirty-six divisions.

A week earlier the German authorities had given an official status to German military aviation.

These decisions are definitly contrary to the contractual engagements written in the treaties which Germany signed.

Charges Nazis Violated Word.

They are equally contrary to the declaration of Dec. 19, 1932, whereby the reich government voluntarily recognized that a general statute of armaments carrying equality of right for Germany with all nations should not be made without the establishment of a security régime for all.

After several proposals tending to give effect to this principle, the French government, in accord with the British government, showed its confidence in the government of the reich by proposing to it a procedure of negotiation free and fully compatible with respect to the treaty rights for the establishment of contractual means of a new arms statute for Germany in a general settlement of the problem of security and of armament and the government of the reich had appeared to justify the confidence in accepting the principle of such procedure.

The publication of the German law of March 16, intervening brusquely before the date fixed for the first exchange of views between the government of the reich and one of two signatory governments of the London communique of Feb. 3, constitutes new manifestations of the methods the government of the reich intends to oppose to the offers of conciliation which had been made to it.

A double conclusion thus must be drawn by the government of the [French] republic on one side and in a general fashion the government of the reich deliberately distrusts the assential principle of the right of a people that no power can denounce the engagement of a treaty or modify its stipulations except with the agreement of the contracting parties and by means of a friendly agreement; on the other side, and in particular after having itself shown its desires to see cleared up between the interested powers the immediate effect of the negotiation to which it was invited, the government of the reich has deliberately taken the most effective measures to compromise the fate of this negotiation in taking for itself in advance and unilaterally through a fait accompli of one of its essential objects.

The government of the republic has the duty to make the most formal protestation against these measures with regard to which it now makes all reservations.

Blames Nazi for Unrest.

Conscious of the efforts of conciliation which it has not ceased to follow, in all loyalty and with the most constant care for German dignity, to associate the reich fully in the organization of European security, it can only place on the German government responsibility for the state of uneasiness thus created in the world and the consequences which can result from it—that is to say, those obligations which from this fact may be imposed on the governments of the different interested countries.

Determined, so far as it is concerned, to seek all means of international coöperation designed to dissipate this uneasiness and to safeguard the peace of Europe, the French government desires to reaffirm with its respective treaties its firm resolution not to accept in any negotiation that consideration be given unilateral decisions taken in violation of international engagements.

[Signed] PIERRE LAVAL, Foreign Minister.

TEXT OF ITALY'S NOTE

THE text of Italy's note protesting Germany's repudiation of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty follows:

The chancellor of the reich on March 16 communicated to the Italian ambassador a law promulgated the same day on the basis of which the German government has reëstablished in Germany obligatory military service and increased effectives of the Germany army to 36 divisions.

One week previously German authorities had communicated officially the constitution of German military aviation.

The Italian government has taken note of the notes directed to the German government on this subject by the British government and the French government.

The Italian government cannot but point out that in the accord reached in Rome Jan. 7, 1935, between the Italian and the French governments, and the final communique of the conversations in London between the British and French governments published on Feb. 3, there were reaffirmed the essential principles of that military statute established by Part V. of the treaty of Versailles which could not be modified by unilateral act.

The Italian government which, in so far as it is concerned, has always maintained the opportunity of revision of Part V. of the treaty of Versailles through negotiations among the interested governments, in conditions of perfect parity, had adhered to the principle that the question of German armament should have been the object of a general negotiation similar to what was established in the declaration of Dec. 11, 1932, in which Germany participated.

This procedure had been accepted in principle by the German government itself in its communication of Feb. 14 of this year.

Collaboration Urged.

The Italian government therefore feels the duty of advancing the most ample reservation concerning the decision of the government of the reich and its probable development.

The Italian government has always sought to link the reich fully to the system of collaboration among the principal interested powers which would recognize fully to the reich the right and responsibilities of a sovereign state.

Especially for these precedents the decision of the reich acquires particular seriousness, especially for the state of uncertainty which it excites in all countries.

The Italian government has given many proofs, also recently, of its desire for international collaboration and proposes to continue in those directions which respond to the need of the people and to postulate neighborliness in Europe, but feels the duty of declaring that in the eventual future negotiations she cannot simply accept as situations of facts those determined by unilateral decision which annul the undertakings of international character.

BRITISH TO INVITE NAZIS TO PARLEY WITH PARIS, ROME

Simon Tells Plans for His Visit to Berlin.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21.—With Berlin busy refuting the protests from France and Italy against Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's conscription decree and Premier Mussolini taking the precaution of holding under colors 200,000 conscripts due to return to civil life April 1, the house of commons tonight listened to important declarations by Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon on the scope and purpose of the Anglo-German conversations set for next week.

Speaking in a debate on foreign affairs initiated by George Lansbury, Laborite leader, Simon announced that if the Berlin conference is successful, Germany will be invited to participate with France, Italy, and Britain in a conference on European security at Como, in northern Italy.

The foreign secretary promised to put pertinent questions to Hitler about Germany's future policy in connection with European peace.

Defends Position.

"The Berlin visit calls for complete frankness," the foreign secretary asserted.

He said he is fully conscious of the difficulties, but added that merely to cancel the engagement would lead nowhere. Its success, he indicated, depends on whether Germany persists in the determination to be the strongest military power in Europe by raising a vast conscript army.

The parley will cover the full range of matters detailed in the recent Anglo-French communique, including security, armaments, the return of Germany to the league of nations, and the proposed air pact.

Seeks to Enlist Nazi Aid.

Britain aims to help bring Germany back into the councils and comity of Europe, the foreign secretary declared, "on terms just to her and fair and secure for all so that she may contribute with a full sense of equal status and dignity to the task which every good European who wants peace has got to share. That is the task of sustaining and strengthening general peace and good relations by agreement and coöperation between neighbors."

The alternative, Simon gravely indicated, would be the return to the prewar system of alliances and an inevitable race in armaments.

The veteran Lansbury expressed the desire "of the common people" throughout the world for peace. He blamed "bankruptcy of statesmanship" for the present situation, declaring that the events heralding the rearming of Germany last Saturday "sent through this country a feeling of shock and almost despair" comparable only to August, 1914.

"Mentality of War."

"The mentality prevalent in this country and abroad is the mentality of war," he asserted. "Can anybody deny that every government is saying exactly the same thing—that they are not arming for war, but for peace, and only because other nations are arming?"

Arrangements for Simon's Berlin trip were completed today. He will fly with a staf of eight in a private airplane from London Sunday morning. His assistant, Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, will fly to Paris Saturday and after a talk with the Italian undersecretary of foreign affairs, Fulvio Suvich, and the French foreign minister, Pierre Laval, will fly to Amsterdam Sunday morning to join Simon.

After the Berlin conference, expected to be finished Tuesday, Capt. Eden will leave for Moscow, taking a staf of four. He will arrive Thursday morning.

HERE IS WHAT THE LEAGUE CAN DO TO GERMANY

Several Paths Open; France in Plea.

GENEVA, March 21.—(AP)—Just what action can the league of nations take if Germany is found guilty of violating military provisions of the Versailles treaty?

The league itself could not initiate punitive action, and no nation as yet has even suggested invoking the article of the league covenant known as the punitive clause or article XVI.

This provides for economic and financial blockades, and in the last instance authorizes the league council to invite governments to participate in military measures against a nation which is declared to be the aggressor and which has resorted to war in violation of the covenant.

No Demand for Punishment.

Germany already has virtually pleaded guilty to the French charge that she has repudiated the Versailles treaty, but as yet France has demanded no punishment.

France today appealed to the league under what is known as the conciliation article—just as Jugo-Slavia did against Hungary when King Alexander was assassinated.

That means France hopes to settle the whole business by consultation and conciliation. Concretely, it probably means France will be satisfied if Germany will agree first to limit her armed forces to a point judged reasonable; second, by demonstrating her bent for peace by signing mutual assistance and security pacts, and third, by returning to the league.

To progress toward the punishment stage, France would first have to invoke article XV., which provides for investigation of the dispute and for recommendations by the league council. This was the course adopted by China against Japan. Japan restricted the recommendations and bolted from the league.

France Makes Moderate Move.

After that comes invocation of article XVI., if anybody cares to go that far.

International circles see in the French move—the most moderate she could make—a desire to fix in the open forum at Geneva Germany's responsibility as a treaty violator. France in her appeal to the league was understood to believe this German violation is a menace to peace and she has requested the league council to help remove the menace in any way it thinks feasible.

France in her request that the league council investigate the German situation declared the reich government has "deliberately repudiated" the treaties it has signed. Referring to Adolf Hitler's decision to rearm, the French note said:

"Because of the gravity of the question raised by German initiative, I have the honor to ask to call an extraordinary session of the council for the examination of the present request."

The league, after receiving France's appeal, discussed the possibility Germany, Bulgaria, and Hungary might join forces in an effort to revise postwar boundaries.

ROOSEVELT AND HULL SCAN ALMOST HOURLY REPORTS ON EUROPE

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—While carefully observing reports on the European situation received almost hourly at the state department, President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull refrained today from any action in the international situation caused by Germany's announced intention to reëstablish her military position.

There were reports that a note had been prepared for possible dispatch to Germany, but no such note had been either prepared or approved by the two officials responsible for the conduct of foreign affairs of the United States. It was considered possible, however, that suggestions for such a note had been made by junior officials.

The administration, by its silence, continued to stand on the "good neighbor" policy affirmed by President Roosevelt at his press conference yesterday and this is expected to remain the only policy of this government until events in Europe, as manifested by results of forthcoming conferences, shape themselves into a picture that is more clear than at present.

Chicago Bound I. C. Train Delayed by Broken Wheel

The Sioux City-Chicago passenger train of the Illinois Central railroad, due in Chicago at 9:55 p. m. yesterday, was several hours late on account of a breakdown a half mile east of Plato Center, in Kane county. Trainmen said that a wheel on a mail car had broken, but that the mail clerk signaled for a stop, which was accomplished before any of the cars had been derailed. Passengers were unaware of the reason for the long delay.

ITALY READY FOR WAR, MUSSOLINI WARNS GERMANY

Deputies Cheer Speech by Military Chief.

ROME, March 21.—(AP)—Italy's military machine is functioning at top speed and she is ready for war, Federico Baistrocchi, Premier Mussolini's undersecretary of war, told the chamber of deputies today.

Informed and authoritative quarters regarded his statement as an answer to Germany's military conscription decree.

The military class of 1913, now in service, will continue under arms, although the class of 1914 begins service April 1, Baistrocchi declared, and the reduction in the conscription term previously decided upon will not be undertaken until "the moment is opportune."

"Long Live the Army!"

Shouts of "Viva Mussolini" and "Viva l'ecercito" [long live the army] greeted the undersecretary's statement, the deputies leaping to their feet in enthusiasm.

It was learned on the best authority that the paragraph in Baistrocchi's address referring to Italy's military preparedness was inserted after the German military development. It was not in the original text.

In any case, Baistrocchi was fully aware that the Italian envoy in Berlin had just delivered an energetic protest against the reich's rearmament, saying the Rome government "cannot accept a situation determined by a unilateral decision annulling obligations of international character."

Ready for "War of Movement."

The undersecretary said Italy is ready for "a war of movement," referring to fast moving conflict as opposed to static trench warfare.

For such fighting Italy would employ her famed "celerity corps," which she has been busy developing. Italian military experts believed that much of the trench warfare such as marked the world war would be eliminated with the aid of tanks, fast moving troops mounted on motorcycles and bicycles, and armored cars.

Baistrocchi, saying Italy's war preparations had been sped up by the crisis in Africa, declared the whole military class of 1911 had received cards ordering it to be ready for service.

LOUIS M. HOWE GROWS WEAKER; IS NEARING DEATH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21—Special — Col. Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, was near death in the White House tonight. Attending physicians reported that the 64 year old presidential aid "is gradually losing strength" in his fight against a bronchial disorder complicated by heart weakness.

Members of his family were holding a vigil in Howe's bedroom. President and Mrs. Roosevelt frequently joined them from time to time during the day. With Howe are his wife and children, Hartley Howe of Boston, and Mrs. Mary Baker of Champaign, Ill.

White House attachés said physicians had expressed surprise that Howe had lasted through the night and into the day. Physicians abandoned hope for recovery yesterday.

Strachey Faces Deportation Quiz and Lectures Once Again

Evelyn John St. Leo Strachey, British lecturer and author against whom deportation proceedings have been started, revealed himself last night in a lecture at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium as a communist in belief but not in action. To an audience of about 1,200 who paid 50 cents each to hear him he described his own harmlessness, as he had done during the afternoon at a hearing in the offices of Fred J. Schlotfeldt, local immigration director. This hearing concerned his arrest as an undesirable alien.

Strachey endeavored to make it plain in his lecture that he was introduced by Arthur Garfield Hays, attorney for the American Civil Liberties union in New York, who with Edgar Bernhard of Chicago represented the author at the hearing earlier in the day.

Hopes for End of Capitalism.

Strachey told his audience that he is hopeful the capitalistic system will be replaced peacefully by a socialistic system. When that end is accomplished, he said, violence will be banished from human affairs.

The audience found little to condemn and little to acclaim in the British author's assertions, but it was remarked that the expected Red utterances were at best only pale-pinkish. In fact, in the afternoon hearing Strachey had almost "whitewashed" himself, according to officials.

His own words in that session were that he stood convicted of seeking to change conditions. He said he desires to see the capitalist world changed and improved "and for this offense, and none other I am being tried."

The hearing in the postoffice building was open to the press.

Immigration Inspector William G. Zucker, assisted by Mr. Schlotfeldt and W. W. Brown of Commissioner Daniel W. MacCormack's office in Washington, was in charge of the inquiry. Mr. Zucker read a number of documents, including not only Strachey's books and magazine articles but also the communist manifesto of Karl Marx and Frederick Engels, requesting that the author make comment on each excerpt.

Throughout the hearing Attorney Hays and Inspector Zucker were at odds.

"Free Speech" Called Issue.

"The issue is one of free speech," Attorney Hays declared. "Apparently the government has the idea that we who believe in democratic institutions are so feeble that if we hear other points of view we will rush to arms to overthrow the government."

Mr. Hays protested particularly against the inspector's reading of communist documents and requesting Strachey to comment on them.

Apparently the government's efforts were directed toward showing that Strachey was not only a communist, but one of such deep dye that he would approve or even urge the overthrow of government by violence.

When Inspector Zucker read from the communist manifesto and asked for comment, Mr. Hays protested that there was no connection between it and Strachey. The inspector quoted from a published work of Strachey in which he stated he was a "communist drummer peddling Marxism instead of pink pills."

POLICEMAN KILLS SELF WHEN TOLD HE MUST RESIGN

A few hours after his resignation had been requested, Herman Wagner, 36 years old, for two years a policeman in Bensenville, shot and killed himself with his service revolver in the garage of the village hall there yesterday. He is survived by his widow and three children.

George Runge, president of the village board, said he had asked Wagner to resign on recommendation of the police committee which met Wednesday night to investigate charges of inefficiency against the policeman. Wagner failed to appear before the committee, Runge said.

Runge denied that the complaints of inefficiency arose from the disclosure that Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, was held prisoner by his kidnapers in Bensenville until $200,000 ransom was paid. "It was simply decided," Runge said, "that Wagner was not the man for his job."

MARTIN J. INSULL LEAVES TO BEGIN 'EXILE' IN CANADA

Martin J. Insull, former president of the Middle West Utilities company, left Chicago at 11:59 last night, accompanied by his lawyer, Eli Aaron, to return to Canada, whence he was brought last year to stand trial for embezzlement.

A small group, including his more famous brother, Samuel Insull, and Samuel Insull Jr., were at the 12th Street station, where Martin boarded a Michigan Central train for Detroit. With him was Immigration Officer C. C. Davis, who will turn him over to Canadian authorities.

U. S. WILL CLOSE IN CHASE'S TRIAL AS KILLER TODAY

Experts Testify in Nelson Gun Battle Case.

The government will close its case today against John Paul Chase, former California bootlegger, who is being tried in the court of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan on a charge of murdering Samuel P. Cowley, an inspector for the department of justice. Cowley and Herman Hollis, another government agent, were slain and "Baby Face" Nelson, hunted outlaw, was mortally wounded in a gun battle at Barrington last Nov. 27.

The announcement that the prosecution would rest today was made by United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green and James C. Leaton, special assistant attorney general, at the close of yesterday's hearing, which was devoted mostly to the introduction of expert testimony by government witnesses.

Show Outlaws Fired from Car.

The substance of this testimony was that Nelson and Chase had fired from inside their automobile at the agents. The defense in cross-examination attempted to show that the bullet holes in the glass of the outlaws' automobile might have come from shots fired by the agents, but the experts could not be shaken on their stories to the contrary.

Prosecutor Green said last night that Melvin Purvis, chief of the department of justice agents in the Chicago area, probably would take the stand for the government today. There have been reports that Cowley, as he was dying in the Sherman hospital at Elgin, made a statement to Purvis in which he named his slayer.

Prosecutor Green has never said definitly that such a statement exists. If it does exist and the government wished to introduce it, Purvis is believed to be the only person who could testify in that regard. The defense has indicated that it would object to such evidence and would contend Cowley was unconscious and could not have made a coherent statement.

Defense May Call Widow.

Green did announce definitly that he would not call Mrs. Helen Gillis, the widow of Nelson, whose real name was Lester Gillis. Mrs. Gillis was hiding in nearby weeds during the fatal encounter at Barrington and later fled with her husband and Chase in the agents' automobile. She is now in a federal prison at Milan, Mich. Mrs. Gillis may be called as a defense witness, W. W. O'Brien, chief of counsel for Chase, said yesterday.

Reports that Chase, who is a prisoner in the county jail, had boasted to cellmates that he would escape during the course of the trial, led to his guard being increased from two to six men when he was taken to court yesterday. The corridors were cleared at his arrival and his handcuffs were not removed until he reached the door. Another squad of guards was distributed through the courtroom. Federal authorities said, however, that it was not likely that Chase would have advertised any intention to escape. Last night Chase was removed to another jail cell, which he will occupy alone and where he will be under closer observation.

Tells of Finding Outlaw Arsenal.

Maxwell Chaffetz, a government agent, testified yesterday to finding weapons and ammunition, literally a small arsenal, in the Ford sedan the outlaws abandoned after the Barrington battle. He listed the following:

Colt automatic, 2 loaded machine gun clips, a machine gun drum containing 100 rounds of fire, and loose ammunition for two rifles and two pistols of small caliber. Three bulletproof vests also were found and six sets of automobile license plates for different states.

D. J. Parsons and S. F. Pickering, technicians in the department of justice laboratories at Washington, D. C., said that they had examined the holes in the glass taken from the abandoned Ford. It was their opinion, they stated, that the holes were caused by bullets fired from within the car.

Cross-examining Pickering, O'Brien demanded to know why the bullets could not have come from outside as a result of the agents' fire.

Explains Testimony on Holes.

"The holes are clean cut on the inside face of the glass," Pickering explained, "while the outside face is jagged. It is the same as if you drove a nail into a board. The hole on the side on which you were hammering would be small and clean while the other side of the wood would be cracked somewhat."

Another witness was A. L. Roberts, chief of police of Mount Shasta, Cal., who told of arresting Chase in that city last Dec. 27. He said Chase gave the name of Elmer Rockwood and offered no resistance.

On cross-examination O'Brien inquired: "You didn't have to use shotguns, machine guns and rifles when you arrested Chase, did you?"

"No," the police chief answered.

Kidnap Hunt in Mexico

Arrow on map points to Juchipila in state of Zacatecas, Mexico, where an American gold prospector was kidnaped recently. An American engineer was also captured by bandits in the same state. Authorities are reported to have contacted the kidnapers yesterday and arranged for a delay in ransom payments. (Story on page 1.)

HEAR VOICES OF FAMOUS DEAD IN PLANE OVER N. Y.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Newark, N. J., Airport, March 21.—Weird and muffled voices that identified themselves as belonging to the spirits of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Wilbur Wright and Roald Amundsen were heard tonight in the darkened interior of a cabin plane soaring high over New York City.

For the first known time in history, a spiritualistic seance was held in the cabin of an airliner. As the plane roared over Floyd Bennett field a voice which said it was that of the late Floyd Bennett wafted eerily from the two trumpets in the cabin.

There wasn't a ray of light in the long narrow cabin, an eager spiritualist in each of the fourteen seats.

Miss Maina Tafe of New York City was the "direct voice medium" through which, the spiritualists there said, the strange voices were heard.

Miss Tafe, a plump woman, sat near the center of the cabin. She was quite cheerful and laughed and joked as the plane rumbled away from the airport. Beside her in the aisle was a cut glass bowl containing a small quantity of water. She placed the trumpets in the aisle, also.

JURY VOTES $500 FOR PORTER MAID IN FALSE ARREST

Verdict 'Satisfies' Servant; Defendant to Fight.

Mrs. Marie Sauer, for 21 years a maid in the home of Mrs. Frances Lee Porter, 4043 Lake Park avenue, was awarded $500 by a jury yesterday in her $50,000 damage suit against her employer's son, Washington Porter II., wealthy real estate man and art collecter. She charged false imprisonment.

The jurors deliberated one and one-half hours before returning their finding to Judge Roman E. Posanski of Calumet City, sitting in the Circuit court here. Mrs. Sauer charged that Porter caused her detention by police on Jan. 24, 1932, during the search for a $10,000 Russian silver tea set that was missing from a steel locker in the Porter home. The set was later found in a burlap bag in a storeroom in the home.

Smiles at Verdict.

Mrs. Sauer smiled upon hearing the verdict and announced she was "satisfied." Porter left the courtroom hurriedly in search of his attorney, John A. Irrmann. Later Attorney Irrmann said he will make a motion for a new trial, and will appeal if it is denied.

Taking of testimony began Wednesday, when Mrs. Sauer and three policemen of the Hyde Park district testified that Porter had caused the maid's detention.

Mrs. Sauer charged that Porter had "planted" on the library table of her former home at 4456 Greenwood avenue a silver tea strainer of the Porters that Porter "discovered" during the investigation.

Porter termed the charge "ridiculous" and denied that he had caused the police to question Mrs. Sauer. He testified that he had accused the policemen and Mrs. Sauer of "framing" him by charging that he had placed the strainer where he found it.

Porter Accuses Police.

Under cross-examination by Attorney David Larson for the plaintif, Porter declared yesterday that he had "never singled out Mrs. Sauer for investigation." In fact, he said, he had always been friendly to her before the incident.

Attorney Irrmann, in his closing argument termed the case a "shakedown" against his client. He charged that the policemen in the case—Lieut. Arthur F. Patten, Sergt. Fred Tapscott, and Sergt. James McLaughlin—had more than a professional interest in the case.

In pleading for Porter's acquittal, his attorney stressed the fact that Mrs. Sauer is getting $40 a week "from the Porter family" as Mrs. Porter's servant. The Porters, mother and son, live under the same roof, but are not on good terms and maintain separate establishments, Mrs. Sauer said.

JURORS DEBATE DON CHAMPAGNE THEFT EVIDENCE

Gay Spender on Stand in Own Defense.

The jury which will determine the fate of John Donald Walker, known in night life as Don Champagne, retired to deliberate its verdict shortly after 5 o'clock last evening in Judge John C. Lewe's Criminal court. At 10:45 p. m., when the jurors told the judge that hope was dim for an early agreement, he ordered them locked up for the night. Walker is charged with larceny by bailee of $21,000 worth of stock certificates from Mrs. Grace M. Forschner, wealthy widow of Thomas J. Forschner, contractor.

Although the indictment charges theft of only $21,000 worth of stock, it is alleged that Walker, within two months after his parole from Joliet penitentiary in April, 1933, started a campaign to get money from the widow and had obtained nearly $250,000 by the time of his arrest in the fall of last year.

Habitual Criminal Count.

Walker is on trial under an indictment carrying an habitual criminal count, having been previously convicted of forgery. If convicted under this count, he can receive a flat sentence of 10 years in the penitentiary. If the jury disregards the habitual criminal count and finds him guilty only on the larceny charge, his sentence would be 1 to 10 years.

Walker testified in his own behalf yesterday. He was the only defense witness. He contended the money was advanced to him as a loan by Mrs. Forschner, who desired to help rehabilitate him. The defendant contended the money was paid to J. H. Jonasson, 639 North Laramie avenue, his sponsor for his parole, and also his employer in the Wetzel Iron works, 3345 West Grand avenue.

Ex-Employer Denies Story.

Jonasson, called as a state rebuttal witness, denied that he received an item of $5,250, but was not asked about the other amounts involved.

The defense attorneys received a shock during an argument over whether Walker could tell the jury just what he did with the money. Assistant State's Attorneys Charles S. Dougherty and Alexander Napoli said they had no objection, but that in return they would show that at least $60,000 of the money was lost by Jonasson and Walker in a racing stable at Lincoln Fields.

LONDON, March 21.—(AP)—The Daily Express said tonight Princess Juliana of Holland and Prince Carl Johan of Sweden will announce their engagement on April 30, the princess' birthday. The paper's Stockholm correspondent quoted court circles for the information.

The engagement of Holland's Princess Juliana, now 25, to 18 year old Prince Carl has been previously reported and denied as recently as last August. Princess Juliana is the only child of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands.

ROSEMARY AMES GETS A BIG KISS ON ARRIVAL HERE

But Clicking Cameras Embarrass Banker.

Mrs. Rosemary Ames Ketting Meyer, actress daughter of the late Knowlton L. Ames, arrived in Chicago early yesterday on a TWA plane from Los Angeles. A phalanx of photographers greeted her as she alighted, and after a momentary grimace of impatience she posed for a score of pictures.

These ceremonies concluded Mrs. Meyer dashed down the loading ramp into the arms of Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, who had remained in the background while the cameras were snapping. Oblivious of the smiling onlookers, the couple embraced. The kiss was so prolonged that several of the photographers went back into action and recorded the salutation.

O, Most Embarrassing!

"O, please, don't use those photographs," begged Mrs. Meyer.

"O, I say, please don't," interjected Stilwell. "It would be most embarrassing. Mrs. Meyer hasn't got her divorce yet."

Asked if she had returned to Chicago for the hearing of her divorce suit against Bertie A. Meyer, London theatrical producer, whom she charges with desertion, Mrs. Meyer replied: "I can only tell you that I will be very busy here."

She and Mr. Stilwell then went to the banker's automobile, in which her baggage had been stowed, and they drove away together.

Mrs. Meyer filed her divorce suit in the Superior court here on Jan. 8. It is expected that the hearing will be held some time this week.

Wed First in London.

Mrs. Meyer's first husband was Ogden Ketting, formerly in charge of the Insull interests in England, whom she married in Chicago on Feb. 20, 1928, and divorced in London in 1931. She maried Meyer on Jan. 6, 1932.

Mr. Stilwell was divorced by Mrs. Ella Neville Stilwell in Reno, Nev., last Sept. 19. Mrs. Stilwell charged mental cruelty. There were no children and Mrs. Stilwell received an undisclosed property settlement in lieu of alimony.

Mr. Stilwell is in charge of the special loan department of the Continental bank and has been appointed to represent the bank's interests as a special creditor in the reorganization of the Middle West Utilities company.

DOUBLE MURDER MOTIVE TOLD IN ERICKSEN TRIAL

Prosecutor Outlines Case Against Widow.

CRIMINAL COURT.
EDWARD J. HEINZE, embezzlement, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge William V. Brothers.
HAROLD MANNES, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mrs. Anna Ericksen arranged the murder of her husband, George, a tavern keeper, last Dec. 22, not only to get his insurance, but because she was "very much infatuated with George Collard and expected to marry him." This was charged in the prosecution's opening statement yesterday in Mrs. Ericksen's murder trial before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

Collard, a former radio operator at the Chicago airport, committed suicide by taking poison in Milwaukee last March 8 and police were told that he took his life because he feared he would be called as a material witness in the case.

Charges Widow Promised $500.

A jury largely composed of married men, which was completed shortly after noon, heard Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle review the evidence the state expects to produce showing that Mrs. Ericksen, 39 years old, promised $500 to James Senese, 19 years old, to shoot her husband to death at his home, 6221 South Keating avenue. Senese and Elmer Krueger, 21 years old, 3434 West 114th street, indicted with her for the murder, have won separate trials and will testify for the state in this case.

Throughout the prosecution's statement Mrs. Erickson, a short, ample bosomed, tightly corseted woman in black, swung a foot encased in a high heeled pump and revealed a sheer stockinged and shapely leg to the knee. The jury, however, appeared absorbed in the prosecutor's words, delivered in matter of fact tones without any dramatic inflection. Occasionally the widow smiled faintly with down-curving, thin lips, and chewed her gum with apt relish. Her attorneys, Emmet Byrne and Harold Levy, waived an opening statement.

Tells of Moving Home.

The courtroom crowd occupied all available seats and standing room. Many of them had brought their lunches. They leaned forward as Assistant State's Attorney Boyle told how Mrs. Ericksen had moved from one residence to another shortly before the murder "to improve the setting."

"The state expects to show," the prosecutor said, "that on Sept. 14 she first asked Senese: 'How would you like to make $500? How? By killing my husband.'

"She added, 'You're out of work, and with $500 you could buy a car and have a good time.' On Nov. 22 she took a .32 caliber Colt automatic from a drawer in their tavern at 6001 South Cicero avenue and gave it to him, loaded.

"Early in December she told Senese to kill her husband at their home. They then lived at 6319 Knox avenue. We expect to show that he objected, as the Chicago Lawn police squad car passed there at half hour intervals. On Dec. 12, with the help of Senese, she moved to 6221 South Keating avenue, which was in the middle of the block and had a closed back porch.

"Good Place" for Killing.

"She told Senese: 'It's a good place to kill my husband. It's dark and quiet.'"

Senese will testify, the state indicated, that she told him: "If you don't kill him soon, we won't get our money as the policies will be overdue." The policies, due to their double indemnity clauses, were scheduled to pay $6,194 on Ericksen's death.

Over the defense attorneys' objection, Mr. Boyle declared that the state would show Mrs. Ericksen saw George Collard several times a week and removed the cash from the cash register at the tavern before her dates with him. Collard was 30 years old.

Geraldine Ericksen, 20 years old, one of six children of the defendant and the dead man, was the state's first witness. She was followed by Herman Krueger, 6310 Fairfield avenue, a milk wagon driver, who described finding the body lying in the snow of an areaway adjoining the Ericksen home at 6 a. m.

Dr. Alfred D. Biggs, coroner's physician, said he found five bullet wounds in Ericksen's body. Two bullets lodged in the spine and under the left arm were removed, he said. These were taken to the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory for analysis, said Policeman James McGurk of the Chicago Lawn station.

Return 1 Arm Paperhanger to Prison; Parole Breaker

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 21.—(AP)—Newspaper stories publicizing George Cobb as one of those rare individuals—a one armed paperhanger—led today to Cobb's return to the state prison as a parole violator. Charles Page of the state bureau of criminal investigation recognized Cobb's pictures showing how he accomplished his paperhanging.

TOMAN FIRES 2 HIGHWAY POLICE FOR 'SHAKEDOWN'

Cites Speed Limit Racket; Warns Others.

BY HAL FOUST.

Sherif Toman announced yesterday that he had discharged two county highway policemen and was ready to dismiss any others on his force who use the state's forty-five mile an hour speed limit as a means of extortion. The two policemen working in the northern end of Cook county "shook down" a motorist for $2, according to a report received by the sherif.

"I know that the county police last year were stopping cars going faster than forty-five miles an hour on the open highway," Mr. Toman said, "but they aren't going to do that during my administration. The excuse of the cops was that they weren't being paid by the county and they had to make a living. They're getting paid by the county now."

Favors High Speed, If Safe.

"I drive sixty miles an hour on the open highway where there's no cross trafic. It's a reasonable speed where all conditions are favorable for fast travel. The only reason a policeman can have for halting a car under those conditions is in hope of getting a couple of bucks.

"My orders are that the only motorists to be molested are drunk drivers or obviously reckless ones."

A bill to remove the forty-five mile an hour speed limit is pending before the general assembly. Even without amendment, courts have interpreted the statute to mean that going faster than forty-five is a violation only when to do so endangers life and limb.

The Skokie Road Problem.

The Skokie road, forty foot pavement north of Niles Center, has been a favored territory for psuedo enforcement of the law, Sherif Toman said. On the highway there are several dangerous intersections where serious accidents have occurred and these accidents have been cited by the police to throw a cloak of sanctity about their operations while talking on the roadside with motorists they stopped. Much of the four lane highway, however, accommodates speeds in excess of forty-five miles an hour without risk.

FIRST OF 14 BIG AIRLINERS READY FOR DUTCH FIRM

Santa Monica, Cal., March 21.—(AP)—The first of fourteen transport airplanes with which the Royal Dutch Airlines will expand their European and Java services was ready tonight for shipment to Amsterdam.

The last of the planes will be ready for delivery by May 15, said H. Veenendaal, representative of the Royal Dutch concern, which ordered the planes from the Douglas Aircraft corporation.

Nine of the ships will be put into passenger, mail, and express service along the 10,000 mile route between Amsterdam and Java, Dutch East Indies. The other five are destined for new fast schedules between European capitals.

FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

Bohumil Krabec, 49 years old, was found dead yesterday in his home at 2235 South 61st court, Cicero. A bottle which apparently had contained poison was beside him.

FAILS IN SECOND SUICIDE ATTEMPT IN FOUR MONTHS

Mrs. Elizabeth Valley, 24 years old, 6103 Evans avenue, unemployed hat check girl and mother of two children, who swallowed poison four months ago, tried a second time yesterday and failed.

With Miss Helen Lauritzen, 6315 Harper avenue, she was riding in a taxicab along the outer drive. Mrs. Valley asked the driver to stop at 55th street, leaped out, and ran for the water's edge. She became wedged between two rocks. The driver, Harry Butler, 6227 Evans avenue, took her to the Illinois Central hospital, from where she was taken to the Hyde Park police station, booked for disorderly conduct, and released in $25 bond for a hearing in the Women's court today.

THRONGS MOURN WOMEN VICTIMS OF TRAFIC CRASH

Stricken Family Pathetic Group at Funeral.

Long before the sun was bright in the sky yesterday the Hollerbach funeral chapel at 2021 North Halsted street was thronged with mourning Chicagoans of German descent. The pews and the ailes were full, as was the vestibule, and over all hung the hush of tragedy.

Inside there were only six lights, and they were small. Four were flickering vigil lights. Two were blue Neon crosses, banked in ferns. Beneath each cross lay an open casket. Within each casket lay a woman dressed in gray.

Placed midway between the two velvet caskets stood a floral decoration, a traditional German "family piece." It was an immense grandfather's clock, pendulum and all, fashioned from flowers. Its hands were motionless at 10:25.

The Hour of Sudden Death.

This was the hour of death for Mrs. Rose Foch, 50 years old, 2166 Warner avenue, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Eva Foch, 30 years old, of the same address.

Up until that hour, last Sunday had been a pleasant day for the large Foch family. Valentine Foch, 29 years old, had taken his wife, his mother, his aunt, and his two cousins for a drive. It ended—a collision—at 135th street and Crawford avenue with a truck driven by Walter Meier of Frankfort. Only the two drivers escaped without serious injury.

And so mourners at the double funeral of Valentine Foch's wife and mother paused yesterday, as they genuflected before the caskets, to look with pity at the group of figures huddled together on the front row of chapel seats.

First was the family group pathetic grandmother, 83 years old, who neither spoke nor wept. Then the brother and the sister of Mrs. Rose Foch. Then three tiny girls, dressed alike in coat and beret of bright red—the 7, 9, and 10 year old daughters of Mrs. Eva Foch. Next, a gash on his white cheek, sat Valentine Foch. With one hand he held his 4 year old son on his lap. The other was upon the shoulder of his father, George, who in harsh, broken sobs mourned his wife, Rose.

Three Still in Hospital.

Absent were only three members of the family—Mrs. Lena Mandik, Valentine's aunt; Mrs. Anna Hie and Frank Heckler, his cousins. These, the three other occupants of his car last Sunday, are near death in St. Francis hospital at Blue Island.

A brief ceremony was held at the chapel by the Hungarian-American society and Concordia lodge, No. 22, of the Order of Hermann Sisters, preceding a requiem high mass at St. Benedict's church. Interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED

Two small boys were killed in automobile accidents in Chicago yesterday, and a young man injured in an automobile collision Sunday morning died, bringing the 1935 motor death toll in Cook county to a total of 201. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 162 persons had been killed in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits and 3,090 had been injured.

Douglas Yarnell, 3 years old, wandered away from his front yard at 2918 West 38th street and into the street half a block away. There he was struck by a truck driven by Joseph Gottfried, 21 years old, 3239 West 38th street. The little boy died at St. Anthony's hospital. Gottfried was held for the inquest.

Boy, 14, Killed by Car.

Stanley Kubacki, 14 years old, of 5008 South Aberdeen street, was fatally injured when struck by a car at 51st street and Racine avenue. The driver of the machine, Charles Moody, 27 years old, 5347 South Wood street, was not held when witnesses told police the boy had run into the path of his car.

John Cwik, 22 years old, of 1619 West Erie street, died in the Swedish Covenant hospital of injuries incurred in an accident at Cicero and Peterson avenues Sunday. One man was killed in the same accident and two other persons are still in a critical condition from injuries.

Ira Edward Thomas, 68 years old, of Winthrop Harbor, died yesterday in the Lake county general hospital of injuries suffered on March 14 when he was struck by an automobile in Sheridan road, Winthrop Harbor. The driver of the car did not stop after the accident, and the authorities in Lake county have been unable to find him.

Mary K. Williams, 3 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, 479 Jackson street, Aurora, was killed yesterday afternoon when she ran into an automobile truck while at play near her home. The truck was driven by E. A. Dannewitz, 305 South 4th street, Aurora.

THEATER OPENED FOR THE USE OF HARD OF HEARING

The first theater in the world, to have every seat equipped for the hard of hearing, opened last night with ceremonies attended by leaders of the movement to further education and social life for the deafened handicapped.

On invitation, the hard of hearing and their friends filled the 350 seats of the Sonotone theater, 64 East Van Buren street, heard congratulations on the new project through individual hearing mechanisms attached to each seat, and not only saw but heard a talking picture.

Mayor Kelly and Dr. Hugo Leiber, inventor of the bone conduction oscillator equipment spoke briefly. Prior to the opening fifty physicians and leaders of the Chicago League for the Hard of Hearing attended a banquet in the Congress hotel where Dr. Austin A. Hayden, president of the league, presided.

The theater is one of 120 which are to be so equipped in the United States. Chicago's theater will serve approximately 300,000 deafened persons in the Chicago area. The theater is not restricted for the deafened, however. It is like any other theater, but is so equipped that individual hearing instruments, requested from the usher, may be plugged into the seat.

CLAIMS MACHINE TELLS WEATHER SIX WEEKS HENCE

A machine for long range weather prediction, which, the inventor asserts, is actuated by cosmic rays, will be one of the exhibits at the six day show of the National Home Workshop guild which will open Monday at 211 East North Water street.

Alexander Maxwell, 35 years old, 1758 Juneway terrace, builder of the device, calls it the "magnetometer." For nine months it has been in use in the Northwestern university laboratory, and its predictions have been accurate, he said.

The instrument is constructed of wood, with a tiny needle beam of cobalt steel suspended over a wooden bar with a hair mark. The pendulum action of the bar is observed through a microscope. A swing of one degree indicates calm weather six weeks hence and a swing of five degrees portends violent storms at the end of a like period, the inventor maintains. The needle's movements, he says, are caused by cosmic rays which are believed to emanate from the earth and to be reflected from the sun by the moon. The rays exert a magnetic influence on the needle, according to the theory.

DIES IN 6 STORY FALL.

Jacob Popsuewich, 52 years old, 2023 Crystal street, leaped or fell to his death yesterday from a sixth floor window of the Northwestern Yeast company, 1750 North Ashland avenue, where he had been employed for 19 years.

Woman Given Five Years, Maximum, for Mail Theft

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday sentenced Mrs. Georgia Brady, 46 years old, to five years in the federal women's prison at Alderson, W. Va., after she had been found guilty in a bench trial of stealing matter from the mails. Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher told the court that Mrs. Brady had a long police record. Her sentence was the maximum possible under the statute.

ATTACK ON NRA WINS 33 VOTES IN SENATE TEST

Borah Amendment Takes Leaders by Surprise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] threw a bombshell into the senate administration forces today when he suddenly offered an amendment to the 5 billion dollar work relief bill to repeal the NRA as it relates to the anti-trust laws. The amendment was defeated, 43 to 33, but not until the administration leaders virtually promised that Senator Borah could have his way when legislation to extend the NRA is proposed.

The Borah proposal electrified the senate chamber, bringing forth a storm of opposition to the so-called recovery act from both sides, and presaged a long and bitter fight when the administration's new measure comes up for action. It appeared for a time that the amendment would certainly be adopted, but the administration leaders pleaded with the senators to wait until the finance committee finished its investigation before taking any action "that might wreck the whole NRA structure."

18 Democrats Support It.

Even then 18 Democrats joined with 1 Farmer-Laborite and 14 Republicans in supporting the amendment. It was opposed by 35 Democrats, 7 Republicans, and 1 radical, La Follette of Wisconsin.

In offering his amendment, which would have repealed the section of the NIRA suspending the anti-trust laws and restored industry to the jurisdiction of the federal trade commission and the department of justice, Senator Borah referred to a recent report of the federal trade commission relating to price fixing.

"We are going to purchase materials out of this 5 billion dollars in a market that is rigged against the United States," he said. "The federal trade commission, in its report on the basing point system in the steel industry, said it was a price fixing so absolute that the purchasing agencies of the government were reduced to a state of helplessness.

Wagner Opposes Action.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], who helped write and sponsored the NIRA, was on his feet instantly objecting to any hurried action on the ground that the amendment might upset "the whole NRA structure."

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], chairman of the appropriations committee, and consequently in charge of the bill, replied to Wagner in a speech releasing all his longfelt bitterness against the NRA and expressing his approval of the Borah amendment. This was what upset the administration leaders. Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] immediately left the chamber, presumably to communicate with the White House, and Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the finance committee, undertook a missionary campaign among susceptible senators.

Glass Joins in Atack.

"Adverting to the remarks of the senator from New York," said Senator Glass, "that he is not in charge of the pending bill, the implication being that whoever is in charge of it should object to this amendment, I may say that I did not suggest it.

"I did not know it was to be offered, but if any one thinks I am going to rise on the floor of the senate and repudiate my consistent record against the suspension of the anti-trust laws merely because I am in charge of this measure, he is crazy.

"I voted against that feature of the NRA act; in fact, I voted against the whole wretched bill from beginning to end. I do not think any species of tyranny was ever practiced in any civilized nation comparable to the tyranny which has been practiced upon the people of this country under the NRA."

"Free Market" Urged.

Senator Glass said the amendment, on its face, might seem irrelevant but the argument of Senator Borah had made it evident that the United States should at least have a "free market" in which to spend 2 billion dollars on materials.

After Senator Glass had concluded there was a scramble among Democrats to get the floor and pour out their vituperation against the NRA. Senators King [Dem., Utah], Clark [Dem., Mo.], Black [Dem., Ala.], Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], and Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.], were among those who assailed the act.

"Chiselers and grafters and racketeers are not afraid of the NRA or the codes," said Senator Ashurst, "but they know they'll go to jail under the anti-trust laws. Here is the largest appropriation in history—5 billion dollars, of which 2 billion will go for materials. It is our duty as trustee of the taxpayers' money to see where that money goes."

Senator Harrison finally obtained the floor and urged the senate to proceed in an orderly way. He said the finance committee was very anxious to conduct "a thorough investigation into the very question raised by Senator Borah," and that, anyway, the NRA expired on June 16.

Makes Plea to Borah.

Harrison concluded his remarks with a personal plea to Senator Borah, which indicated the uneasiness felt by the administration forces.

"I hope the senator will not press his amendment," Harrison said. "The committee wants to hear his views on this question. We are trying to do just what he wants. I certainly hope he won't press this amendment now."

Later Senator Barkley [Dem., Ky.], who also undertakes to speak on behalf of the administration, gave his assurance that if this amendment were defeated the finance committee would report out no extension measure without the approval of Senator Borah.

Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas was not in the chamber when the Borah amendment was presented, having gone to New York for a speech.

Hours Proviso Accepted.

Before the vote was taken, Senator Borah accepted a proviso submitted by Senator Black, which would have excepted, specifically, the maximum hour, minimum wage and child labor provisions of NRA from the repealer. Senator Harrison, with a gleam of hope in his eyes, asked whether Senator Borah would except "codes of fair competition."

Senator Borah smiled and said he was afraid that would be impossible.

The only other important action taken by the senate on the 5 billion dollar bill was the rejection, by a vote of 78 to 8, of an amendment submitted by Senator La Follette which would have increased the appropriation to 10 billion dollars.

Tomorrow the proposals of Senators Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] and Thomas [Dem., Okla.], to pay for the program with greenbacks and silver inflation, respectively, will be considered, and a final vote may be taken Saturday.

FORMER MOVIE STUNT MAN FOUND HANGED; MURDER SUSPECTED

San Diego, Cal., March 21.—(AP)—The body of Carl George Frey, 31, athlete and former movie stunt man, was found hanging from a pepper tree in a vacant lot here today and police began an investigation on the theory he had been slain.

The arms were tied together over the head by the rope which held the body to the tree. A long chain and a lether belt were wound around the neck. The chain extended down around one ankle, causing the body to be suspended in a sitting position.

A gold medal was pinned to the nose. It bore the inscription "Kreis Turnfest, July 5, 6, 7, 1929. Detroit, Mich. Gut Heil."

In Frey's pockets investigators found a packet of yellowish powder, which was sent to a chemist for analysis, and a $1,000 insurance policy made out to his mother in Germany.

Officers said Frey had been employed as a film stunt man in Hollywood for eight months and on occasion had doubled for Tom Mix.

He was employed here as a chauffeur by Mrs. Annie H. Buel, San Diego society woman.

Officers said Frey had been injured in a soccer game last Sunday and had been missing for two days, but apparently had been in good spirits when last seen.

"It does not look like suicide to me," said Detective Sergeant F. E. Lightner.

FATHER OF GIRLS BEATEN IN BED VOWS VENGEANCE

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 21.—(AP)—William Kuhl, father of Edith, 13, and Helen Kuhl, 17, who were brutally beaten last night as they lay in bed, late today expressed belief that he knew the identity of the attacker.

Meanwhile Edith and Helen remained in serious condition in a hospital here. Little hope is held for Edith, while Helen is given a fair chance to live. Both suffered fractured skulls. They were attacked and beaten with a blunt instrument in their room at the boarding house where they lived while attending school.

They were alone in the house with Clarence Price, 45, distant relative. Price is held for questioning. Kuhl today expressed his belief that Price knew nothing of the attack.

Entrance apparently was made through the window.

HARRIMAN URGES ROOSEVELT CODE POWER BE ENDED

Philadelphia, Pa., March 21.—[Special.]—Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, today declared that President Roosevelt's power to impose codes on industries should be removed and that both the President and industry should have "equal rights of veto and thereby reach agreement as to code provisions."

Speaking at the Penn Athletic club, Mr. Harriman declared the dissolution of holding companies within five years will materially handicap the revival of the capital goods industries.

Regarding NRA in general he declared his faith in its basic principles "is unshaken, and I believe it would be a calamity to let the act expire on the 16th of next June. But I also believe a new act should have very definite limitations."

Yes, nowadays the cigarette is the most popular form in which tobacco is used. A good cigarette certainly gives men and women a lot of pleasure.

TREND REVERSED AS MARCH RELIEF LOAD TAKES DROP

Burden to Be Less Than in February.

The month of March, instead of providing an expected all time high record for the number of families on relief in Illinois, is reversing the long upward climb of the relief load and will close below the February and January figures. This was indicated yesterday by new estimates completed by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

Original calculations for March placed the number of relief families at 325,000, passing the record load of 322,000 families on the rolls in March, 1933. The latest indications, however, are that the number will be only 315,000. Last month and in January there were about 317,700 families dependent upon public charity.

Estimate Further Cut in April.

The preliminary estimates further indicate that during April the relief burden will sink to 305,000 families. From this point onward, relief officials believe, the welcome downward trend will be continued by seasonal factors.

"In every previous year, except last year when the CWA was operating, March has been the high month of the year," said Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the relief commission.

"Our most conservative estimates, based on this history, led us to expect the unprecedented number of 325,000 on the rolls this month. Now we are virtually certain that the March figure will be lower than that of the last two months.

"April will produce a further reduction. However, we cannot afford to be too optimistic. It is doubtful whether spring and summer this year will show as marked a reduction as we experienced last year, because then there was a sharp upturn in industrial conditions which may not be repeated.

Gives Credit to Case Work.

"Good case work control—removing from the relief rolls those persons and families who had found private income—should get some credit for lessening the relief load. Another reason is the probable continued increase in industrial employment, which last month was substantially ahead of January figures."

When the relief commission meets today it will face a new factor in deciding what to do about bids submitted for relief coal in Cook county for the remainder of the season. A week ago the commission postponed action on the bids when it was found that specifications had been changed by the IERC staf without consulting the commission.

Members of the coal industry said yesterday that a walkout of miners is expected April 1, and declared that unless the bids are awarded within the next few days dealers will probably be unable to get coal to fill the orders of relief families.

DOCTOR'S OFFICE ROBBED.

Surgical instruments and drugs valued at $1,289 were taken Wednesday night by burglars who broke into the office of Dr. M. R. Jacobs at 4710 Lincoln avenue.

Families on Relief in Illinois

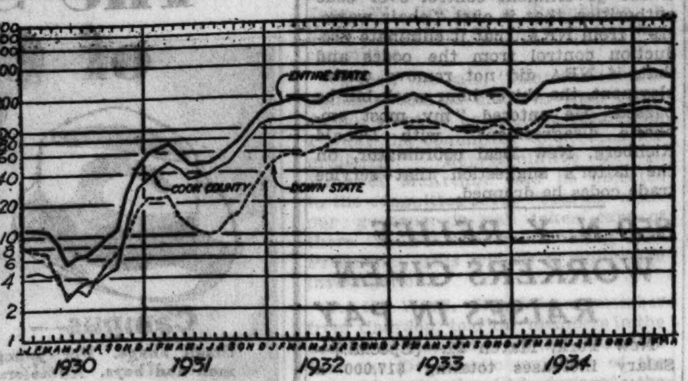

Diagram showing number of families receiving unemployment relief in the state from January, 1930, to April, 1935. March, 1935, which was expected to be peak of entire period, showed a reversal and the number declined. The all time high was reached in March, 1933. The figures at left indicate number of families in thousands. Letters at bottom in each section are abbreviations of months.

SELECTS FIVE TO TALK RELIEF AT WASHINGTON

Adamowski Heads the Illinois Group.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—Representative Adamowski of Chicago, Democratic floor leader, will head a committee of five house members on a junket to Washington within the next ten days. They will commune with Administrator Harry L. Hopkins on how relief administration might be reorganized in Illinois.

Speaker Devine today appointed Adamowski as chairman of the committee authorized by a resolution adopted yesterday. Other Democrats named were Rep. Thomas P. Sinnett, Rock Island, and Lawrence F. Arnold of Newton. The Republicans are Minority Leader Leroy M. Green of Rockford and Sol P. Roderick, Chicago.

Adamowski will decide when the delegation will travel down to the capital. It will probably be early next week.

The committee is charged by the house with determining whether the Federal Emergency Relief administration would permit the legislature to legalize a different setup of disbursing state and federal funds to the idle. Such disbursement is the present duty of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Republicans want the job returned to the jurisdiction of the county boards, but most of the Democrats have not indicated a choice. They have remained silent, but attentive, while the criticism of the relief commission grew hot heads during the last few weeks.

A resolution was adopted last week asking Hopkins if the county relief bills would be acceptable to the FERA. Hopkins has made no formal acknowledgment of that request for information. Press dispatches from Washington, however, quoted Aubrey Williams, Hopkins' assistant, as saying flatly that such measures would not receive Hopkins' approval. Hopkins said nothing at all, as far as the Illinois house has been informed.

Obviously nettled by the lack of such reply, the house yesterday first talked of asking Hopkins to Springfield to discuss the situation.

BADGES ISSUED TO CITIZENS NOT ON RELIEF ROLLS

Almost 1,000 small red, white, and blue buttons, bearing the notice, "Just a Taxpayer: Neither on Dole Nor Public Pay Roll," were distributed yesterday to Chicago business men by Warren Piper, founder of the Interfraternity club, after he made an address at a luncheon of the Cornell University Alumni society of Chicago in Mandel Brothers' restaurant.

"With from 25 to 35 million persons in the United States either on the public pay roll or the dole, it is time the citizens who are paying for all this have some decoration or distinguishing mark except tax receipts," Mr. Piper said.

Last night he announced that during the afternoon he had received seven requests from business men's clubs to repeat his address and distribute more of the emblems.

DECLARES RELIEF IN KENTUCKY IS HANDLED POORLY

Covington, Ky., March 21.—(AP)—Gov. Ruby Laffoon charged today that federal relief administration in Kentucky is "cluttered up with inefficiency, extravagance, and so much red tape that it can never be handled for the best interests of those who are dependent upon it."

His opinions, similar to those Gov. Martin L. Davey has voiced on Ohio relief, were expressed in a letter to City Solicitor Stephens L. Blakely of Covington, read to Covington's city commissioners today.

In Frankfort later Gov. Laffoon said his criticism was directed at "high overhead expenditures and salaries."

ALIEN PROBLEM OF RELIEF SOLVED BY BRITISH LAWS

Foreigners Hold Jobs or Leave Country.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21.—Fourteen years of rigorous exclusion of alien workers, it is learned today, have borne fruit in Great Britain, as jobless relief for aliens in no way constitutes a problem for the British government.

Aliens are permitted to enter Britain to work only if they are to hold jobs for which the supply of British workers is insufficient, or if they are needed as specialists. Before entering Britain aliens coming here to work must obtain a permit from the ministry of labor which closely scrutinizes applications and refuses to admit any aliens likely to become public charges. If there are enough British workers for any particular job, aliens cannot get permits. Admittance also is refused if aliens hold subversive ideas.

Permits Limited to Short Period.

All working permits are limited to a short period—six months or a year—and must be renewed. If at the time for renewal the alien is out of work, he is told he must leave the country. On the other hand, if the alien loses his job before his working permit runs out, he receives unemployment relief just as if he were a British subject.

There is so little danger of a large number of aliens becoming public charges, according to the ministry of labor, that no record is kept as to whether the men getting jobless relief are aliens or not.

Few Aliens on Relief.

Both the ministry of labor and the home office asserted, however, that the number of aliens on relief is certainly very small. The home office official added that the number of aliens working here also is small but that no record is kept.

Restrictions on aliens first were put into operation in 1920 and since have been frequently tightened.

ILLINOIS SUPPORTS 270,000

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, has declared in favor of more stringent regulations against admission of dependent aliens into this country.

It was estimated that 75,000 families of aliens are on the relief rolls in Illinois. This indicates a total of 270,000 persons. The figures are founded on the fact, revealed in the 1930 census, that there were then 361,000 aliens in Illinois, 294,000 of them in Cook county. While the ratio of relief clients to the total population of the state is one to six, Mr. Reynolds pointed out that the proportion among aliens is larger, because of their greater handicaps in the search for employment.

Mr. Reynolds declared that the logical place for regulation is at the gate of entry. Declaring it would not be just to deport dependent aliens who have failed to declare their intentions of becoming citizens, because "that would be like throwing a guest from your house when he becomes sick," he advocated imposing the requirement so that those who do not declare their intentions to become citizens will be deported at the end of a year.

HOUSE FAVORS INFLATION FOR BONUS PAYMENT

Plan Calls for Printing Press Money.

reserve is specified for the new currency.

In accordance with the plan of operation laid down by the rules committee other bills were in order as amendments and their sponsors now brought them forward with the inflation forces knocking them down as soon as they were read.

The shouts of "vote, vote, vote" drowned out a flight of oratory by Representative Finly H. Gray [Dem., Ind.] and he dropped back to his seat. Then Representative Charles V. Truax [Dem., Ohio] tried to make a speech against the Vinson bill as a "bankers" bonus bill.

"Louder, louder, louder," yelled the members who were calling for the vote.

"Some of you will be calling louder when you go down in the hot depths of hell," boomed Traux above the hubbub.

Defeat Nine Year Plan.

The first bill snowed under was that of Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.]. The bill provided for the issuance of bonds bearing 3 per cent interest and maturing in nine years to the veterans in lieu of their certificates

"This is a compromise," pleaded Cochran. "The President has been compromising for the last two years and it is reasonable to suppose that he will compromise on the bonus question."

Patman ridiculed the Cochran bill with the assertion that it would give the veterans only $154 apiece.

"That's about as accurate as other statements you have made," retorted Cochran.

A standing vote of 196 to 73 defeated the measure.

By this time the tumult had grown so great that several leaders on the majority side approached the rostrum to converse with Representative Clarence Cannon [Dem., Mo.] acting as chairman of the committee of the whole.

Withdrawal Brings Applause.

Representative Sam D. McReynolds [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the foreign affairs committee, emerged from the huddle with his bill, similar to the Cochran proposal, and asked that the reading of it be dispensed with. This brought applause from "vote shouters." His bill was then defeated by a viva voce vote.

Then a new proposal from Representative William M. Whittington [Dem., Miss.] brought acclamation from the Republican minority, which heretofore had been content to sit back and chuckle at the squabbles among the Democratic ranks.

Whittington proposed that the bonus be paid out of the 4 billion 800 million dollar "works relief" appropriation asked by the administration and pending before the senate.

"If our government is justified in borrowing billions more it is justified in using some of this money to pay the veterans," asserted Whittington.

Since the Whittington proposal was offered as an amendment to the Vinson bill a vote will not be taken on it until tomorrow. At the same time two motions to recommit the bonus legislation to the ways and means committee will be allowed and will be voted on.

Representative John B. Hollister [Rep., O.], ranking minority member of the banking and currency committee, urged an amendment that would strike out the inflation provisions of the Patman bill.

"There is not a member on this floor who knows what controled inflation is," warned Hollister. "Inflation is something that cannot be controled. This bill is unworkable and will not make sense."

Patman rose again to say that you could control expansion of the currency and there was a proviso in his bill that if too much money were in circulation it could be withdrawn by the secretary of the treasury.

Hollister's amendment then went down to defeat. Another amendment beaten by the eager Patmanites was a proposition that payment of the bonus would not take any veterans off government work projects. Defeat also was the fate or an amendment barring any one from obtaining the bonus who is an income tax payer.

Reiord Vote Demanded.

Adoption of the Patman bill as an amendment then followed. A standing tally brought 183 for the bill and 142 opposed. A teller voter, with members passing through the ailes, resulted in a vote of 180 to 157 for the Patman bill and the record vote then was demanded.

The sound money men in the house tonight were counting on parliamentary jockying tomorrow as the last chance to defeat the Patman plan. A motion will be made by the Democratic side to recommit the bill to the ways and means committee with instructions to adopt the Vinson bill instead of the Patman. A Republican motion to recommit will ask that the bill of Representative Walter G. Andrews [Rep., N. Y.], similar to the Cochrane bond measure, be adopted.

RICHBERG NAMED ACTING HEAD OF RECOVERY BOARD

Given New Post Besides 3 Already Held.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today started a reorganization of the NRA high command by appointing Donald R. Richberg, New Deal coördinator, acting chairman of the Recovery administration.

PHILIP MURRAY.

Two additional members, one from industry and one from labor, were appointed to the NRA governing board by President Roosevelt at the same time that Richberg, who already holds three key New Deal posts, was assigned to his new task. The additional members, raising the total on the board to nine, are William P. Witherow, Pittsburgh industrialist, and Philip Murray vice president of the United Mine Workers.

Whiteside to Resign.

In addition, Arthur D. Whiteside, one of the members of the present board, has asked to be allowed to resign, the President revealed. A successor for him from the ranks of industry will be picked in the near future, thus completing what the President termed "the reorganization of the board."

Richberg replaces S. Clay Williams, cigaret magnate, who retired today as chairman of the recovery board to return to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company. Richberg, President Roosevelt explained, will head the recovery administration only until new legislation continuing or replacing the NRA, which expires June 16, is passed by congress.

Richberg's appointment met an immediate barrage of criticism from members of the house of representatives labor committee who said that it showed a continued dominance of NRA by "big business." Richberg insisted "this is only temporary for me."

President Roosevelt's reorganization of the NRA board came as Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho] launched on the floor of the senate a drive to repeal that part of the NRA which suspended the anti-trust laws for coded industries.

Baiting Brings Outburst.

Charges that Sidney Hillman, labor's representative on the NRA labor and a Russian by birth, maintains relations with the soviets had thrown the senate finance committee hearing on the future of the NRA into an uproar earlier in the day. Mr. Hillman will continue as a member of the "reorganized" board.

Baited by Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah], Hillman at last burst into an impassioned defense in which he defied King to find anything improper in his Russian background. He denied having any connections with Russia.

"Instead of permitting me to give my defense of NRA, the question is was I born in Russia, as if I had anything to do with where I was born," Hillman, speaking with a heavy accent, stormed at King. "At least I can say this: This country is not with me an accident, it is the country of my choice!"

Costigan Protests Baiting.

Prior to Hillman's outburst, Senator King's goading of him had brought a sharp protest from Senator Edward P. Costigan [Dem., Col.], and, when the protest was followed by a wave of hand clapping from the audience, Senator King and Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] threatened to have senate police oust the audience from the committee room.

As soon as he finished testifying, Hillman called at the White House with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to inform President Roosevelt that labor insists upon continuance of NRA. Green and Lewis will appear before the finance committee next week to defend the NRA from labor's point of view.

Questions by Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala] revealed that Hillman had come to America from Russia in 1906 and that he had been a naturalized citizen for 20 years. During most of that time he has headed the Amalgamated Association of Clothing Workers, and Senator Hastings brought out that a Chicago bank owned by the Amalgamated had had a foreign exchange agreement with the soviets and had arranged a loan to enable the soviets to buy machinery in this country.

Cites Chase Bank Lendings.

"If you mean that we recognized Russia a few years before the government, that is true," Hillman shot back at Hastings. "The Chase National bank was lending them millions of dollars while we were lending them tens of thousands."

"Nobody ever criticized J. P. Morgan or the Mellons for using your bank to advance funds to Russia," Senator Costigan put in, once more coming to Hillman's aid.

The fuse to the explosion was lighted when Senator King, after bringing out Hillman's Russian birth, read a section of the Amalgamated's constitution which spoke of "class consciousness" and of "workers taking over the means of production" as under communism.

"That has been out of our constitution for ten or fifteen years," Hillman replied while the audience tittered and King became visibly irritated.

Blames Darrow Influence.

"You put that in after you came from Russia, didn't you?" King snapped.

"Senator, we put that in while some of our members were impressed with the ideas of Mr. Darrow—with beautiful panaceas for the future," Hillman answered.

"There are many faults in NRA, but unless we do something our democratic institutions will go overboard. Mr. Darrow can afford to wait 200 years, the man out of work can not," Hillman declared.

Hillman suggested that congress increase government control over code authorities, that it oust "chair warmers" from NRA, that it eliminate production control from the codes and that, if NRA did not remove unemployment, the thirty hour week bill be passed. He entered "my most emphatic disagreement" with Donald Richberg, New Deal coördinator, on the latter's suggestion that service trade codes be dropped.

RELIEF ALLOCATIONS CALLED POKER GAME WITH SOUTH WINNING

The allocation of federal relief administration funds is compared to a poker game between the administration and the state governments with the southern states as winners, in an editorial in the March issue of the Social Service Review, published by the University of Chicago Press. The editorial declares there is no principle of equalization apparent in the distribution.

"The statistical section of any one of the monthly reports of the FERA, which are required by statute, gives food for thought on the administration of grants in aid and leaves the reader in a state of perplexity and unexampled confusion," says the editorial.

"There would seem to be no principle of equalization at work here; for states that are the most in need and have the least resources sometimes have smaller percentages of their relief burdens carried by the federal administration than do relatively wealthy areas. Why should Kansas, for example, with 15 per cent of her population on relief, be given only 67.8 per cent of her relief expenditures by the FERA, when North Carolina, with only 8 per cent of the population on relief, gets 98.6 per cent?"

859 N. Y. RELIEF WORKERS GIVEN RAISES IN PAY

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Salary increases totaling $17,000 a month were announced today by the Emergency Relief bureau for 859 employés engaged in the administration of the works division, under which are employed 120,000 workers on emergency projects as part of the city's employment relief program.

Administration and operation of the projects cost the city about 10 million dollars monthly. The salary increases represent about one-fifth of one per cent of the cost of running the works division.

FIRST INQUIRY INTO OHIO RELIEF SCANDAL OPENED

U. S. Will Start Second Quiz Next Week.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., March 21.—[Special.]—Ohio's relief scandal resulted in the opening of one official investigation today and the promise of two more for next week. In the meantime the new federal relief administrator, C. C. Stillman, fired twenty-five headquarter employés and announced his intention of cutting the monthly pay roll from $90,000 to $80,000. That much had been accomplished.

Stillman also moved to eliminate "chiselers" from the relief rolls and ordered the replacement of grocery orders by direct cash relief next month. There were 1,211,723 on relief in the state during January.

While the county grand jury investigation was getting under slow headway at the courthouse the news was received from Washington that Attorney General Hugh Cummings had decided to enter the Ohio situation to find out if federal funds had been used illegally.

Coincident with announcement of the department of justice entry into the situation, it was revealed tonight that 499,000 pounds of relief meat was permitted to spoil in a Toledo warehouse and sent to Columbus a month later for destruction. Inspectors have been sent to Toledo to verify a report that 452,000 pounds of meat now in storage is spoiled.

Davey's Secretary Testifies.

The only witness of the day was Dan Duffy, Gov. Martin L. Davey's secretary, who volunteered to appear and who went from the grand jury room to the Democratic state headquarters in the Deshler hotel. Here the party chiefs were gathered to discuss the trend of the investigation, which appears to be safely in the hands of the governor, except for federal interference.

The lower house of the assembly this afternoon concurred in the senate resolution of investigation which was passed yesterday. The vote was 110 to 7. This does not reflect, however, the real sentiment of the members regarding the investigation, for the house had been maneuvered into a position where it could not offer any amendments. The house merely had to accept or reject the proposal as a whole.

G. O. P. Forced to Yield.

The house has 66 Republicans and 65 Democrats, which indicates the balance of party forces in the state that is likely to be upset by this scandal in favor of the Republicans.

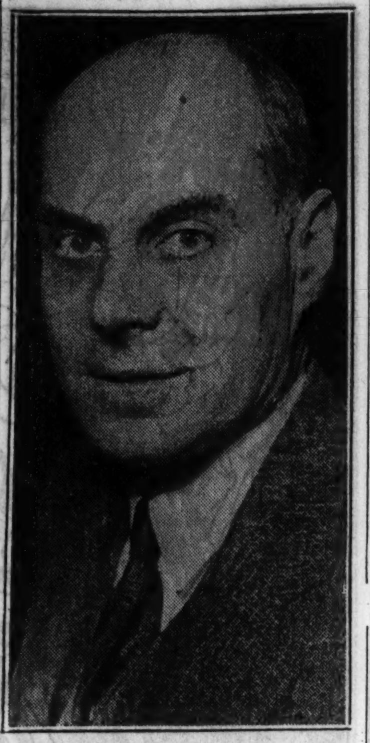
Myron B. Gessaman of Columbus, Republican floor leader, voted for the resolution today, explaining that the Republicans had been forced to yield to the sentiment which would not permit the attorney general of the state, John W. Bricker, a Republican, a place as counsel for the investigating committee.

"I feel," he said, "that the investigation should be made by him, but I do not want to oppose the resolution. I want the committee to proceed immediately." Representative E. R. King of McArthur said he objected to the committee setup "because while our governor is well taken care of there is no one representing our President. This will be a whitewash investigation."

P. E. Ward, Republican member from Chardon, told the members in the course of discussion of the resolution that the Democratic members of the assembly already had declared the governor and all his associates innocent of all the Hopkins' charges.

Relief directors from fourteen metropolitan centers met with Director Stillman today. The director said there had been many charges of inefficiency in relief and inhumane treatment of clients.

ICKES' DETECTIVE



Louis Glavis, investigator for public works administration, who gathered evidence which resulted in indictment of seven on charges of fraud in connection with $4,853,000 Texas irrigation project. Grand jury acted yesterday in Washington, D. C.

(Story on page 1.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—An explosive snort of denial was the reply of Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins today when asked if the was "scared" to go to Ohio to face Gov. Martin L. Davey in the controversy over Ohio relief.

At the same time Hopkins made it clear that he had no intention of visiting Ohio, where Gov. Davey is threatening him with a criminal libel action for Hopkins' charges of a corrupt alliance between politics and relief.

Hopkins said he was not going to continue "a name calling" battle with Gov. Davey He said the entire question was one of politics in relief and that he intended to end political favoritism in relief.

"When I came here," Hopkins said, "the President told me he wanted no politics or corruption in relief. So far as I am concerned and so far as he was concerned we were not just making fine phrases. We mean it. Wherever there is any politics in relief we intend to get rid of it damned fast.

"I can't spend my life worrying about getting called names. We're just not going to tolerate politics in relief no matter where they are or who they involve. Let the politicians keep their fingers out of it."

Hopkins was asked whether in view of the fact Gov. Davey is a Democrat the situation might not be of tremendous political significance in the Presidential election of 1936. He was told observers see the relief episode as making Ohio the pivot of the 1936 campaign.

"I haven't given that any thought," he said.

Hopkins was told that Francis W. Poulson, Democratic state chairman in Ohio, had labeled him "a Republican and a doctor."

"Let him keep out of the relief situation and believe me he'll keep out," Hopkins snapped.

WHAT! ME TAKE A CHANCE ON THOSE CHEAP SOAP CHIPS?

"...Not after the Way I had to Save to Buy these Things!"

Says Mrs. C. A. Milburn, 1135 Lunt Ave., Chicago, Illinois

"You see, I already know what those cheap soap chips can do to sheets and towels and tablecloths! All my trousseau linens wore out in less than a year—just because I thought I was being such a smart bride, hunting out soap bargains!

"You can imagine how heart-sick it made me to buy new sets of everything—so soon. I managed it finally, with much scrimping. But I'm taking no more chances on cheap soap chips—not after the way I had to save to get these things. These linens have got to last—and that means I use American Family Flakes!"

It's mighty smart of you to have learned this secret so soon, Mrs. Milburn. Some housewives never have figured out the high cost of cheap soap chips. They go on year after year—replacing linens that should never have worn out, mending clothes that could have stayed new, rubbing over the washtub when they might have been out enjoying themselves. They don't know that American Family Flakes can actually save them all this.

American Family Flakes give you double suds, made especially for this hard lake water ... long-lasting suds that keep busy to the end of the wash. They are mild, pure suds, quick to rinse out, gentle with fabrics, easy on colors. And that's what counts on wash-day—the quality and amount of the suds you get, not the size of the package you buy! Measured this way, American Family Flakes are by far the thriftiest flakes on the market!

MIDWEST AND FAR EASTERN TRADE.

The report rendered by S. S. Brill, foreign trade counselor of the Chicago Association of Credit, after a trip to the far east, offers food for reflection in our business community. As summarized by Arthur Evans in his series "Make Chicago the First City in the World" we find that midwest products are already making their way in Japan, China, and the Dutch East Indies, and we are not imitating the late Col. Sellers when we assert again our faith in the enormous possibilities midwest industry and commerce are in a position to exploit in the far east.

That there are serious obstacles and deterrents in the path of our development no one will deny. China, for example, while it is one of the greatest potential markets in the world, a country of continental extent with a population representing approximately a quarter of the human race, in need of the most important of the products we manufacture, has little means at this time to pay for them. Its available resources are largely absorbed by the factional armies and warfare, and the silver policy forced upon us by the silver states' politicians has created a painful crisis in its financial affairs. The latter misfortune no doubt has seriously, if, as we hope, temporarily, weakened our trading position, but this and other handicaps ought not to discourage a persistent and well planned effort to cultivate trade relations. The Chinese are working under the most difficult conditions toward internal stability. If and as it is accomplished the buying power of the Chinese will grow, and midwest commerce should put itself in a position to take advantage of conditions as they develop. Foreign trade requires long preparation to be planted and developed on a large scale and against the intensive competition of countries which for generations have carried it on, learning its conditions and laying down its necessary framework.

The point we wish to make is that the patient and energetic cultivation of trade with the far east ought not to be postponed by midwest commerce and industry, because the trans-Pacific markets are an economic battlefield. If we wait until conditions are all favorable for immediate and large profits we shall find competitors entrenched and the channels of trade running to other countries.

Trade opportunities are within immediate reach, but in addition to an alert and energetic exploitation of them there should be long range study and planning to expand our commerce as the rapidly changing conditions of the east permit. The initiative shown by the Association of Credit Men encourages us to believe that our organized business leadership is beginning to realize the importance of trade expansion in the trans-Pacific field, which if wisely prepared and pressed will in due time contribute substantially to the industrial and commercial prosperity of the midwest and hence to the prosperity of the nation generally.

Meanwhile it is of moment that the west should understand its interest in the conduct of our Pacific relations and should insist that the foreign policy of the nation shall not be misdirected by the sentimental influence of organized minorities which ignore the material welfare of our people. International relations in the Pacific are as complex as those of Europe and call for clear thinking and firm handling at Washington. If the legitimate interests of the American people in this vast region, and they are of great importance to us both in the long view and that of immediate aid to recovery, are to be protected and advanced, we of the midwest must exert a greater influence upon the development of American foreign policy and the conduct of our international relations than we have exercised in recent years.

VINEGAR HEADACHE.

Officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation still maintain silence, the traditional refuge of the burocratic bungler, on their sour loan to the Clyde Products company of Clyde, N. Y.

The RFC lent the company $25,000 to expand its vinegar business. Part of the vinegar was made by the oxidation of grain alcohol, a common industrial process. Several weeks ago internal revenue agents raided the plant. They charge that the major "expansion" made possible by the loan consisted of diversion of some 75,000 gallons of tax free alcohol to bootleg liquor channels, with an estimated tax evasion of nearly $300,000.

It is hardly credible, of course, that the RFC or any of its officials could have known of the allegedly illegal conduct of the company, and, knowing, condoned it out of fear of destroying the collateral of the loan. The revenue officers seem bent on doing just that through court action seeking authority to seize and destroy the property.

Silence may for a time serve the RFC officials as a shield, but it merely enhances their disrepute. When silence no longer serves, the usual burocratic maneuver is to pick some underling for a scapegoat and pin the responsibility on him. The fact that this has not been done is logical ground for suspicion that the person responsible for the Clyde loan is too important in the organization for such a sacrifice.

Who is he?

MORE SPEED, MR. SWEITZER.

The county treasurer's office, on the first of the present month, was holding more than $32,000,000 in tax collections due the various local governments of Cook county. A month before it was holding $37,000,000. At present it has roughly $15,000,000 eligible for distribution, and some $5,000,000 more held because of different legal technicalities.

The prompt distribution of this money is not a matter of merely theoretical interest to the governments concerned. It is a most practical consideration of dollars and cents, because as quickly as the governments get the money they use the bulk of it to retire tax warants on which they are paying interest charges as high as 6 per cent. Delays in distribution are costing them many thousands of dollars monthly.

County Treasurer Sweitzer, in his statements after he took office a few months ago, showed a commendable desire to improve the efficiency of his staf. Indeed the blockade of distributions would not be known were it not for the monthly statements which Mr. Sweitzer instituted voluntarily. If he had not been handicapped by illness it is fair to assume that he already would have taken steps to speed up the distribution process, as he pledged himself to do.

Unthinking critics may blame the situation on the political personnel. This is probably only a minor factor. A man is not necessarily incompetent because he gets his job on the indorsement of a ward committeeman.

A more logical theory is that the bookkeeping system of the office is inherently slow and clumsy and needs revision. This is given weight by the fact that it has taken a competent private auditing concern fifteen days after the close of the report period to prepare the treasurer's reports to the public.

Presumably a large part of this delay was due to failure of the office's own staf to balance its books. Such tardiness would not be tolerated in private business. Banks, which receive as many separate deposits daily as the treasurer's office receives individual tax payments, have no difficulty in balancing their books before their stafs go home each night. Accounting stafs of large corporations can get up accurate and comprehensive cash statements on a few hours' notice.

Public offices have been notoriously slow in introducing bookkeeping improvements which involve use of machinery for fear of diminishing the number of their employés. This may apply to the treasurer's office. If so, selfish motives alone should influence the dominant party organization to drop its prejudices so far as the treasurer's office is concerned. Elimination of the costly delays there would enable local governments to expand their activities and take on more employés than would lose out through accounting reforms at the seat of the trouble.

ABUSES OF MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE LAW.

It seems probable that the present assembly will put to its credit important legislation to correct flagrant evils in marriage and divorce procedure. The house is to be commended for passing Representative McSweeney's bill abolishing the so-called "heart balm" lawsuits. A bill for the same purpose proposed by Judge Desort is in the senate and will be considered there in connection with the McSweeney bill. The better bill or a combination of the merits of both should be enacted into the law without unnecessary delay. The Indiana legislature already has adopted a law identical with the McSweeney bill. In Ohio a similar bill is on its way, and the New York assembly has enacted an even more drastic measure.

The form of action to be abolished has been proved to be contrary to public policy, giving no protection to the respectable, but only opportunity for racketeer lawyers and malignant men and women. It should go.

Three bills for other reforms proposed by Judge Desort and sponsored in the senate by the president pro tempore, Senator Graham, should also be added to this assembly's record. They will prevent the gin wedding, restrict the abuse of separate maintenance, and provide safeguards for co-respondents charged in divorce suits.

No responsible citizen will favor hasty legislation, but proper deliberation does not justify postponement of relief from notorious abuses, and we hope that the assembly in addition to the early enactment of these corrective measures will take time for a thorough survey of our existing laws governing marriage and divorce.

Editorial of the Day

THE STRANGLEHOLD.

[Boone (Ia.) News-Republican.]

When we embarked on a system of government by experiment it was not clearly foreseen that we would reap a harvest of vituperation. We now bid fair to be engulfed in a species of legislation by buffoonery, wherein "deceased felines," "pied pipers," and "economic shysters" will direct the trend. Huey Long stands in the middle of the senate chamber picking his teeth and lets out blasts against the administration, compelling delay in all important legislation and inviting a radio cyclone from "pious flubdubs" and Blue Eagle deserters. The windjammers of riposte are holding the floor. On the whole, somber business men are inclined to be jubilant over this unexpected mêlée between the erstwhile supporters of the New Deal. Whereas in the not so distant past it was considered lese majesty to even question the commands of Roosevelt, the dead cat brigade has now rushed in where angels fear to tread and broken the sanctity of the thought that the President must always have his way. The reign of the windbags is all to the good, since the brain trusters cannot now get in a word edgewise, and reckless legislation is held up by the din of the militant broadcasters. If the new $5,000,000,000 brain trust campaign fund is sidetracked indefinitly, business will take heart and hire more radios for Huey, Hugh, and Coughlin.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

REINCARNATION has again been brought to mind by the news that an American woman writer, believing she was Chinese in a previous reincarnation, went out to China and has become a naturalized Chinese citizen and is going to resume the great work she was carrying on the first time she was Chinese. Reincarnation is a gloomy thought. Gosh! with all the troubles we have around us it's a great comfort to think that some day we'll be out of it all in that very pleasant place beyond the Styx. But if we're going to be reincarnated what's the use? What I'm afraid of most is that I would be reincarnated a millionaire down to my last steam yacht. A millionaire down to his last steam yacht suffers a thousand times more than I would if I was down to my last thin dime. I don't mind the thought of being down to my last thin dime, but I know if I were a millionaire down to my last steam yacht I'd be begging people to keep me away from the seventeenth story windows.

THE EYES OF CHRIST.

(Third Friday in Lent.)

Beauty I loved and sought, and followed her
Into her hidden places, and my eyes
Feasted and drank, and sated turned away;

Not mine but His were the eyes that found me things
So beautiful I dared not look upon them.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

AMELIA EARHART says that the women should be put in the army in the next war and permitted to march against the foe. Yes, but Amelia would probably lead the lady shock troops, and, goodness! what would the enemy say if Amelia doesn't get a permanent wave? Her hair looks pretty cute as it is, but the sullen foreign foe might not understand the matter and make all sorts of remarks about it. And, besides, our lady soldiers or soldieresses might refuse to follow a leader who didn't have her hair dressed in the very latest style of permanent waves. The girls are mighty fussy about those things.

"AND GOOD IN EVERYTHING." "I hope," the stout lady on the bus said to her neighbor, "that all that dust blowing in from the fields away out in the west will fill my window boxes with earth so that I won't have to go out in the country and get dirt. They say it's so thick out in Kansas City you can't see your hand before your face, and, sakes alive! if it come down on Chicago like that I otta get those window boxes filled mighty quick. Anyhow, I've got 'em put out and here's hoping."

And Now, Gertrude Stein, See What You've Done!

(Glimpsed by Mrs. O. V. R. in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.)

The largest postcard he evercard carried the names of more than handled, though he served 36200 postal employes who extended in years at the Fort Wayne Post Office,that manner their congratulations to was received Saturday by Conrad F.Mr. Kettler. The card, 59 by 39 inch- Kettler, 932 Packard Avenue, retiredes, was delivered by Fred Reiling, superintendent of mails, on the oc-1301 Rockhill Street, dean of the re-casion of his eightieth birthday. Thetired carriers in Fort Wayne.

AFTER ALL, there's nothing like staying at home and attending strictly to one's own business. That's the way to get on in the world and not by gadding all over the world. Look at Mussolini—started a row with poor little Ethiopia away over on the eastern side of Africa. Chased his army down there and told 'em to run up and down and yell like everything so everybody would know about it. Herr Hitler doesn't pay attention to anything except to Germany, but, sakes alive, he's said enough the last few days to get all over the front page every morning and make Europe tremble with apprehension of another world war. Mussolini is very quiet now; he's thinking up a new one.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR III. goes to work as a shipping clerk in New York for $25 a week. That seems very noble and courageous for a young millionaire to do, and the newspapers are heaping many encomiums on the hero. But shucks—I wouldn't mind working for twenty-five bucks a week, or even seven and a half, if I knew that when I got hungry I had enough loose change in my pocket to buy a wagonload of hot dogs or thirty-nine dollars' worth of pork and beans any old time at all.

NONE TO HIMSELF—

Perhaps all life runs to one sea
To melt in vast immensity
And then, new-moulded, may emerge
To sense again the sunward surge
Toward some benign, compelling goal—
None to himself, his secret soul.

The youth who gives his strength to age
As well as scholar, priest or sage,
The child who feeds a pet with care
As much as well-directed prayer,
Share of divine with every one.

Perhaps the day we reach that sun
Will be when men have won past pain,
And some boy in Japan or Spain
Has ceased his play to give a cup
Of cool to earth's last crippled pup—

To smooth the broken frame and cry—
"I love him—I don't think he'll die."

LILA TERRY.

AND, NOT CONTENT with putting the radio in motor cars and taxicabs, now they're putting 'em on bicycles. Next thing they'll make 'em so small they can be carried in the pocket and everybody we pass in the street will be spilling jazz and crooners' songs and tooth paste advertisements all over the place. In the words of the grand old hymn, "Lord, I would not live always."

AMNESIA, OR LOSS OF MEMORY.

EVERY now and then we read reports of persons who have suffered a total loss of memory and who are described as victims of amnesia. Many of these stories are most dramatic: "Beautiful girl dressed in sables found wandering in public park. Cannot tell her name nor where she lives," etc.

As a rule such cases represent an effort on the part of the individual to escape from an unpleasant or perhaps an intolerable personal situation. Many examples were noted during the world war, when "shell shock" developed under the strain of new and harrowing experiences. The soldier could not recall his name, age, occupation, or where he lived. Sometimes in medico-legal cases there is a false amnesia assumed by a person accused of crime, and it is frequently a most difficult problem to differentiate malingering from a functional [hysterical] or organic [actual] amnesia.

There are two principal types of loss of memory—namely: for past events and for events following an illness, injury, or startling occurrence. For example, in a very severe illness, with high fever and intense toxemia, consciousness may be so dim that the patient exists in a mental fog; circumstances and incidents simply do not register. Even on recovery, perhaps weeks or months later, there is no recollection of what has taken place during the period. In functional loss of memory the mental images of events may be recorded but cannot be recalled.

Numerous cases are on record of loss of memory following an accident accompanied by fractures of the skull and some damage to the brain. The memory, so far as the accident is concerned, may be an utter blank. Memory in other respects in these patients is normal.

Physicians are familiar with the type of memory recovery that occurs during convalescence from a severe illness. In order to be on the safe side, rather prolonged rest should be required in all cases where damage to the brain has occurred.

Those patients who give no history of injury or illness and who suddenly recover memory usually represent the hysterical type. Either the game has been played out or the disagreeable factors that brought on the manifestation have been removed. Hysterical amnesia should be treated by a skilled psychiatrist, and many of these cases make better progress under sanitarium management.

We must not confuse amnesia with aphasia. This latter condition indicates a partial or total loss of speech and is characterized by the inability of the afflicted individual to express himself in words, although his understanding may be normal. Students of neurology have located in the brain certain word centers, although recent investigation has shown that there are probably no exact areas that govern speech. It appears to be clear, however, that in right-handed persons the speech mechanism lies in the left half of the brain, and in those who are left-handed in the right half.

Accidents that result in injury to the brain or hemorrhage into the substance of the brain [as in apoplexy] may bring on speech disorders. In severe cases the patient may be reduced to but one or two words, for example, "yes" and "no." Aphasia, of course, is merely a symptom, not a disease, and is frequently associated with paralysis, tumors of the brain, encephalitis, meningitis, brain abscesses, etc.

Improvement in cases of aphasia will depend upon the removal of a brain tumor or abscess and in the power of the circulation to absorb hemorrhage into the brain substance or to supply blood through the reëstablishment of new circulation should an important blood vessel be blocked.

BLOOD PRESSURE.

N. W. writes: I have high blood pressure and I have been told that since I am dizzy now and then I will shortly have a stroke. Is this true?

REPLY.

Many people with high blood pressure are likely to suffer from dizziness, but the symptom does not mean that apoplexy is imminent. Dizziness is sometimes associated with low blood pressure, while many persons with normal blood pressure exhibit the symptom from such causes as eyestrain, migraine, toxemia, wax in the ear, liver disturbance, and disease of the labyrinth of the ear. Occasionally emotional upsets are responsible.

HARMLESS.

S. M. writes: The oranges I have been buying are marked "color added." Why is color added, and is the orange harmed by this process?

REPLY.

The substance used is annatto or arnotto, a vegetable dye. Pale oranges are placed in a temperature of 107 degrees F., and this coloring matter is sprayed on. This is a harmless dye and does not change the orange pulp. Even oranges may employ cosmetics to increase their attractiveness.

From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.— . . . Falling in love can be tragic, but seldom is it more so than in the case of several hundred Japanese here who, by virtue of their birth in the United States, are American citizens.

They came here to work, study, or merely to see the country and, as young people have a tendency of doing, have fallen in love. Now they cannot leave the country.

If they marry, as many of them have done, they cannot take their wives back to America to live with them. The strange thing about this is that they could bring their wives with them if, instead of being American citizens, they were Japanese subjects. Through some kink in American legislation the United States discriminates against its own citizens in this respect.

The result is there are many young American-Japanese today who are in a difficult if not pitiful plight. In one case the son of a wealthy Japanese in California married a Japanese girl while visiting this country. Knowing that she would lose her Japanese citizenship by wedding an American, on the one hand, and never be able to acquire an American citizenship on the other, because orientals are ineligible to citizenship, the girl took out a passport to visit the United States just before her marriage.

She was thus able to accompany her husband to California after the wedding. But in two years her visé expired and she had to return to Japan. A renewal of the visé or a new passport was out of the question because she was neither a Japanese nor an American. Her husband, unsuccessful in several attempts to have his wife permitted to enter the United States, has finally given up hope and has come to Japan.

In the case of bona fide Japanese, however, entry into the United States is not so difficult. Providing a husband is admitted into the country, his wife may go and stay with him, if not permanently, at least as a visitor for two years.

This is why many American citizens of Japanese blood are complaining that they are being discriminated against by their own country.

Also in this category are 100,000 Japanese-Americans in California and Hawaii. Because of a shortage of Japanese girls in America, many of them would like to come to Japan to find wives, but are afraid to do so because they know they will have to remain in this country if they want to live with their mates.

Already there are several hundred Japanese-Americans in this country. The racial question precludes their marrying American girls.

So it is not strange that the one thing which the young Japanese-Americans here are trying their best not to do is fall in love.

WHO OWNS AMERICA?

Freeport, Ill., March 18.—The American Liberty league's warning in today's TRIBUNE of the disastrous effects of the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility bill, if passed, again emphasizes the hostile attitude of the New Dealers toward big business. The more conservative among them talk of a "redistribution of wealth" in the interest of "social justice"; the more radical, of "soaking the rich" and "sharing the wealth."

In view of this socialistic attitude toward the owners of our large industries, it might be well to ask who these owners really are. The answer is that the big industries of the country belong to four classes of people:

1. Individuals of moderate means, whose income is derived, in whole or in part, from stocks and bonds, and who are usually spoken of as the thrifty middle class. Their number reaches into the millions. In the railroads alone there are over 2 million such owners.

2. Customers of public utilities and of a few other industries. Customer ownership has grown amazingly in recent years.

3. Capitalists, people of large wealth. Though their holdings are large, they constitute a very small minority of the total owners.

4. Employés, wage earners, and men and women on salary who have been encouraged to purchase the securities of the company for which they work. Their number runs into the hundreds of thousands and is increasing by leaps and bounds. In the American Telegraph and Telephone company, against which the federal government has recently directed its guns, there were in 1927 over 47,000 employé owners. By 1930 the number had increased to over 167,000. In General Motors, U. S. Steel, General Electric, and many other industries there has been a similar increase in employé owners, and it has continued even since the stock market crash of 1929. In most cases the employés are given the privilege of selling back their stock at the market, or in some cases at the original price. In nearly all cases they are able to buy at a discount.

Prof. Carver of Harvard speaks of this liberal policy on the part of our big industries as an "economic revolution." Until the stock market crash of 1929 sent all stocks to new lows it had produced the widest distribution of wealth among the deserving and the largest measure of social justice the world has ever seen.

So far I have been speaking of direct ownership. The number of indirect owners is even greater. I refer to the millions of insurance policy owners and savings banks depositors, whose money, amounting to billions, is invested largely in the securities of our great corporations.

The plain truth is, there are very few "close corporations" in America any more. The big industries of the country are owned by the people. In view of this fact, it would seem that the hostile attitude of the New Dealers toward these industries is little short of madness. How can there be a more equitable distribution of wealth if the only successful means of creating wealth are destroyed? How can we hope to restore business prosperity if we hamper business activity? So long as the present disastrous policy toward our basic industries is continued, the talk of administration spokesmen about restoring confidence is but sounding brass and tinkling cymbals.

HOLDING COMPANIES.

Chicago, March 19.—A holding company is a leech [organized to get around the anti-trust laws], drawing its profits from otherwise sound operating companies. This necessitates the operating company's earning two profits, as it has to pay something to its own stockholders as well as the holding company stockholders. This results in increased rates or prices for its products, thus gouging the consumer.

JIM FORGAN.

WASTE AND FAVORITISM.

Chicago, March 13.—The letter of John J. Riley, published in THE TRIBUNE March 12, does not explain satisfactorily to the taxpayers the uncalled for increases in the salaries of a certain few of the county employés, particularly the sister of an alderman, who was raised from $160 to $180, and the relative of some other sinecure holder that was hired at $250.

Under present conditions, when the state is trying to think up more taxes to meet expenses and with thousands of married men now unemployed who would and could fill those jobs satisfactorily for less, I think it a flagrant breach of trust. No doubt the people of Illinois will remember it when the proper time comes. However, politics is politics. To the victor belong the spoils.

J. G. STODDARD.

VACANCIES IN THE CITY COUNCIL.

Chicago, March 16.—Why doesn't the legislature amend the statute so that when a vacancy exists for aldermen the mayor, with the consent of the city council, will be empowered to appoint a qualified person of the ward where the vacancy exists to fill out the unexpired term or until the next general election, instead of leaving a ward without representation in the city council for an indefinite period? There have been numerous vacancies in the past when the term of office was only two years, and we may expect many vacancies now that the term of office is four years.

S. J. SIMON.

INTERESTING IF TRUE DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, March 19.—We are told that the public library board cannot buy any new books because there is no money available. Last year the library board spent about $5,000 for the purchase of books and over a million dollars for mere salaries.

H. GRIFFITH.

HE SEES A CONSPIRACY.

Dolton, Ill., March 16.—I read that "Senator Smith Seeks $20,000 to Probe Cotton Break." Why spend $20,000, Senator? I will tell you why cotton broke. The government has had some heavy bond refunding to do, so it rigged the markets—that is, it caused the stock and commodity markets to break and the government bond market was supported with government money. Note with what great ease this can be done:

1. Mr. Donald Richberg: "There will be no inflation for the next six years."

2. Mr. President: "Markets are not high enough, but nothing will be done about it."

3. Rumors that the government will discontinue lending money to cotton farmers.

4. When the English pound broke no assurance was given the American markets that the English pound would not be allowed to go too far down.

Reason for believing the above is true: "Government Calls Liberty Bonds," which did not need to be taken care of until they fell due. Remember, it is hard to sell bonds when stocks and commodities are going up as they would have done after the gold clause decision, which also made bonds less attractive than they were before the decision. So the government had to do something if it wished to sell bonds.

If the government does not wish to be held responsible for the markets, I would suggest that it remove its control over the markets and business, and, above all, keep its mouth closed.

FRED POHLERS JR.

OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY.

Chicago, April 15.—I think there was material for a swell editorial in the President's message to congress the other day on the proposed Rayburn-Wheeler bill, and I hope you will write it.

He mentioned the public utility effort to stir up their stockholders as "spending other people's money" and therefore reprehensible. So far as I know he's the champion spender of other people's money in all history. Judging him by his own standard he becomes, at least in that respect [and I think in many others], public enemy No. 1.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

OPERA FATHERED BY N. Y. '400' HITS FINANCIAL ROCKS

Doors on Run Here Will Close After Week.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The New York Opera Comique company seems destined to close its season at the Auditorium tomorrow night with a run of one week instead of remaining for the two weeks or longer as originally expected. Back of the decision to close is a story of financial embarrassment. Word comes from New York that it was only through the generosity of New York supporters, most of whom rate as members of Gotham's Four Hundred, that the company has been able to carry on that long.

This assurance came last night from Grace Denton, manager of the Chicago season, who flew to New York Wednesday when the situation at the Auditorium became acute. After an all-day conference with members of the New York sponsoring committee she said that enough money would be forthcoming to keep the opera series going until tomorrow night and to guarantee all members of the company against any salary loss.

Notables Are Sponsors.

The New York Opera Comique, Inc., which bears the name of Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, wife of the chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Opera association, as president on its literature, that of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, as chairman, and those of G. Campbell Beckett, A. J. D. Biddle Jr., Eldon Bisbee, Mrs. Eldon Bisbee, Mrs. Cravath, Adolph Dick, E. Roland Harriman, Edward Smallwood, William E. Hazen, Kendall Mussey, and Mrs. Walter H. Naumburg as directors, was formed some years ago primarily to help talented and ambitious young singers.

Having developed a répertoire of some dimensions, it was decided that the company should leave the Hecksher theater in New York and go out on its first tour. It arrived at the Auditorium last Monday.

Report Chicago Backing Fails.

It was reported that Chicago music lovers had been expected to raise a guarantee fund to meet expenses of the Chicago engagement, but that they had failed to do this.

Fred Crow, manager of the Auditorium theater, stated last night that he believed the company would be able to fill out its engagement until tomorrow night, but that he saw little possibility of any extension.

REPORTS GAINS IN EMPLOYMENT AND PAY ROLLS

Washington, D. C., March 21.—(AP)—The labor department today reported a "more than seasonal" upswing in factory employment—a 3.2 per cent boost—accompanied by a $10,800,000 increase in weekly pay rolls.

Officials said the boost in the number of the pay rolls of several non-manufacturing industries during February brought total employment up by 200,000 over January. This increase figure was explained as one between the averages of industrial employment in the first two months of the year.

Gains in both employment and pay rolls are usual in February, but this year's increase was described as greater than that of any year in the last 16, last year alone excepted.

PLENTY OF FEED, STARVES SEVEN CATTLE TO DEATH

Aitkin, Minn., March 21.—(AP)—Arthur Davis, Aitkin county farmer, today was given a 60 day jail sentence for cruelty to animals after he had been convicted of starving seven cattle to death and killing a mule.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge John A. Gilmore in Justice court. In addition Davis was forbidden to own any more live stock in Minnesota.

Father on Relief Rolls as Wife Has Triplets

East St. Louis, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—Three special nurses from the St. Clair County Visiting Nurses' association were assigned today to Ruth Marie, Bertha Margaret, and Joan Margaret, 3 day old triplets of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Piper of this city. Piper, 49, unemployed mechanic, is on the relief rolls. His wife, 38, is the mother of six other children, and their ages range from 10 to 3 years. "I hope God will take care of us," Mrs. Piper said today.

PRINCE OF WALES LANDS $15,000,000 ORDER IN BRAZIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21.—How the prince of Wales lived up to his reputation as "Britain's greatest trade ambassador" and was instrumental in securing a $15,000,000 foreign contract for industrialists at home was revealed tonight by the earl of Dudley, presiding at the annual dinner of the British Iron and Steel federation in London.

"If all of you here were able to drive a bargain with the same efficiency and good will as his royal highness can achieve, there would be nothing wrong with the steel industry," the earl said.

"I remember a very hot day in Rio de Janeiro when I went with him to meet authorities of Brazil in connection with a contract for electrification of an important Brazilian railway. His royal highness talked to local authorities more than an hour. The result of that interview has just come to hand. It is a $15,000,000 contract for Great Britain."

CALLS PRINTING CODE MEDIEVAL BAR TO PROGRESS

Likens NRA Provisions to Ancient Guilds.

New code provisions for the law printing industry which were termed "a medieval bar to progress" were revealed yesterday by T. J. Cullen, president of the United States Printing company, 2817 North Halsted street, whose shop was bombed last year after he refused to obey price-fixing provisions of the code. Mr. Cullen compared the organization of industries under NRA to the guilds of merchants and crafts which held sway in Europe for several centuries.

"The latest addition to the multitude of code edicts is a medieval bar to progress," Mr. Cullen declared. "It is a direct blow at the principle of increasing efficiency which gave this country its industrial leadership. If obeyed—and I will not obey it—it would deter any wish to make equipment or workers more efficient."

Quotes Code Booklet.

The new provision is contained in a booklet titled, "Basic Production Determination Standards," published by the law printers' code agency under the graphic arts code. Mr. Cullen, who has been criticized before by NRA officials for making such information public, cited the following paragraph of this provision:

"No establishment electing to determine its costs of law printing on the basis of departmental economic hourly cost rates and production standards . . . shall submit bids or sell any such law printing at prices upon more efficient production than is set forth in the following declared standards."

The code edict then lists nine operations necessary in this type of work and gives the time allotted for each under the "maximum efficiency" provision.

Code Cost Fixing.

According to this schedule the cost per page of law printing would be $1.30, Mr. Cullen calculated. The code agency admitted to him that the time schedule would make the cost between $1.28 and $1.35 per page.

"The schedules in the booklet undoubtedly will prove that they allow greater efficiency than is posisble," said S. F. Beatty, the code director, yesterday. "Any ordinary law printer couldn't attempt to produce law printing in any less time than the schedule states."

However, Mr. Cullen's selling price per page is only 80 cents, although he pays the employés in his small shop more than the required code wages.

Willing to Act on Proof.

Code Director Beatty then said that any printer who can "show figures" proving he is able to produce more efficiently than the schedule indicates, will be permitted to operate under his lower costs.

"What struck me," Mr. Cullen said, "is the similarity I find between code organizations and the ancient guilds of merchants and craftsmen.

"Encyclopédias tell us that craft guilds became prominent back in the 13th and 14th centuries, reaching their zenith of power in the 14th and 15th. One encyclopedia says: 'Ordinances were made regulating hours of labor and requiring members to make periodical payments into a common fund. . . . The regulation of industry was always paramount to social and religious aims; the chief object of the craft guild was to supervise the processes of manufacture and to control the monopoly of working and dealing in a particular branch of industry.'

Guilds' Powers Limited.

"I note that laws were passed finally, in 1503, restricting the authority of the guilds to fix prices. It would be well if the public examined the course of such artificial measures through history. Under the pressure of economic forces, the guilds eventually decayed, of course. The encyclopedia states regarding their dissolution:

"'The medieval form of association was incompatible with the new ideas of individual liberty and free competition. . . . Intent only on promoting their own interests and disregarding the welfare of the community, the old companies [guilds] had become an unmitigated evil.'"

In the light of history, Mr. Cullen said, industrial organization under NRA can hardly be called even a worthy experiment.

STATE LOTTERY APPROVED TO PAY MAINE PENSIONS

House Vote Gives Plan a Majority of 3.

Augusta, Me., March 21.—(AP)—A state lottery bill to finance old age pensions won a surprising three vote victory today in the house, but legislative leaders predicted its demise in the senate.

The measure, providing for a referendum, apportioned 55 per cent of the lottery receipts to supply funds for the $15 a month pension for persons 65 years or over which was enacted by the previous legislature two years ago, but for which no money was appropriated.

Thirty-five per cent of the income would be paid in prizes and 10 per cent would be set aside for administration costs.

Governor Expects Defeat.

Democratic Governor Louis J. Brann was noncommittal toward the measure.

Sources close to him, however, said he did not expect the bill to be enacted.

Representative George E. Hill, floor leader of the majority Republican membership, voted against the bill, while the Democratic floor leader, Representative John Clark Scates, voted for it. Neither engaged in the torrid debate which preceded the 74 to 71 vote.

Proponents argued the bill provided the only means at this late stage of the legislative session to raise money quickly to pay old age pensions and that it would "keep money in Maine for the use of Maine people that is now going into other lotteries."

Estimate Million Income.

Estimates were that the bill would bring in $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 annually, while old age pensions would cost approximately $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year.

Those who spoke against the bill said it was but a "gambling" measure "which cannot permanently help the mothers of Maine."

Several proponents frankly admitted they bought lottery tickets "and always will." Some said they had purcased a number of "church lottery" tickets. One member displayed a Canadian lottery ticket and expressed belief there were "a dozen more in this house."

A bill similar to the one approved today was passed by the house at a special session a year ago, but was rejected by the senate, with the house later concurring.

ROBINSON FLAYS 'SHARE WEALTH' PLAN OF LONG

Warns Kingfish's Scheme Is Communistic.

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. Long's "share the wealth plan" and the Townsend old age pension plan were denounced as utopian and visionary by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, majority leader in the United States senate, in an address here tonight at a dinner of the drug, chemical, and allied trades section of the New York Board of Trade.

While characterizing the Townsend plan as impracticable and bound to lead to an unbearable tax burden and destructive inflation, Senator Robinson denounced the Long plan as communistic, impossible of execution without wrecking the entire economic structure of the nation, and carrying within itself, if attempted, not the establishment of social justice, but of a universal "equality of misery."

Says Long Plans to Run.

Assailing Senator Long for his preparations to run for the presidency of the United States on an independent ticket with his "share the wealth plan" as his platform, Senator Robinson declared that Senator Long was trying to send the people "on a chase after a bag of gold at the rainbow's end," and predicted that "in the end they will realize his duplicity and recognize the deceit that has been practiced upon them when the fragments of their shattered hopes have been enveloped in despair."

"The share the wealth plan has been approved by many to whose attention its vagueness and impracticability have not been called," Senator Robinson said. "One renders no service by misleading credulous people to believe things that are fanciful, far-fetched, and untrue."

How It Works in Russia.

Senator Robinson said the inevitable consequence of the Long plan would be a repetition in this country of conditions now prevailing in Russia, under which the people are "perishing from starvation and oppression, while the few who administer the plan are enjoying what little fruits are produced by the workers."

The first result of the Long plan, he said, "would be the breaking up of the major industries and their management, the destruction of going concerns, the discontinuance of operations, and increase in unemployment beyond the power of any one to anticipate or overcome."

The Long plan fundamentally is communistic, Senator Robinson emphasized, saying that "it has the approval of many who would not recognize and regard themselves as communists."

Closely Akin to Sovietism.

"Nevertheless, it is closely akin to sovietism, in that it proposes that the government shall confiscate a large part of the privately owned property in the United States," he said. "It differs from sovietism in the particular that the property is not to be permanently owned by the national government as in Russia, but is to be given away in the form of homes, automobiles, radios, and incomes, to those who have not sufficient resources to acquire these comforts for themselves."

TROOPS PATROL LEVEES TO STOP DYNAMITE MOBS

Greenwood, Miss., March 21.—[Special.]—The flood war, which arrayed neighbor against neighbor in a water-mad frenzy, was believed under control tonight as Mississippi National Guardsmen patrolled the dynamite torn levees along the turbulent Tallahatchie river.

The militiamen were called out after a motor caravan of determined planters, whose upriver farmlands are covered with flood waters, descended on LeFlore county late yesterday and dynamited 40 foot crevasses in two sections of the Tallahatchie levee.

Although the major flood threat was believed passed in this section, dynamiting still would release above flood stage waters on farmlands.

Though Coldwater and Tallahatchie rivers along the watershed of north Mississippi were falling rapidly, conditions were unimproved in Tallahatchie county south of Glendora, where about 50,000 acres of farm land are covered.

250 TONS OF DUST FALL EACH HOUR IN SOUTHWESTERN OHIO

Dayton, O., March 21.—[Special.]—Approximately 250 tons of dust fell here each hour today as clouds of grit, blown from far western states, swept over areas as far east as northeastern Ohio. Other Great Lakes cities and St. Louis on the Mississippi reported the presence of a murky pall due to the eastward sweep of the plains soil.

The United States weather bureau reported the dust laden layer of atmosphere in this vicinity was 7,000 feet thick. Its content was slowly diminishing, however, as it continued to drift eastward. The estimate of about 250 tons of dust an hour was made by Dr. Paul Koller of the geology and mineralogy department at the University of Dayton.

Farmers in the west reported that live stock refused to eat grass or hay on which a heavy layer of silt had been deposited. Oklahoma apparently was more affected today than Kansas, which yesterday bore the brunt of a near record breaking storm that caused three deaths, closed schools, stopped trafic, and paralyzed business.

POLICE RETAIN RICHES CARRIED BY MRS. M'HIE

Mother's Claim Denied; Wait for Court.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 21.—[Special.]—Police today refused to release the fortune in currency and jewels taken from Mrs. Isabel May McHie, 68, estranged wife of a wealthy Hammond, Ind., publisher, after she had treated the valuables so carelessly that she was removed from a Chicago-Montreal train here.

Police Chief Hugh Gordon ignored the demands of Mrs. McHie's mother, Mrs. Susan Mulhall of Washington, and a friend, Mrs. Eugene Amboss, that the property be turned over to them. The valuables consist of $173,505 in currency and gems estimated by railroad detectives to be worth $500,000.

Scatters Money on Train.

The two women came here from Hammond upon receipt of word that Mrs. McHie had been removed from the Montreal-bound train after members of the train crew saw her scattering bills of large denomination in the aile of the car and attempting to stuff others into the car ventilator.

Mrs. McHie was taken to a hospital. Later she was placed in the custody of her mother and Mrs. Amboss. They subsequently demanded that the police relinquish possession of the valuables.

Chief Gordon said, however, he would keep the gems and the money, most of which was in bills with denominations ranging from $10,000 to $500, in the police sale until ordered by officials of the Grand Trunk railway or the courts to restore it to Mrs. McHie.

Seeking Cash in Canada.

Police said they understood Mrs. McHie was on her way to Montreal to convert into cash the accounts she has there. The distraut woman refused to give an explanation of why she carried about so much money or what she intended doing with it.

She was adjudged incompetent to handle her fortune in 1931 and was sent to a Baltimore sanitarium. She escaped and later was adjudged sane. She blamed her husband for her troubles. When she separated from him in 1923 she willed her estate to build an animal hospital because, she said, "The more I see of humans, the better I like dogs."

MRS. GOLDBLATT FILES CROSS-BILL IN DIVORCE CASE

Mrs. Sylvia Goldblatt, 39 years old, yesterday filed in the Superior court a cross bill for separate maintenance to the divorce suit of her husband, Morris, 42 years old, 3314 Lake Shore drive, president of the Goldblatt Brothers department stores. In her bill, drawn by the law firm of Socrates, Davis & Cohen, she seeks custody of their two children, Noel, 9 years old, and Gloria, 4, now in the father's custody. Mrs. Goldblatt denies all the allegations in her husband's bill, including that of misconduct. She also asks a jury trial of the case.

SEVEN AGENCIES TO UNITE IN WAR ON BLOWING SOIL

U. S. Acts to Curb Dust Storms of Future.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—(AP)—A combined drive by seven governmental agencies to fasten the midwest's rich farm soil against the swoop of dust storms was determined upon today within the administration.

Even as it was decided to concentrate the soil-anchoring campaign under the department of agriculture, the dark outriders of the most recent dirt storm still hung over parts of the middle west and southwest.

Secretaries Ickes and Wallace, operating jointly, determined to transfer the soil erosion service of the department of interior and a portion of the Civilian Conservation corps working on soil erosion to the agricultural department.

Combine Several Bureaus.

There they will form part of an entirely new organization which will include those parts of the AAA, forest service, bureau of chemistry and soils, bureau of agricultural engineering, and bureau of plant industry which are now concerned with various phases of the soil erosion problem.

All in the past have been working on the general problem, but with practicaly no coördination and often at cross purposes, officials of both departments said.

Department of agriculture officials said it was unlikely that a bureau of soil erosion would be organized, adding that such a move probably would require legislative action. The new organization can be made just as effective by grouping all the agencies under one head and coördinating their work, they said.

Although the dust storms still whirled high and wide, the stifling conditions of yesterday had abated over most of the area. The edges of the storm sifted down over scattered areas of the east, including northern New York and Delaware.

Damage Inestimable.

The damage of the dust was beyond the estimation of crop experts at present. Gov. Landon of Kansas appealed to Washington for assistance. At Arkansas City, Kas., prayers for rain were offered.

The agriculture department hurried to press meanwhile with an emergency bulletin on methods of checking and preventing wind erosion of soil.

Dr. Charles E. Kellogg, acting chief of the soil survey of the bureau of chemistry and soils, recommended to farmers a study of their soils, use of special types of plows and cultivators, planting of shelter belts, more carefully planned crop rotations, and better control of grazing.

Suggestions from other agencies included the planting of some cover crop, such as grain sorghum, milo maize or kaffir corn.

DEATH DRIVER EXONERATED.

A reckless driving charge against John Ryan, 32 years old, 838 Wrightwood avenue, whose taxicab struck and fatally injured Olaf Webster, 70 years old, 3255 North Clark street, at Halsted street and Aldine avenue, was nol prossed by Judge Cecil C. Smith, in the Safety court yesterday after the judge was informed a coroner's jury had exonerated Ryan.

SPRING ARRIVES, BRINGS DAY TO FIT OCCASION

Spring arrived officially at 7:18 a. m. yesterday and brought to Chicago a day to fit the occasion. The temperature reached a maximum of 62 at noon.

According to the official forecast, today will be cloudy and somewhat warmer, probably followed by showers. Clearing and colder weather is expected tomorrow.

At the zoo in Brookfield, it was reported, signs of spring are arriving fast. A mandrill baboon was born on Tuesday and a Mona monkey on Wednesday.

Spring cleaning, spading, lawn rolling, trimming, and tree spraying began in earnest in the Chicago park district yesterday when 3,000 relief workers started work under the direction of James Gallagher, chief of the landscape division. George T. Donoghue, general superintendent for the park district, said that within the next ten days 2,000 more men will be added to the crew.

COMMITTEE O.K.'S PLAN TO CHECK PROFITS OF WAR

Ready to Draft Bill for the Senate.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—(AP)—Essentials of a drastic plan to take the profits out of war were approved today by the senate munitions committee.

The plan, drafted by John T. Flynn, would limit personal incomes in war-time to $10,000. It would take by taxation virtually all corporation profits.

As Flynn concluded his testimony today his proposal received the unstinted indorsement of Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.]. Chairman Nye of North Dakota commented it was "generally" favored by the committee.

Promises Bill by Tuesday.

Flynn promised to put in the hands of the committee not later than Tuesday completely drafted legislation incorporating his idea that the nation should "pay as it fights" instead of leaving a bill for future generations. He added: "The army of household servants" would be absorbed into war-time industry.

"It is proposed to strike at the economic heart of the war problem," Senator Vandenberg said, "by the simple, fundamental device of requiring that no future war shall be fought on borrowed money, but shall be paid for substantially by current taxes.

"It is the process of making war on borrowed money which primarily creates the sinister inflation out of which grows, first, the opportunity for swollen profits; second, the economic dislocation of the war era, and third, the post-war calamity of deflation."

Will Question Baruch.

The committee has virtually completed the preliminary stage of its investigation. It plans only to question Bernard M. Baruch briefly next Tuesday before submitting its legislative plan to congress.

Nye said the bills presented by Flynn "probably will be written up quite a bit by the committee," but as to the plan: "Generally it is indorsed by the committee."

President Roosevelt is committed to the general principle of eliminating war profits, but he has not openly indorsed the specific proposals made.

From the White House has come information that Baruch, a New York financier, although head of a committee chosen by the President to design a means of taking war's profits, nevertheless would be "speaking only for himself" when he appears before the committee.

ELKS AID WIFE OF MAN ACCUSED AS RED LEADER

A donation of $65.30 was made by the Waukegan Elks club last night to a woman who declared that her husband had refused to support her and her two children on the grounds that he needed his money to finance communistic propaganda.

The woman is Mrs. Ruby Watters, 30 years old, now living with her parents at 2907 Elizabeth avenue, Zion. Her children are Eugene, 6 years old, and Gail, 1½ years old.

Last November Mrs. Watters was granted a separate maintenance decree when she testified that her husband, Oliver, spent all his money spreading communistic doctrines and expressed the belief that the state ought to take care of his family.

The court granted her $60 a month support money, which was paid, she said, until last month. Her husband quit his job and left town, Mrs. Watters said. She also described how he had held communist meetings in their home and had classes of children in Chicago to whom he taught the doctrines of communism and atheism.

The donation collected from members of the Elks club was given Mrs. Watters by Attorney George McGaghey, local head of the Elks.

Aimee McPherson Loses in Battle Over Property

Los Angeles, Cal., March 21.—[Special.]—Superior Judge J. A. Smith today ordered property valued at $18,000 returned to the estate of the late Mrs. Catherine A. McAdams, finding in his decision that Mrs. McAdams was not of sound mind when she deeded the property to the Rev. Aimee Semple McPherson.

Wins Divorce.

VERNA HILLIE.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 21.—[Special.]—Affectionate use of the word "stooge" today cost Frank Joseph Gill Jr., radio scenarist, his wife when Verna Hillie, actress, won a divorce in Superior court. Miss Hillie testified that Gill first called her "stooge" affectionately and then applied the name to the family dog as well. "I reminded him he called both me and the dog by the same name," Miss Hillie testified, "and my husband said it was all the same."

GIRL TESTIFIES AGAINST FRIEND AT MURDER TRIAL

Howell, Mich., March 21.—[Special.]—Miss Grace Curran, pretty Kalamazoo laundry employé, testified today against her former sweetheart, Clarence Frechette. He is charged with the murder of his employer, Robert Brown, Kalamazoo truck line operator. The state called her to sustain its contention that the killing was planned.

GRACE CURRAN.

Miss Curran testified Frechette told her on Jan. 28, the day before the state contends Brown was slain near here, that he would be "'leaving soon"—she never would see him again. He said almost the same things, she swore, when he returned to Kalamazoo driving Brown's car.

Miss Curran said she rode with Frechette in Brown's car. She identified two letters offered in evidence, addressed to her by Frechette. One was from Chicago, the other from Salt Lake City, Utah. In the latter Frechette told of killing Brown and said he was planning to sail for China. She testified she had met Brown only once, at a beer garden and dance hall near Paw Paw.

Frechette, who was arrested at the California-Nevada line, has contended that he quarreled with Brown over an insulting remark concerning Miss Curran and the shooting resulted.

LINDBERGH BABY IS LIVING, SAYS UNSIGNED NOTE

Mrs. Hauptmann Making Inquiry in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., March 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, who came here to raise funds for her husband's appeal from the death sentence, said today that she is conducting a private investigation of an unsigned letter which described a "living Lindbergh baby" in Detroit as proof that the recently convicted German alien is not guilty of kidnaping and slaying Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

The letter asserted that the body identified by Col. Lindbergh as that of his son had been exhumed from a Bronx cemetery, clothed in the Lindbergh baby's clothing and left near Hopewell. This was done, it was said, "to throw a scare into Lindy, who was known to have marked the ransom money."

Reporter Gets Letter.

The anonymous letter was received by a New York newspaper man who reported the Hauptmann trial. He made copies of it and gave them to interested parties on each side of the case, offering no expression of opinion as to the accuracy of its assertions.

New Jersey officials who examined the letter said they were inclined to doubt it. They declared that the Detroit gangsters and others mentioned in the communication had been investigated long ago and exonerated of suspicion.

"There is no doubt the body found in New Jersey is that of the Lindbergh baby," said a New Jersey official. "I witnessed the identification myself."

Refers to Crank Mail.

Another police official expressed the opinion the letter was just another of the large volume of "crank mail," which has been received in connection with the case.

But Mrs. Hauptmann was certain the information in the letter had some basis in fact and would help her husband escape his sentence of death in the electric chair.

The letter related that the confession of the actual facts of the sensational abduction was purchased by a Detroit gangster from one of the kidnapers shortly before the kidnaper died. The gangster was subsequently killed by underworld characters on Dec. 24, 1934, it was said.

The "confession" is said to have stated that the Lindbergh baby was taken from Hopewell on the night of March 1, 1932, to Brooklyn. Then the body of a baby that had died a year earlier and had been buried in the Bronx was left, clothed in the Lindbergh baby's garments, near Hopewell, the letter said.

Reports Child Abandoned.

The real Lindbergh child was said to have been taken to Petros, Tenn., supposedly the headquarters of a mail robber involved in the abduction. Later the kidnaper, now dead, took the baby to Detroit and abandoned him in a moving picture house with two other boys, according to the "confession."

Unable to identify the baby, Detroit authorities placed him in an orphanage, it was said. The baby boy had told police his name was "Johnny."

A check of records of abandoned children showed a boy, listed only as "Johnny," was found here July 16, 1933. At the children's home where he was placed it was said he is now out for adoption.

LOTTERY PRISONERS GET DELAY.

MAD BLACKSMITH KILLS ONE PRIEST, WOUNDS ANOTHER

YORKTON, Sask., March 21.—(AP)—One Greek Catholic priest lay dead and another near death here tonight, victims of a sudden assault in a monastery by an apparently crazed blacksmith. Steve Elash, the 35 year old assailant, was not expected to recover from the revolver wound in his breast he inflicted as police were about to capture him.

Father Alver Delforge, 42, Belgian priest assisting at the monastery about a year, was instantly killed when shot through the skull. Father John Bala, 40, head of the mission for some years, was shot in the abdomen. He is not expected to live.

According to the police version, Elash entered the thirty-two year old mission house, generally referred to as a monastery, about 10 a. m. He asked to see a priest and was greeted by Father Bala. Elash immediately fired one shot from a revolver into the priest's abdomen. Father Bala ran to Father Delforge and as the latter neared Elash he was shot through the skull.

Gas heat frees thousands from furnace worry during shifty, changeable spring weather

WARM at noon . . . colder by dark. That's what thousands of homes have to face every Spring. The ups and downs of the temperature, quick changes during the day are a constant worry to those who heat by the old-fashioned methods. The furnace must be guarded, constantly watched so that fires will not burn too low during the warm spells. Then when it gets cooler there's the task of firing up again. And often it can not be done quickly enough to keep the house comfortable.

With gas heat this condition never exists. Gas heat is automatic. When the temperature shifts, gas heat goes on or off by itself. No running up and down basement stairs. No shoveling. No chopping kindling. You simply set the thermostat for the temperature you want throughout the day and night—and it stays there, without any further attention on your part. In addition, gas heat offers you a clean home. Free from soot and dust. Free from fuel smudge and grime. Housecleaning is far easier. Bills for cleaning and decorating are greatly reduced.

Find out for yourself how easy it is to have gas heat—how completely carefree you can make your home. Investigate the liberal trial offer. You can decide for yourself. Simply phone your nearest gas company office for full details of the offer—and for free estimate of what it will cost to heat your home with gas.

You Invest Nothing

To Try Gas Heat!

Gas heat can be installed without your investing one cent for equipment. To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense, remove it at our expense, if you don't like it. Accept this startling offer. Phone your nearest gas office TODAY.

THE SERVICE BEHIND GAS HOME HEATING

Our interest in your gas heat appliance, instead of ending when you install it as with other heating installations, really begins at that time.

We are on duty twenty-four hours a day, every day in the year, to give you service—immediately. The engineer who checks your installation, as well as the salesman, is interested in your heating problems. He recommends ways to save fuel, ways to get a more satisfactory service, even to telling you about insulation to make your house warmer in Winter and cooler in Summer.

We supply the fuel you use—as much or as little as you want. You never have to think about ordering it—your automatically-controlled burner takes care of that.

In other words, we are not just selling you a heating appliance or a certain amount of gas. We are selling you a comfortable home in all sorts of Winter weather, plus a continuous service to make sure you get it.

CITY PAYS 122% MORE TO STATE UNDER SALES TAX

Plan for Boost Assailed as Unfair.

Substitution of the 2 per cent state sales tax for the direct state property levy, which was expected to benefit Chicago, has actually increased the city's contribution to 1933 state taxes by 122 per cent over 1932, it was asserted yesterday in a bulletin issued by the Tax Service Association of Illinois.

The proposed increase of the sales tax to 3 per cent for relief purposes would mean a 234 per cent boost in collections from Chicagoans this year for 1934, over those of 1932, the final year of the direct levy, according to the bulletin.

City Pays 70 Per Cent.

The state realized $39,314,017 last year from the 2 per cent sales tax, the bulletin said. On the reported official estimate that Chicago pays from 70 to 71 per cent of the total sales tax, the city's payments last year aggregated $27,519,812. Chicago's estimated share of the state tax in the last year of the property levy of 50 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation was only $12,374,199, the bulletin said

This is an indicated increase in Chicago's tax contribution to the state under the sales tax of $15,145,612.

Concerning the proposals pending before the state legislature to boost the sales tax, the bulletin said: "Cloaked under the guise of providing for emergency relief needs in Illinois, bills introduced in the state legislature . . . will serve to saddle upon Chicago an additional tax load of at least $28,905,518, as compared with the state direct property levy of 1932. Provisions of house bill 411, which broaden the base of the sales tax to include more than 100 occupations and professions [now exempt], would, if enacted into law, raise this estimated minimum to a very appreciable extent."

Cost Per Capita Is Higher.

Expressed in terms of cost to individuals, the per capita contribution of Chicagoans to the state under the direct levy was $3.51, and that of a four-member family $14.04. Chicagoans' per capita contribution was $7.81 under the 2 per cent sales tax, or $31.24 for the average family, according to the bulletin's estimates.

Under the proposed sales tax increase, the part of the tax to be borne by the average individual would be at least $11.71, or $46.84 for each average family, it is estimated. This is in addition to taxes paid under the levies for other taxing bodies.

IN ANNULMENT TANGLE

ANNETTE MURPHY.
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

FRANK LAINO, ALIAS FRANK RIO.

Judge Reconsiders

Reconsidering his previous refusal Superior Judge Joseph B. David indicated yesterday that he will grant a marriage annulment to Robert J. Corbett, 21 years old, son of Dr. Mitchell S. Corbett, 1119 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park.

Judge David's decision was made after Corbett's "wife," the former Annette Murphy, 18 years old, 2431 Grove avenue, Berwyn, admitted that she had married Corbett in an elopement last Aug. 5 without having her previous marriage to Frank Laino dissolved. Laino, serving a sentence in the Joliet penitentiary for robbery with a gun, was taken into court yesterday but refused to testify. Mrs. Mary Laino, 535 North Ashland avenue, wife of the convict, testified that Laino had married Miss Murphy bigamously.

Attorneys for the former Miss Murphy pleaded that her marriage to Laino was not legal for this reason, and therefore she is Corbett's wife. Judge David announced that unless legal decisions to support this argument are produced in court next Thursday, he will grant Corbett an annulment. The judge had denied his original plea for annulment, made on the ground that he was intoxicated at the time of his marriage.

CITY WILL SPEND $1,620,000 LESS ON TAX WARANTS

Interest Rate Expected to Be 3 Per Cent.

A saving of $1,620,000 in the cost of financing the city's corporate [operating] fund for 1935 was in prospect yesterday as Mayor Kelly made the prediction that 1935 tax anticipation warants will be sold at an interest rate not exceeding 3 per cent, as compared with the 6 per cent rate paid when the mayor went into office.

The city controler's office disclosed that it has already received numerous bids for the 1935 warants at 3 per cent. It was hinted there that the rate might even go lower.

Barometer of City's Finances.

No 1935 warants have yet been placed on the market, but it is expected that $27,000,000 worth must be sold to finance the city government through 1935. Since the earliest date on which warants can be retired averages two years from their issuance, the saving on interest alone on the 1935 issue at 3 per cent would total $1,620,000, as compared with a 6 per cent rate.

The decreasing cost of city financing was attributed by the mayor to the economy program instituted by the city government and to the plans he recently announced for refunding the city's debt of $125,000,000.

"The tax warant interest rate can be regarded as a barometer of the city's financial condition," Mayor Kelly said. "The decreasing rate demonstrates that economy brings not only direct but indirect savings. Continued economy and the refinancing plan will mean further savings in financing costs."

May Cut Bond Interest.

The economy program has not only decreased tax warant interest rates, but has reduced the rate on city refunding bonds from 6 per cent to 4½ per cent, records in the controler's office show. Since the quotation on city of Chicago 4½s, due in 1954, is now 114, it is expected that the bond interest rate will also go lower.

Since Mayor Kelly went into office $8,546,900 of outstanding bonds have been retired and $6,097,000 of these bonds were called before maturity. During 1934 the cost of operating the city government was $15,600,000 less than in 1929.

Some of the savings the city expects to make by continuing its economy program will make it possible to add 2,500 patrolmen to the police department, the mayor said.

TERRORIZE WORKERS; SEIZE $400.

Four gunmen invaded the office of the Hyland Electrical Supply company at 700 Jackson boulevard yesterday, terrorized a dozen employés, including six women, and escaped with $400.

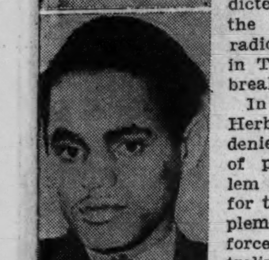
12 INDICTED IN HARLEM RIOTS; TROOPS DENIED

Prosecutor Opens War on Radical Fomenters.

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Peace reigned over Harlem today as the grand jury indicted twelve of the rioters and radicals involved in Tuesday's outbreak.



LINO RIVERA.

In Albany, Gov. Herbert Lehman denied the request of panicky Harlem merchants for troops to supplement the large force of police patroling the trouble area, and colored legislators called for legislative investigation of alleged discrimination against their people.

At the same time, District Attorney William C. Dodge, convinced that the riot was fomented by communists, announced that he had accepted "the challenge" of the Reds and would extend a sweeping grand jury investigation into their activities throughout the city with the hope of obtaining wholesale indictments.

Confers with Police Head.

The district attorney announced his plan for a city-wide grand jury investigation after a conference of two hours with seven police officials, including Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine.

"Will this grand jury investigation be aimed at communist agitators?" the district attorney was asked.

"I am not interested in labels," came the curt answer. "We are interested in any persons, no matter what they call themselves, who believe and advocate overthrow of the government. We conferred on that situation as a whole."

"The inquiry will be aimed at those who want to overthrow government by force and violence," he said. "A challenge has been thrown down to law and order and the grand jury, the district attorney and the police department have accepted that challenge."

Hear 26 Witnesses.

Twenty-six witnesses were heard by the grand jury today before the first dozen indictments were returned. For the most part they were uniformed and plainclothes members of the police department. One of them carried a folded American flag into the grand jury room.

One of the grand jury witnesses was Lino Rivera, the 16 year old Porto Rican youth, whose theft of a ten cent jackknife in the Kress store in 125th street provided the spark that touched off the rioting.

"We have evidence," said Mr. Dodge, "that two hours after that boy stole that knife, the Reds had placed inflammatory leaflets on the streets. We know who printed those leaflets and where they were printed.

"The Reds have been boring into our institutions for a long time, but when they begin to incite riots, it is time to stop them."

Would Take Relief Away.

He also said that "those people found guilty of participating in the riot and who are on home relief rolls, should be removed at once." He said he would recommend this to the mayor.

He also intends to ask the commissioner of immigration, he said, to deport any aliens found guilty of participation in the rioting.

"Half the trouble in the labor unions here is being caused by the Reds," he remarked.

Mr. Dodge said he had also heard that communists had attempted to intimidate judges of the Court of General Sessions while cases against members of their group were pending. In one case, he related, they had even attempted to intimidate Presiding Justice Edward Finch of the Appellate division of the Supreme court.

CAPT. PODERJAY IS SENTENCED ON BIGAMY CHARGE

2½ to 5 Year Term for Murder Suspect.

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Capt. Ivan Ivanovitch Poderjay, suspected murderer of Agnes Solonia Tufverson, was sentenced to two and to five years in Sing Sing today by General Sessions Judge George L. Donellan on a charge of bigamy.

The 35 year old engineer and inventor had pleaded guilty to the charge on Feb. 1.

Hints from Bench.

Before imposing sentence Judge Donellan said:

"It is my judgment that this defendant should be before this court on another charge."

Poderjay took the sentence calmly. He stood in his favorite attitude—with folded arms—and gave no sign of emotion. He did not, however, look quite as bored as he has at previous court sessions.

Irving W. Halpern, chief probation officer, declared in his report that Miss Tufverson's disappearance "was not voluntary, but directly caused by the defendant, who had no affection for her and could profit financially by her wealth."

Married Dec. 4, 1933.

Mr. Halpern reported that Poderjay married Miss Tufverson, a lawyer, on Dec. 4, 1933, at the Little Church Around the Corner and that he had previously married Zuzanne M. Ferrand at a registry office in London. The earlier marriage took place on March 22, 1933.

The report, which described Poderjay's courtship of Miss Tufverson, their marriage and the circumstances in which she mysteriously disappeared, analyzed the character of the defendant and that of his first wife, who lives in Vienna, and went into considerable detail about their personal habits.

FIND SEAL FROM GEDALIAH'S REIGN, LAST JUDAH KING

Claim Find Puts New Light on Biblical History.

JERUSALEM, March 21.—(AP)—One of the most dramatic episodes in biblical history was believed thrown open for new study as the result of the recent discovery at ancient Lachish of a seal from the reign of Gedaliah, last of the kings of Judah, who was murdered by a pretender to the throne. This was revealed today by a member of the Palestine archæological expedition.

Characterized by members of the expedition as one of the most remarkable finds of its nature, the ancient seal was inscribed upon it in Hebrew: "To Gedaliah, who rules the house." It is presumed that the seal belonged to Gedaliah Ben Ahikem who ruled the remnant of the kingdom of Judah after Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, destroyed Jerusalem.

Ruled After 586 B. C.

It is believed that this is the same Gedaliah whose memory Jews still honor by observing the feast of Gedaliah.

Gedaliah, who ruled for a few years after 586 B. C., was appointed to his post by Nebuchadnezzar with Mizpah instead of Jerusalem as his capital. The Bible, in II. Kings, xxv., 22, states:

"And as for the people that were left in the land of Judah whom Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had left, even over them he made Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, ruler."

He was believed to have the rôle of high commissioner rather than king. When Sir Herbert Samuel was appointed by Great Britain as high commissioner over Palestine in 1920, he was referred to as the first Jewish high commissioner of Palestine since Gedaliah.

Assassination is Described.

One of the revengeful pretenders to the throne caused the assassination of Gedaliah, as it is described in II. Kings, xxv., 25:

"But it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the seed royal, came and ten men with him and smote Godaliah that he died, and the Jews and the Chaldeans that were with him at Mizpah; and all the people both small and great and the captains of the armies arose and came to Egypt; for they were afraid of the Chaldeans."

Gedaliah had tried, by peaceful methods, to dissuade the Jewish rebels from fighting Nebuchadnezzar, for he had said, "Serve the king of Babylon and it shall be well with you."

The discovery of the new seal at Lachish, now known as Tel Adduweir, is believed to indicate that Gedaliah's rule was actually extended beyond the city of Mizpah. The seal was the token left by the ancient assayers to show that a jar or other receptacle was of correct weight or size.

OPEN NEW FIGHT FOR SETBACKS AT 40 EAST OAK

Attorneys for owners of property adjoining the 40 East Oak Street building yesterday filed a petition before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward seeking to have the temporary trustee in bankruptcy comply with an order of the United States Supreme court which directed that set-backs be put in the 23 story building from the fourteenth story up.

Attorney Walter Eckert, counsel for the American National Bank and Trust company, the trustee under section 77-B of the amended bankrtupcy law, opposed the petition on the ground that bankruptcy proceedings have superseded the previous litigation and the bankruptcy court has exclusive jurisdiction of the property. Judge Woodward took the petition under advisement.

The attorneys for the property owners declare the reorganization plan submitted in the bankruptcy proceedings does not provide for the change until sixteen years have passed. The order for the set-backs was obtained on the ground that the city zoning ordinance had been violated.

MASSAGE PARLOR CASE VIOLATORS GIVEN PROBATION

Seven Convicted to Date; All Get Leniency.

Municipal Judge Edward S. Scheffler yesterday granted probation to two women convicted of violating the city ordinance on decent management of massage parlors and continued for the fourth time charges of disorderly conduct and of operation of a disorderly house against three others.

Judge Scheffler, sitting in the Women's court in the police building at 11th and State streets, has heard every one of the cases brought into his court by detectives who raided a series of disorderly houses operated in the guise of massage parlors in a campaign to close vice resorts. Municipal court records disclose that in no instance have defendants been fined or imprisoned.

7 Convicted; Get Probation.

An examination of the court records yesterday showed that in nine raids a total of 12 prisoners—all of them women—were seized. Seven of these women were found guilty of violating the city code after police produced evidence in Judge Scheffler's court. In each case the judge granted probation for periods ranging from six months to one year.

Clerks in the court explained that the grants of probation automatically suspend fines or prison sentences. If the defendants serve out the period of probation without violating parole the punishment never is inflicted. If the terms of the probation are violated the prisoner may be sent to jail without further trial.

The women convicted yesterday were Pearl Thomas, 40 years old, 32 North State street, and Jessie Arnold, 1229 North Clark street. Judge Scheffler fined each woman $200, but nullified his fine by granting both probation for six months.

Charges against Helen Williams, 42 years old; Shirley Lewis, 23 years old, and Lee Ray, 24 years old, were continued until March 28. The three women were seized on Feb. 28 in a flat at 935 North State street. They appeared in court on March 1, March 8, and yesterday.

Because the women pleaded that they were entrapped into violations by the arresting policemen, Judge Scheffler continued the case on March 1. On March 9 he was given an opinion from the corporation counsel's office which said that the entrapment pleas was no defense, inasmuch as the policemen who visited the massage parlors were treated as was every other customer.

The continuance yesterday was allowed by the court when Attorney Morris J. Slater, representing the three women, asked time to prepare a brief in answer to the corporation counsel's opinion.

HUSBAND GETS 8 YEARS TO PAY ALIMONY DEBT

Eight years from now, at his present rate, Fred Fahlstrom, 2422 West 34th place, a plumber, will have paid an alimony debt of $2,100 to his divorced third wife, Mrs. Ruby Fahlstrom, 8755 Harper avenue. He is now living with wife No. 4 and paying alimony to No. 3.

Mrs. Fahlstrom No. 3 cited him before Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday for nonpayment of the $2,100 which had accumulated at the rate of $10 a week since the divorce more than four years ago. Fahlstrom pleaded that he is making only $18 a week, that he has been paying the $10 a week alimony since last Feb. 1, which leaves him only $8 a week with which to support his present wife.

Judge Finnegan directed that Fahlstrom continue to pay $10 a week, but that the alimony be cut to $5 and the other $5 a week be applied to retirement of the debt. At that rate Fahlstrom will be out of debt in eight years and one month. The payments were ordered for the support of Fahlstrom's daughter Jean, now 15 years old.

"I SUFFERED WITH CONSTIPATION* FOR SIXTEEN YEARS"

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief to Mr. McNeil

We quote from his unsolicited letter: "I suffered with constipation* for 16 years. Finally, I started using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in connection with other nourishing foods.

"I consider myself a well man at this time, not having had an attack for over two years. I am sure ALL-BRAN helped wonderfully by overcoming constipation*."—Mr. L. M. McNeil, Lockwood, W. Va.

Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to aid elimination. Also vitamin B and iron.

This "bulk" resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables, so it is more effective. ALL-BRAN continues to get results when used for months.

Isn't this food safer than risking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. If seriously constipated, use with each meal. See your doctor, if you do not get relief.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ONLY 20 OF FUTURE TEACHERS PUNISHED FOR TAKING DRINKS

Normal, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—Denying that 100 students at the Illinois State Normal university had been placed on probation for drinking, President R. W. Fairchild said today only 20 had been punished. Dr. Fairchild likewise denied that there had been censorship of the school paper.

A report from Urbana last night stated that John W. Roberts, editor of the school paper, had resigned because of censorship.

Dr. Fairchild, in Springfield today for a conference with John J. Hallihan, director of the state department of education, said Roberts resigned because he does not have views in common with other students who are studying to become teachers. Dr. Fairchild denied Roberts had been removed but admitted that there had been faculty objection to his proposed handling of the drinking situation.

"He proposed to run 'scare heads' which we thought were not the kind of things to put in a student paper," Dr. Fairchild declared. "In addition he also proposed to leave a blank space in the paper as expressive of what he would have liked to have written about the action against drinking."

"The placing of students on probation for drinking is nothing new and neither was there anything unusual about it," he said.

ASSEMBLY GETS SECOND MICHIGAN "LOVE SUIT" BILL

Follows Indiana, Illinois, and Other States.

Lansing, Mich., March 21.—[Special.]—Michigan legislators are almost certain to act at the current session on the subject of prohibiting breach of promise, alienation of affections, and similar suits, thus falling in line with Illinois, Indiana, and other states.

The second bill designed to end the "love balm racket," as it has been termed by several lawmakers, was offered today in the house by Representatives Joseph F. Martin and Joseph C. Murphy, Detroit Democrats. A similar measure, modeled after an Indiana statute, is under consideration by a senate committee after its introduction by Senator William Palmer [Dem., Flint].

The bill offered today sets up in its introductory clause the theory that abuse of the present statutes permitting recovery of damages in such actions has made it "public policy" to prohibit them.

The introductory clause states:

"The remedies heretofore provided by law for the enforcement of actions based upon alleged alienation of affections, criminal conversation, seduction, and breach of contract to marry, having been subject to grave abuses, causing extreme annoyance, embarrassment, humiliation, and pecuniary damage to many persons wholly innocent and free of any wrongdoing, who were merely the victims of circumstances, and such remedies having been exercised by unscrupulous persons for their unjust enrichment, and such remedies having furnished vehicles for the commission or attempted commission of crime and in many cases having resulted in the perpetration of frauds, it is hereby declared as the public policy of the state that the best interests of the people be best served by abolition of such remedies."

The measure would allow 60 days for conclusion of pending cases after its effective date.

LIPTON PAINTED AS 'PATHETIC MAN' IN SUIT FOR $50,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21.—The late Sir Thomas Lipton, who was always bright and cheery when he was trying to lift America's yachting cup, was described today in court as "a pathetic old man" who believed he was being pushed out of the tea business he had founded. The occasion for this description of the famed sportsman was the suit brought against the Lipton estate by Hugh Godfrey Nicholson, engineer, who charges Lipton gave him an I. O. U. for $50,000 payable in his will and then left him out in the will.

Theobald Mathew, a partner in the law firm headed by Sir Charles Russell, a great friend of Lipton, said:

"When Sir Thomas resigned from Lipton's, Ltd., in 1927 he was a pathetic old man. The mainspring was gone out of his life. He was away from the business he had built up."

1,500,000 ELIGIBLE TO VOTE IN APRIL ELECTION; RECORD

Probably more than 1,500,000 Chicagoans will be eligible to vote in the election of April 2, the largest number on the poll lists for any mayoralty election in the history of the city.

The board of election commissioners announced that the interim registration added the names of 21,433 men and women to the books, making the present total 1,506,961. But some names will be erased as the result of hearings now being conducted by the board on suspect notices filed by political workers. The final total, it was estimated, will be around 1,500,000.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Not long ago a great Russian perfumer who also makes exquisite feathery face powders did something very clever with his boxes. They were brought out with metal tops, and they are, by all odds, one of the most decorative touches you could have on your dressing table. But the real point of the idea is this: When you buy one of these swanky boxes of powder you can cut down on the cost of your repeat purchases. Keep your metal powder box top for ever and ever, if you like, and buy only refills for the top! It's quite a saving.

We mention these today because just recently the same house brought out their face powders in bigger sizes than they've ever had before—and it's an idea we thoroughly approve of because it eliminates the dreadful sensation of finding that your powder supply has run out long before you thought it would. The quantity in the new boxes should last you for months unless you toss your powder around in utterly lavish fashion.

With all this talk of packaging you may think we've lost sight of the powder itself. 'Taint so. We use it so much and think of it so often and approve of it so thoroughly we just make the mistake of assuming that every one else does likewise. It's among the most perfect of face powders considered from every angle—texture, shades, and the quality of staying on well and giving a velvety finish. There's a shade for every skin—and the fragrances are famous—three good ones that give you a choice of subtle, mellow or gay perfume in your powder.

The box tops that we're all steamed up about may be white, black, green or blue banded and crowned in gold.

This same house has brought out impressive containers of bath powder in its famous fragrances too. Ivory and gold, they look too elegant for words—and the powder is a joy to use.

Two Chicago shops have these powders.

Girls' School to Give Play of 3 Brontes

Caryl Nicolson to Have Role of Emily.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE story of the famous Brontës, Charlotte, Emily, and Anne, with all of the romance, sentiment, and color of the early nineteenth century in which they lived, will be revived next Wednesday evening on the stage of the Fortnightly club. The seniors at the University School for Girls are going to present Alfred Sangster's delightful play, "The Brontës."

It will be the dramatic achievement of the year as far as the students are concerned and a major event for those mothers and fathers who have daughters in the various classes.

Caryl Nicolson, a daughter of the Leo Nicolsons, has one of the leads as Emily, and from reports concerning her ability she is a worthy successor of her sister Virginia, who was one of the Woodstock Theater Festival players last summer. This winter Virginia was married to Orson Welles. Last year Virginia was the leading Thespian among the University school seniors.

The part of Patrick Brontë, the father who was a weaver, schoolmaster and for 41 years a clergyman of the Church of England, is played by Karen Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Milton Gardner.

Other members of the cast include Catherine Dexter and her sister Flora, Geraldine Brauer, daughter of Mrs. Paul Brauer; Edna Lennox, Ethel Earle, Virginia Lee, Marjorie Mercer, Jean Enzinger, and Katherine Freund whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Erwin O. Freund. Elsa Durand Mower is the director.

Jane Kreuscher, Virginia Hodges, Marion Riordon, Elizabeth Paschen, Betty Snow, and Mary Bennan have been selected to usher.

Several Take Blocks of Seats.

Blocks of seats have already been subscribed for by Mrs. Helen Walton, who leaves the beginning of April for England; Mrs. Robert M. Curtis, Miss Alice Barler, Mrs. Eugene Talbot, Miss Barbara Lawrence, Miss Medora Pelouze, Mrs. Charles Connell, Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman Jr., Mrs. Henry L. McIntyre, Miss Suzette Morton, who will return this week-end from a vacation; Miss Suzanne Morris, and Miss Helen Brooks.

There's an important event for the students in the upper grades at the Boys' Latin school tonight, and not one of their mothers and fathers who are in town will miss it. It's the annual gymnasium exhibition beginning at 7:45 o'clock with music by the school orchestra, a boxing match, a sports tableaux, and a basketball game between the juniors and seniors. A special feature will be a tumbling exhibition by Daniel Schuyler Jr., an alumnus of the Boys' Latin school, and Paul Coker.

Some of the young men who are going to put on their boxing gloves are Peter Connor, Peter Berkey, Bryan S. Reid Jr., Otis Carney, and Dexter Corley.

Will Spend Spring Vacations in Florida.

Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne and her son, Nathan Osborne Jr., are leaving Monday or Tuesday for Vero Beach, Fla., to enjoy Nate's vacation from the Latin school. Mrs. Osborne's mother, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, will return shortly before Easter from Pasadena where she is visiting her sister, Mrs. G. T. Lefens.

Charles B. Armour is another preparatory school boy who will spend his spring holidays in Florida, for his parents, the A. Watson Armours, are leaving Chicago Monday to pick him up at St. Mark's and take him to Useppa Island for a fortnight.

JUST when we think perhaps we're doing a really snappy, cosmopolitan column there comes, thank heaven, a letter like the following:

Befuddlement.

Dear June: My red apple pincushion, which I've had five or six years, sprung a sawdust leak. I could feel one or two needles, so I split it open and found eighty-nine needles inside. Some find!

AND are there still strawberry emeries in work baskets, and chunks of beeswax ready beside old-fashioned flatirons? Are parlors still scented with bowls of rose leaves mixed with spices, and do housewives still have cherries from the tree in the yard made into sun preserves? Are little girls given a silver thimble with their names engraved on it for a birthday present nowadays? Do they clamor for the "heel" of a loaf of freshly baked bread, sprinkled with brown sugar, and is the button bag in the sewing basket considered a treasure house? . . . There, Mrs. Husavik, you can see what you started—you and your red apple pincushion. . . .

OLDER Chicagoans who happen to drive out south on Prairie avenue cast a reminiscent eye at the house wrecking activities now under way. The street, in a district long abandoned by most of the fashionable folk who used to have mansions there, will shortly not have even its deserted old houses as reminders of the grandeur of another day. The wreckers have the Charles Hutchinson house razed to the second floor. The Sprague mansion is demolished to the basement. The old Henry Blair house, which has been a hotel for some time, and the Chauncey Keep home, now a rooming house, have not yet been touched. The latest bit of old Prairie avenue news, however, is that the Edwin L. Lobdells, long faithful to their home in the 2600 block, are abandoning it this spring to move to the north side, and their house will be torn down shortly thereafter. They have taken an apartment at 70 Cedar street, and Harold C. Pynchon, husband to their daughter Adeline, has wangled the billiard table and the old-fashioned piano for the North Side Boys' club, an organization in which he is much interested. The two chatelaines of old mansions in the long block on Prairie avenue that stretches between 2600 and 2900 south who remain faithful to their homes are Mrs. William Watson and Mrs. John Elliot Jenkins.

BULLETINEER RUTH STEIN thought we'd all like to know about the high school sophomore who had been assigned to review George Eliot's "Silas Marner" in a chapter-by-chapter outline.

He had no difficulty until he arrived at the "love interest" chapters. He pondered dismally over these, and at length he summed up the situation in this fashion:

"Romance:
"Aaron loves Eppie.
"Eppie loves Aaron.
"So what?"

THE fifth wedding anniversary of Bert Lytell, who is appearing in "The First Legion" at the Harris, and Grace Menken was to have been a very special celebration. The anniversary was last Saturday, and they met in Chicago years ago, when both were appearing in "Brothers." Mrs. Lytell left New York by plane for the scene of the beginning of her romance, but the plane was forced to land at Pittsburgh and she came the rest of the way by train. She arrived in Chicago Sunday.

THINGS pile up on one another nowadays, what with the movies and the radio. Thus the Highland Park child who was asked by his brother, after seeing the announcement of the neighborhood cinema release, "Who do they mean—'Mighty Barnum'? Who was Barnum?"

"O, you know, David—Barnum Munchausen," the child replied.

Bach Birthday Is Marked by Grand Concert

Symphony Celebration Hit of the Season.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Johann Sebastian Bach was born two hundred and fifty years ago yesterday. He died physically July 28, 1750, but musically never. Wherefore his birthday anniversary, celebrated last night by the Chicago Symphony orchestra with a full program of his music, became one of the hits of the symphony season in attendance and applause.

One day a few years ago Mischa Levitzki, the pianist, came in to a recital in Chicago where José Iturbi, another pianist, was playing. In the darkness of the auditorium he was unable to read his program.

"Who wrote that piece?" he whispered to his neighbor.

"Joaquin Nin," was the answer. "But of course you would not know. You play nothing later than Beethoven."

"O, yes I do," he protested. "I play Bach."

That incident, which happens to be true, may give some light on the program last night. For Bach seems to have anticipated almost everything that has been written since his time, with the addition that he was able to put it in a much more pleasing form than most of his successors have been able to do.

It was a grand concert. In celebration of the event, Conductor Frederick Stock arranged for the appearance of no less than five brilliant soloists, not to mention Ernest Liegl, who performed a marvelous flute obbligato during the suite in B minor. In the first part of the program Mischa Mischakoff and John Weicher stepped out of their places in the orchestra to play the concerto for two violins.

In the second part Glenn Dillard Gunn, Henry Weber, and Vitaly Schnee came from elsewhere to play the concerto for three pianos, a battery of three keyboard instruments that took up nearly as much room as the rest of the orchestra. These two pieces are unusual music and heard only on special occasions.

Mr. Weber, in case you do not happen to remember, is the conductor of the W-G-N concert orchestra. He would seem to be as good a pianist as he is a conductor. At that, he was on equal terms with Mr. Gunn, who had made a special arrangement of the work, and Mr. Schnee. It was fine playing and fine ensemble, just as had been the duet of Mr. Mischakoff and Mr. Weicher.

And Mr. Stock was likewise at the top of his form. In addition to the suite already mentioned, he directed the second concerto in F major in the Felix Mottl arrangement, and at the end his own magnificent orchestral transcription of the prelude and fugue in E flat, which also bears the subtitle of "St. Anne's."

Silk Stylists Expect Sweep of Style Shows

Emphasize Quality During Special Week.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Quality, distinction, romance, and glamor—the telltale whispers of pure silk! Silk that goes to the cleaners and comes back with the same lustrous sheen and glowing color that you gloated over when you first saw the dress hanging in a smart shop window. Pure silk and all silk. Dresses that are draped and fitted to the figure as only such distinguished material can be managed. If you know your fashions, if you know materials and clothes in terms of well tried service, you'll insist upon pure silk always!

In the past your loveliest and most prized possessions have been silk, from the gossamer wisps of silk chiffon that make American hosiery the talk of the world, the diaphanous lingerie that you tub as you would a pocket hanky, your most effective dresses, and, most decidedly, the pets of your wardrobe—all the romantic evening gowns—have been of silk. All the feminine heroines of famous authors and the best sellers have worn whispering, haunting silk in their big moments.

And the most dramatic scenes and costumes of the stage have rustled with silk. It's the aristocrat of fabrics. Nothing will ever take its place. Swathed in silk the most timid and shrinking soul can saunter assuredly out among the crowds.

Silk fashions the best of the clothes this spring. Silk taffeta as soft as chiffon, but with that uncopyable swish that only taffeta can achieve, makes the new wide skirted evening gowns. Printed silks in utterly lovely and very feminine patterns in the most mouth watering pastels fashion afternoon and teatime costumes. Riotous flower prints splashed against dull black make the costume suits of the coming summer. Suits that will undoubtedly stop trafic, the best looking outfits you ever yearned to own and wear.

Silk chiffons as fragile as a cobweb to look at and as sturdy as linen to wear will be used in layers for the fluttering skirts and softly draped bodices of picturesque summer party gowns. Silk taffeta and still more taffeta will be used until by fall the rustle of silk will be heard round the world.

That's the story of the International Silk guild as they stage the big silk review this week. It's a good one, and they're going to stick to it until every shopper insists upon all silk and real silk, in clothes and dress lengths from the bolts of guaranteed materials.

The fashion photography illustrates the use of stripes in white silk taffeta in a tunic blouse. The stitching is in navy blue to match the skirt color. An ascot forms the tie and collar line.

Virginia Weidler, Movie Juvenile, in City an Hour

Virginia Weidler, the little pig tailed girl of 7 who is one of Hollywood's newest juvenile finds, spent an hour in Chicago yesterday, but turned out to be as shy as the "Little Sister" she is portraying in her new picture, "Laddie." She was on her way to Indianapolis to see the world première of that production. The movies she thinks are "O. K.," but as for school—"I don't like it very well." She was accompanied by her mother, her 9 year old brother, and her tutor.

When the Chicago Radcliffe club meets for luncheon tomorrow at the Fortnightly, the members will hear about a new scholarship of $700 that the club will give as one of twelve regional scholarships offered by the college and the Radcliffe clubs throughout the country. The scholarship will be unusual in that it will be awarded more upon the basis of outstanding scholarship and character than upon actual need.

Zoologist to Study Social Organization of Panama Termites

Dr. Alfred E. Emerson, professor of zoölogy at the University of Chicago, left yesterday for a six months' research in the Panama Canal Zone on termites, insects said to have one of the most perfect social organizations known.

Termites, insects related to roaches, have a social organization which includes the division of labor and domestication of animals, Dr. Emerson pointed out. The principal castes are the king and queen, which occupy a cell near the center of the nest, the soldiers and the workers.

Despite the fact that the king and queen monopolize the function of reproduction, and that the members of the colony are mostly their offspring, the soldier and the worker castes have differing anatomical construction, it was pointed out. Soldiers are equipped with large heads or mandibles for fighting.

PRICE OF MEAT DECLINES; VEAL HELD "BEST BUY"

Lenten Season One Cause of Lower Cost.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A definite downward trend in wholesale prices of fresh meats is beginning to show up in the retail butcher shops of Chicago and suburbs. This tendency is believed to be due chiefly to the unwillingness of consumers to pay high prices for meat and to the influence of the lenten season on the public's eating habits.

Butchers are making attractive displays of veal in their windows and showcases and point to this meat as the best buy offered in most shops today and tomorrow. THE TRIBUNE'S weekly survey of retail stores revealed that the prices of round steaks and chicken are also lower than last week in some shops.

Live Cattle Prices Down.

In building up the background for their prediction that beef and pork prices in the retail shops are likely to be lower within the next few days, market reporters say that live cattle have sold at from 50 cents to $1 a hundred pounds under last week's prices. In line with this live cattle price reduction, wholesale prices of beef carcasses are down $1 to $2 a hundred pounds as compared with a week ago.

Market reporters also point out that hogs have sold this week at about $1.25 a hundred under prices two weeks ago when live hogs sold at $12.15 a hundred, including the federal government's processing tax of $2.25 a hundred. Hog carcasses are selling at lower levels in the wholesale market. For example, pork loins are wholesaling at approximately $5 to $6 a hundred pounds under prices two weeks ago.

Even at lower prices wholesale meat is moving slowly and market experts expect this situation to bring lower retail prices to consumers soon.

Cost of Butter Lowered.

Retail prices have changed only slightly on a comparatively small number of staple foods as well as in the green grocer's department in most stores. Among the staple foods that may be bought at lower prices than a week ago are butter and the lower grades of coffee and flour. In many stores butter is generally down about 2 cents a pound and the lower grades of coffee are off 2 cents a pound in some places. The better grades of potatoes coming out of storage are about 2 to 3 cents a peck under last week's prices in many stores. Bacon is slightly lower in a few stores. Price tags are marked down on some breakfast foods.

Comparatively few foods are higher. Prices of dry onions, head lettuce, and cooking apples are slightly above last week's levels. Products that are still offered at relatively high prices include spinach, cabbage, cauliflower, and fresh tomatoes. Grapes are still high and sold by only a few retailers.

Several items of food continue to be offered at fairly reasonable prices. These include lemons, lower grade potatoes, sugar, canned tomatoes, and tomato juice, fresh herring and white fish. Some stores have sugar on sale today and tomorrow.

Some Vegetables Are Scarcer.

Wholesale merchants say that they are receiving lighter shipments of vegetables. Some of them expect higher prices on head lettuce, green peas, cauliflower, and geen beans because of adverse weather conditions, especially in Texas and California.

The first shipments of California's strawberry variety of rhubarb are due here Monday. This crop is late as a result of cold weather.

A few crates of Louisiana strawberries have arrived in Chicago. These southern berries are not expected to come in appreciable volume for about two weeks.

Sassafras bark, used in making tea, is on the market. It was shipped here from southern Indiana.

EDWARD HUSTON IS DIVORCED FOR THROWING BREAD

Amending her separate maintenance suit to a divorce action in the court of Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday, Mrs. Bertha Huston, 40 years old, 8027 Dante avenue, was granted an uncontested decree from Edward Huston, 41 years old, trafic manager of the Peaody Coal company.

Under questioning of her attorney, Norman Becker, Mrs. Huston testified that they were married in 1912, and that on the day of their separation, March 15, 1934, her husband threw a loaf of bread which struck her in the face.

Mrs. Huston was awarded the family home and $100 a month allimony. The court also ordered that the custody of Edward Huston Jr., 11 years old, be given to the mother.

HOME EXPERTS STUDY PROBLEM OF BEING A WIFE

10 Commandments for Brides Given.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

What should be expected of the young wife and what in reality is expected of her in homemaking activities were told yesterday by a home economics expert and by a clubwoman at the closing session of the Midwest Conference on Homemaking in the Sherman hotel.

The home economics expert, Meta Given of the Household Science institute, laid down ten commandments, which, if followed, would be sure, she said, to make a "Home, Sweet Home." The clubwoman, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, enumerated a good many more than ten points on a housewife's expected duties.

Don't Pester Husband.

"Learn how to cook like your mother-in-law, even to making the gravy thick, if she did," was Miss Given's commandment No. 1. "Never make a practice of asking your husband what he wants to; eat learn what he likes. Learn to cook foods he doesn't like in ways he will like. Never waste anything in the kitchen, not even a prune, for a husband admires an efficient wife.

"See that the food is served at a certain hour. Treat the family as if they are guests, and act the part of a good hostess. Learn how to bake, for a husband does like a good pie. Once a week serve one meal in the kitchen just to get the family acquainted with it. Buy foods in quantities, and lastly, studying cooking as if it were a pleasure."

What Some People Expect.

Mrs. Langworthy said: "Everyone expects a wife to be an expert in goodness knows how many things. She must be an expert cook, entertain her husband's friends charmingly, tell her children the facts of life, know all about her husband's business, be an interior decorator, teach the children their A. B. C.'s, know how to care for the sick and recognize all diseases, know what to do for and how to handle her husband when he becomes ill.

Speaking in more serious vein Mrs. Langworthy said the young girl will have great difficulty in learning how to be a homemaker, because so few families are in a position nowadays to teach it at home. Other speakers included Mrs. Geline McDonald Bowman, president of the National Business and Professional Woman's club, who declared that a well managed home for the business woman of today makes for greater efficiency in her work.

Saturday Shopping Show-down on "Coffee-Floating"

Cat rubbed herself against John's legs

EVERY Saturday afternoon John went along with Mary Marvin to lend a hand with the weekly shopping. Or rather, while Mary ordered from her list, John amused himself with the grocer's cat.

But there came a Saturday when the cat rubbed its head against John's leg and got no attention. John was listening to Mary . . . "a pound of butter, a dozen eggs, and I want a new kind of coffee."

"Hold on, there," John said. "Mary, you pick a new coffee every week, and you're the world's worst picker. Let's stop this floating and stick to Hills Bros. Coffee. I don't mind changing some things. But I'm a one-coffee man at heart. Hills Bros. might cost a penny or so more, but I'll bet a pound makes more and better cups." Mary knew that look in John's eye. "I'll have a pound of Hills Bros. this week," she said. "Every week, she means," John winked at the grocer.

A WORD ABOUT RICE KRISPIES from W. K. KELLOGG

OFTEN the introduction of a new product benefits many phases of American life. This has been our experience with Kellogg's Rice Krispies.

We had a double objective in developing Rice Krispies. First, to create a delicious cereal that would appeal to every one. Second, to help mothers in their task of getting children to take sufficient milk. It was thought that a different type of cereal—one that would snap, crackle, and pop when milk or cream was poured into the bowl—would stimulate appetites.

This was true. Today, people of all ages are enjoying Rice Krispies. The convenience of this ready-to-eat cereal has resulted in shorter hours for mothers—less time spent in the kitchen—more leisure.

The unusual success of Kellogg's Rice Krispies has opened a tremendous new market for the American farmer. The Kellogg Company has become one of the world's largest buyers of American-grown premium rice. The Kellogg Company also uses many millions of bushels of corn and wheat every year.

American industry also benefits. Thousands of people are kept busily employed in the manufacture and marketing of Kellogg's Cereals.

We are pleased that Rice Krispies have added a tempting new ready-to-eat cereal to the American table, and have delighted millions of mothers and children. We are particularly happy that this has helped thousands of people to have better jobs, and to enjoy life more.

BY MARY MEADE.

After starting something we couldn't finish in one swoop yesterday, today had to be set aside for act II of the playlet, "Kitchen Orphans." In other words, finding uses for odd egg whites was so fascinating that the yolks had to be crowded out as hold-over material. Here they are, however, beginning with ideas for cleverly disposing of one lone egg yolk and going right up to the overwhelming number of eight!

A single foundling makes its mark in many ways—custard sauces, fluffy icings, lending added richness to creamed meat, egg, or fish mixtures. However, here's one a little off the beaten path:

Cheese Crisps.

(Served as salad accompaniments.)
2 tablespoons melted shortening
½ cup evaporated milk
1½ tablespoons flour
1 egg yolk, well beaten
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains paprika
12 one-inch squares of sharp cheese

Beat all of the ingredients except the cheese into a smooth batter. Then dip the cheese cubes into the batter and fry in deep fat at a temperature of around 380 degrees F. or 190 degrees C. Drain on absorbent paper and serve hot.

Two yolks break forth in joyful duet in a mock Hollandaise sauce, given the necessary springlike cavort with a dash of grated horseradish.

Horseradish Hollandaise.

1 cup medium white sauce
2 egg yolks
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4 tablespoons grated horseradish
2 tablespoons heavy cream, beaten stiff

Heat the white sauce, stir in the egg yolks, butter or margarine, and the lemon juice. Then fold in the horseradish and stiffly beaten cream.

If the odd yolks chance to be not twins but triplets, here's a good bet:

Economical Gold Cup Cakes.

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
¾ cup milk
2 cups sifted cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon lemon extract

Cream the shortening thoroughly, add the sugar gradually, and continue creaming until light and fluffy. Add the egg yolks which have been beaten until thick and lemon colored, then the milk alternately with the sifted flour and baking powder, beating well after each addition. Add the lemon extract and bake in cup cake pans in a moderate oven for about twenty minutes. Top with a creamy chocolate icing. This makes about three dozen small cup cakes.

Four yolks spell Golden River Custard to some people. It's really a custard baked over a spoonful of maple sirup and then unmolded upside down for serving, so that the hot sirup can slither down over the rich custard.

Golden River Custard.

4 egg yolks, slightly beaten
¼ cup sugar
Few grains salt
2 cups hot milk
4 tablespoons maple sirup

Combine the yolks, sugar, and salt. Then add the scalded milk slowly, stirring constantly. Then pour one tablespoon of sirup into the bottom of each of four well greased custard cups. Fill the cups carefully with the custard mixture, pouring slowly into a spoon held over the sirup to avoid mixing the two layers. Then place the cups in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven for forty minutes or so, or until an inserted knife comes out clean. Chill and unmold.

Some way the five, six, and seven egg yolks you may have accumulated don't handily go into mixtures all together. Perhaps the best system here is to divide them into more convenient twos and threes for consumption. Three make an excellent lemon butter cake filling, cooked in a double boiler with a half cup of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, a dash of salt, and the juice and rind of a lemon.

Or in similar manner use them for a butterscotch sauce for ice cream. Here you combine the three yolks with two tablespoons of butter, a fourth cup of brown sugar, a tablespoon of water, and a pinch of salt, and cook over hot water until thick and creamy.

CHILD WITHOUT THROAT IS KEPT ALIVE 5 WEEKS

Newburgh, N. Y., March 21.—(AP)—Science claimed initial victory today in a struggle to keep alive Robert Earl Linsig, the baby without a throat.

Robert will be 5 weeks old Saturday. Thanks to a hole cut in his stomach he has taken food regularly and has gained in weight from 5 pounds 13 ounces, at birth to 7 pounds 5 ounces.

In this growth Dr. W. Barton Harris reads the hope that Baby Robert will live a normal life span.

"The child should thrive and grow," Dr. Harris said. "Of course, for perhaps seven years he will have to be fed through the artificial mouth, which was cut in his stomach the day after birth.

"At the end of that time a 'rubber throat' will have to be inserted by means of surgery so that Robert can eat his food in the normal way. Meanwhile it is a question whether he will develop a sense of taste."

"Then he won't object to eating spinach?" queried an interviewer.

"Which probably will be a good thing," smiled Dr. Harris.

Girl Hit in Eye by Airgun Pellet Files $25,000 Suit

A suit for $25,000 was filed in the Superior court yesterday on behalf of Helen Augustyn, 10 years old, 1224 North Rockwell street, because of an injury caused to her eye by a pellet fired from an air rifle. The rifle was fired, according to the suit, by Morris Williams, 10 years old, 2625 Crystal street, in April of 1934. The boy; his father, Abbie, and his grandfather, Harry Peskin, are named as defendants.

½ cup diced celery
Salt to taste
Mayonnaise

Peel and grate the turnips, add celery and seasoning. Combine with enough mayonnaise to hold together.

ASHER ACCUSED BY CHICAGOAN IN ALIENATION SUIT

Hollywood, Cal., March 21.—[Special.]—Nathan Borin of Chicago today filed suit for $500,000 against E. M. Asher, wealthy motion picture producer, charging that the latter alienated the affections of his wife, Mrs. Claire Burman Borin.

Borin charges that Asher met his wife last Dec. 1 and has since lavished jewels, flowers, gifts, and promises of cinema stardom upon her. The action further states that the two have attended theaters and night clubs together and that Mrs. Borin was given the use of Asher's chauffeur-driven automobile.

Borin accuses Asher of trying to induce Mrs. Borin to seek a divorce and to later meet him in Europe.

Borin is the head of a Chicago picture frame and art goods concern. Asher is an independent movie producer who was divorced by Lillian Bonner, former screen actress, in 1933, the latter obtaining custody of the couple's two children.

HERE'S HOW ONE MAY USE EARLY STRAWBERRIES

One Boxful Enough in These Recipes.

The cheering sight of strawberries in the markets is a sure sign that spring is approaching. While the prices are still a bit too high to serve the berries "as is," there are many ways of serving them so that one boxful will give the family a dessert or salad. Here are some strawberry stretching recipes:

STRAWBERRY WHIP.

1¼ cups crushed strawberries
1 egg white
1 cup confectioners' sugar

Place the ingredients in a bowl and beat with a wire whip until the dessert is stiff enough to hold its shape. Pile lightly into a dish and chill.

PINEAPPLE AND STRAWBERRY SALAD.

6 slices canned pineapple
2-3 cup mayonnaise
½ cup finely chopped almonds
18 dates
18 strawberries

Dip the slices of pineapple in thin mayonnaise and then into the chopped nuts. Arrange on a bed of lettuce. Garnish each salad with six half dates, poinsetta style, and place strawberry halves between the dates. Serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise in the center.

STRAWBERRY BAVARIAN CREAM.

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup strawberry juice and pulp
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream

Soak the gelatin in cold water five minutes and dissolve by placing a cup containing the mixture in hot water. Strain into the strawberry juice and pulp and add the sugar. Add the lemon juice and place in the refrigerator until it begins to thicken. Fold in the whipped cream, turn into wet molds garnished with strawberry halves, and chill.

STRAWBERRY BISCUIT ROLLUPS.

Prepare a batch of baking powder biscuit dough, using a fairly rich recipe. Roll this out to about one-fourth inch thickness and cut in four inch squares. Place in the center of each square a large tablespoonful of cut, sweetened, and drained strawberries. Sprinkle with a little sugar and bring the corners of the biscuit squares up around the fruit. Pinch together firmly at the top and brush with melted butter. Place the little dumplings in a hot oven (380 degrees F.) and bake until crisp and well browned.

Liths Sell 130,000 Swine to Russia; Part of Big Order

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, March 21.—The Lithuanian government today announced the sale of 130,000 swine to Russia as part of a $2,000,000 order for hogs which Lithuania obtained from Moscow a month ago. Deliveries have begun. Moscow already is supporting Lithuania by exporting timber at a loss through the port of Memel and the sale of the hogs is expected to alleviate the distress of the peasantry, who are suffering under Germany's economic boycott.

ORIENTAL MACARONI

1 box macaroni
1 cup grated cheese
1 can tomatoes
1 teaspoon chili powder
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup chopped celery
1 green sweet pepper
1 large onion
5 slices bacon, finely chopped
1 can mixed bamboo shoots and bean sprouts

DIRECTIONS—Boil macaroni until tender, pile in the center of a serving dish. Fry bacon slightly in sauce pan, then add celery, green sweet pepper and onions. Brown slightly, add tomatoes and mixed bamboo shoots. Cook for 30 minutes, pour over macaroni, and cover top with grated cheese.

ENGLISH GRILL

DIRECTIONS—A large plate should be used to serve the English grill, which consists of a broiled mutton chop, 1 lamb kidney split and broiled, 1 slice of broiled bacon, 1 sausage, and 1 thick half slice of tomato sprinkled with bread crums and cheese broiled. This combination is to be served on each plate as a portion. Start the mutton chops to broil first, as they will take 20 to 25 minutes to cook. When they are half cooked start the kidney and sausage and also the breaded tomato. Baste the tomato occasionally with the drippings from the meat. As the bacon will take only a few minutes to broil start it to cook toward the last. Serve with a baked potato, which can be cooked in the oven while using the broiler, and mint jelly.

HAWAIIAN PIE

1 package lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup crushed pineapple
1 cup cream, whipped
½ cup sugar
8 graham crackers, rolled fine

DIRECTIONS—Dissolve gelatin in boiling water to which sugar and pineapple juice have been added, add pineapple and chill. When mixture commences to thicken add cream and graham cracker crums. Fill into baked pie shell and chill until ready to serve.

GRAHAM CRACKER DATE PUDDING

2 cups scalded milk
1 cup graham cracker crums
1 egg or 2 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sliced dates
1 teaspoon vanilla

Soak graham cracker crums in scalded milk while beating eggs slightly. Add sugar and salt to the eggs and enough of the scalded milk to dissolve the sugar. Pour the eggs and sugar mixture into the remainder of the scalded milk and add dates and vanilla. Pour into a lightly buttered baking dish or individual custard cups set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven [325 degrees F.] until firm. Serve with hard sauce, lemon sauce, or cream.

GELATIN MOLDS OF COPPER NOW DO DOUBLE DUTY

Gelatin molds with outsides of gleaming copper may be useful every day of the year. When you're not molding a fancy salad or dessert in them, hang them on hooks over the kitchen table. The copper reflects the sunlight in the dingiest of kitchens. These molds come in individual and family sizes. The sides are plain with raised fruit decorations on the top.

Scalloped Potatoes Easy to Prepare; Bolster Menu

Scalloped potatoes are used on so many company menus because they can be prepared early and require no last minute fussing. For a change, substitute cream of spinach or cream of celery soup for the milk in the recipe.

HERE'S A TASTY WAY TO USE THAT DRIED UP CHEESE IN LARDER

Dried cheese need not be thrown away or used only to bait the mouse trap. It may be grated and stored in a glass jar in a cold place. Then when a different flavor is desired, the grated cheese may be added to such dishes as cheese and potatoes:

3 cups raw potatoes, sliced thin
¼ cup fat
12 tablespoons grated cheese
Onion, chopped fine
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Place the potatoes, cheese, fat, and seasoning in alternate layers in a baking dish. Cover the dish tightly and bake in a moderate oven until the potatoes are tender, about an hour. Serve the combination with a garnish of parsley.

Tidbits for Tea Time Come Ready for Serving

You'd never guess that the thin ground slices of date and nut bread which have been turning up at tea time came prepared in a tin container. But they did, and those who believe in preparedness may keep a supply of this bread in the cupboard ready for tea time next week or next month.

Ripe Olives Obtainable Already Chopped in Cans

Chopped ripe olives with no chopped fingers is now a surety, for the olives come all ready canned that way. For a different sandwich filling, combine the chopped ripe olives with mayonnaise. Salads are enlivened with them and they can even double for mushrooms in creamed dishes.

ORANGE FLUFF PIE

3 tablespoons butter
1 cup boiling water
2 cups fine, dry cracker crums
3 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
¼ cup orange juice
1 orange rind, grated
¼ cup powdered sugar
Pastry

DIRECTIONS—Add butter and water to crums. To well beaten egg yolks add sugar, orange juice, and rind. Combine the mixtures. Pour mixture into pastry lined tin and bake in hot oven [450° F.] 20 minutes. Cover with meringue made from beaten egg whites and powdered sugar. Bake in slow oven [325° F.] until meringue is brown.

EGGS BENEDICT

DIRECTIONS—As this recipe calls for a Hollandaise sauce, make the sauce first and then proceed with the rest. Spread toast lightly with butter and place a slice of thin broiled ham on each piece, the piece of ham to be the same size as the toast. Place a poached egg on top of ham and cover all with a liberal quantity of Hollandaise sauce. Decorate the center top with a piece of truffle, cut in diamond shape, or sliced ripe olives.

PORK SELLING FOR LESS, SAYS MEAT COUNCIL

The committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago yesterday issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores:

"Pork loin roasts and pork chops are recommended to housewives as attractive meat buys over the coming week-end. Housewives should find both of these items selling at lower prices than last week at most retail meat stores."

Individual Salmon Loaves Have a Special Appeal

THE INSIDE STORY OF HEINZ BAKED BEANS

How Heinz endows the humblest of vegetables with the savory aroma, toothsome texture and delightful flavor that make baked beans America's national dish.

We went back to the golden age of bean-baking, back to Pilgrim kitchens where many long hours were devoted to preparing the important Saturday night feast. Bean-baking then was a rite. Care and labor in heaping measure went into each glorious pot of beans.

Back to the Heinz kitchens we brought the old-fashioned recipe. And every tin of beans we offer you is prepared this way: We sort the beans by hand. We wash them gleaming clean. We soak them many hours in cold water. Then we bake them thoroughly in dry oven heat. For Boston-style beans we make a sweet molasses sauce and add squares of finest pork. (We urge you to try these. They are the authentic old-time dish that delighted our New England forefathers.)

That is the inside story. Of course, Heinz-wise, we buy the finest beans, the "choice hand-picked". But it is the magic old recipe by which we bake them that makes Heinz beans such sheer delight to eat.

FOR LENT

Heinz oven-baked Beans, vegetarian style, are the same fine beans baked the same old-time way. But they contain no meat; just rich tomato sauce. So they are a splendid dish for Lenten menus.

Portrait of a Salad Getting its Desserts

Add Heinz pure vinegar to your crisp fresh greens and your salad will taste its very best. For this vinegar is so made that it actually awakens and emphasizes the natural good flavor of each fruit and vegetable. It is rich and mellow because it is aged in wood. Heinz makes it of finest ingredients, and then stores it away in wooden casks to age, like fine wine. A year or two later, when the flavor is right for your salad, the vinegar is bottled and brought to your grocer . . . You owe it to your salad to use Heinz vinegar. Four kinds: Malt, Tarragon, White Pickling and Cider Vinegar. Also, use Heinz Olive Oil, made from superb Spanish olives at the Heinz factory in Seville, Spain.

Your good wholesome home-cooked meals take on the adventurous thrill of dining out when you put Heinz Ketchup on the table. This is one of the world's supreme sauces. Gourmets prize it, as they do a rare wine or a costly seasoning. Its recipe is a secret held by only a handful of Heinz chefs, a magic blending of uncommon Oriental spices sought out where they grow by Heinz' own buyers, and of Heinz' special extra-luscious tomatoes.

Yet of all the world's most cherished culinary delights Heinz Ketchup is the one and only one that all may enjoy. For it is in food stores everywhere, moderately priced. People do enjoy it, too: Heinz Ketchup has become the largest selling in the world.

WOULD SELECT FOODS FOR BABY PRIOR TO BIRTH

Expert Cites Changes in Accepted Diets.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 21.—Health insurance for children begins before they are born, says Professor Helen C. Monsch of the New York state college of home economics who advises parents to start to select health-giving foods for children before birth.

"This means," she says, "that a mother must eat health-giving foods for herself and for her child. She should have each day a quart of milk, one serving of meat, one serving of eggs, leafy vegetables, in addition to other kinds, one serving of cereals, some of which are whole grain, and fruits. After that she may eat whatever she likes or whatever agrees with her."

Changes In Ideas.

As to the changes in ideas of food for children that have taken place within the last twenty years, Miss Monsch says, for example, that in 1919 the first practice baby in the college was fed according to his weight in grams and in relation to the calories he needed. His food was made up of skim milk, whole milk, butter fat, barley water, and in addition vitamin B extract and orange juice. Fifteen years later, the 1934 baby was easier to feed because scientists had learned that his food should be based on one and one-half ounces of cow's milk and one tenth of an ounce of sugar for each pound of his weight, and that he should receive egg yolk and cod liver oil. Also, they had learned that the baby could get the nourishment he needed first from orange juice or tomato juice, and later from strained whole wheat cereal and strained vegetables.

Nursery School Reports.

The nursery school reports also show changes in feeding children too young to go to school. In 1926, when the nursery school was started at Cornell, children had meat once a week, and the cod liver oil was given with the orange juice. Now the children receive meat every day, the meat including much liver of all kinds. The orange juice is given separate from the cod liver oil, because it was found that most young children like the flavor of cod liver or the other fish oils.

School children's meals of 1934 as compared with those of 1919, show some additions, according to Miss Monsch. The daily menus for children in 1919 emphasized a pint of milk, whole grain cereals, fruits and vegetables, whereas today, in addition to these foods, it includes a second pint of milk, and meat, and eggs.

RICE WITH CURRY SAUCE.

2 cups boiled rice
1 cup tomatoes
⅓ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ cup grated cheese

Add all ingredients except the cheese to the rice and simmer until the mixture is thick. Add the grated cheese, heat until it is melted, and serve hot.

½ cup shredded coconut
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon orange juice
Salt and paprika
Lettuce

VEGETABLE AND BEEF PILAFF

1 pound round steak
1 small minced onion
1 can tomato soup
2 cups canned mixed vegetables
2 cups cooked rice or macaroni

DIRECTIONS—Salt and pepper meat to taste. Roll in flour and fry in hot fat until well browned. Lift meat from frying pan and slightly brown the minced onion in the same pan. Cut meat into small pieces, then add the onion and other ingredients. Carefully mix all together and press into a buttered mold with a wooden spoon. Chill and invert mold on a platter.

CRANBERRIES AND ORANGE SAUCE

1 quart cranberries, ground
4 cups granulated sugar
2 orange peelings, ground

DIRECTIONS—Combine orange peel, cranberries, and sugar and let stand one hour. Heat to boiling point and pour into mold and let stand in a cool place until congealed. Serve with any kind of meat or fowl. This is good and attractive served uncooked in orange peel.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

4 egg yolks
½ cup butter, melted
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Few grains cayenne

DIRECTIONS—Beat egg yolks, gradually add melted butter, seasonings, and boiling water. If Hollandaise separates, work into it ¼ cup of thin cream sauce and remove from fire immediately.

FIND SEARING MEAT FAILS TO RETAIN JUICES

One of the outstanding discoveries of the last few years is that searing does not hold meat juices in the meat and causes greater shrinkage and loss of more fat and moisture.

If water is added to meat and if a roast is covered while it cooks, both of which provide a steamy atmosphere, the meat juices will be drawn out and the meat itself made drier. Our mothers realized this when they stewed the thougher cuts of meat, a method still necessary to soften tough muscle fibers, and used the juice for gravy.

Therefore, only tender roasts should be roasted the new way while the tough ones still need moisture while they cook. Temperatures given for cooking meats also differ today from those advised in the past. It is now recommended that roasts of beef, lamb, veal and cured pork be cooked at 300 degrees Fahrenheit and that roasts of fresh pork be cooked at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, instead of the higher temperatures formerly suggested. The reasons given for this change are that roasts shrink more, weigh less, and are not cooked evenly and uniformly at high temperatures, even though cooking is faster. However, a temperature of 400 degrees Fahrenheit for fifteen minutes at the beginning and the end of roasting is recommended when a browned roast and nice brown gravy are desired.

CONTROL BOARD TALKS AGAINST TAPROOMS AT INDIANA'S HOTELS

Indianapolis, Ind., March 21.—[Special.]—Abolition of hotel taprooms where alcoholic beverages are sold exclusively is one of the regulations contemplated by the new Indiana liquor control commission.

If that regulation is adopted and enforced hotels either would close and taprooms sell both food and drinks there.

Members of the liquor board have decided that a saloon is a place where liquor exclusively is sold.

Every specimen of handwriting tells me a story of the personality and character of the writer. I have to know a lot about this thing we call human nature ..... I have to know what jobs the world has to offer, and how they are got ..... in order to help solve the problems of living today.
Do you wish to write me? I wish to hear from you.

Cordially Yours,
Louise Rice

RECEIVER SUES THE STEFFANSES, RADICAL WRITERS

Action Charges Authors Evaded Liability.

San Francisco, Cal., March 21.—(AP)—Lincoln Steffens and his wife, Ella Winter, noted writers and champions of radical political beliefs, were dragged into a decidedly capitalistic limelight today by a suit filed in federal court.

The suit described Steffens as the holder of a $35,000 note signed by "Owen D. Young of New York" and secured by a mortgage on Connecticut property.

It itemized figures indicating Steffens was the possessor of a moderate fortune.

Steffens long has been a critic of the capitalistic system and in his writings has shown sympathy for things socialistic or communistic. Miss Winter's name frequently has been linked with radical movements.

Receiver Brings Suit.

The suit was brought by H. W. Douglas, receiver for the California National Bank of Sacramento, which closed in 1933. It alleged steffens had transferred title to valuable property to his wife in attempting to evade liability as a stockholder in the closed institution.

A restraining order was asked to prevent disposal of the Steffens property. It asked for the sale of sufficient Steffens assets to satisfy a judgment rendered against the couple Feb. 5, 1934.

The court was asked to annul all property transfers by Steffens to his wife.

Listed as property transferred were the $35,000 Young note; three town lots in Carmel, Cal., worth $15,000; $9,000 worth of bonds and all Steffens' book royalties and stocks in various corporations.

List Securities Mentioned.

The securities mentioned included 105 shares of stock in the Crowell Publishing company; 50 shares of Union Carbide and Carbon; a $1,000 American Power and Light bond; 1 $1,000 Canadian government bond; $2,000 in Kansas City Southern railway bonds, and $5,000 in bonds of the Central Railway of Georgia.

Steffens was described also as having owned 150 shares of stock in the closed bank. The suit said he was assessed $15,000 under the liability provisions when the bank shut its doors but did not pay it.

In his autobiography Steffens, a one-time Wall street reporter, told of having made enough money to become economically independent by playing the securities markets.

Steffens wrote that while he did not believe in the capitalistic system, as long as he had to live under it he saw no reason for not taking advantage of the opportunities presented to him.

RELATIVES SUE TO BREAK WILL OF MRS. MURPHY

Two suits to set aside the will of Mrs. Marie Louise Murphy, widow of Charles W. Murphy, former owner of the Chicago Cubs, were filed yesterday in the Circuit court on behalf of George Krumdick and Mrs. Millie Fry, a brother and a sister of Mrs. Murphy. Krumdick lives at 1033 Ontario street, Oak Park.

The plaintifs were left no share of the $600,000 estate, although eight other relatives each were left an eighth after minor bequests.

The bill charged that Mrs. Murphy was of unsound mind or memory when she made her will in October of 1932, and that there was "information and belief" that part of her signature was added at a later date, without witnesses, either through persuasion or through forgery.

Mrs. Murphy died in November, 1933, when she was 63 years old. She lived at 6157 Sheridan road. Her husband died in 1931 leaving a fortune reputed to be $2,500,000.

FUNERAL SERVICE CONDUCTED FOR A. R. SHERRIFF

He was active in legal organizations and devoted much time to teaching law and lecturing and writing on legal subjects. A committee of 22 lawyers represented the Chicago Bar association at the service.

Surviving Mr. Sherriff are his widow and three children. Mr. Sherriff lived at 1320 North State street.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

HERBIE KAY.

Herbie Kay and his orchestra were engaged yesterday as the headliners of a new two-hour Sunday morning program, sponsored by the Chicago motor dealers who sponsored the Golden Gloves finals recently on W-G-N. The program, to be called "Gloom Dodgers," will run from 9:30 to 11:30 Sunday mornings over WBBM, beginning March 31. Kay's orchestra is currently heard over CBS from the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Featured with Kay and his bandsmen will be Kay Morton, songstress with the band, and Jean Paul King as narrator. The show will be presented in four sections, a half hour each of Tin Pan alley favorites, national airs, "SOS," or request numbers, and popular selections.

The Hugh vs. Huey radio razzle-dazzle will go into its second stanza next week. Gen. Johnson will speak over NBC from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Saturday, March 30. He announced here yesterday that he would like to finish off the feud.

"It is not my intention to deal further in personalities," he declared, "but rather to correct misstatements made by Senator Long and Father Coughlin and to discuss certain of their theories. It is my hope that this broadcast will definitly conclude this controversy as far as I am responsible for its continuance."

In other words, the general would like to have the last word. But that will not be his fortune, apparently. Huey Long will speak the following night, Sunday, March 31, at 10 o'clock, over WBBM-CBS on the "Current Legislative Situation in the Senate," an elastic enough title so that it does not exclude mention of Gen. Johnson.

As headliners for its new picture, "The Big Broadcast of 1935," Paramount hopes to land the most popular entertainers on the air—if it can determine who they are and whether they are available. Thus the company is seeking the aid of the listening public in thousands of communities in casting the production. Who are the darlings of the kilocycles in Chicagoland? If readers will make known their favorites we shall relay this information to the movie makers.

For Maj. Bowes' Amateur hour which has its NBC première at 7 o'clock on WMAQ-NBC Sunday evening the sponsor has arranged for fifty trunk telephone lines in Chicago handled by a staf of thirty-six operators to take down the telephone votes and relay them to the studios in New York. Call Franklin 4900 to vote here. In New York 200 trunk lines and 120 girls will be used to tabulate the listeners' choices of the winners which will be announced during the broadcast.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Hal Sims and the Ely Culbertsons will discuss details of their next week's bridge battle over NBC at 4:15 p. m. tomorrow. . . . Ben Bernie's guest entertainers for the first three weeks in April will be Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dempsey, Sophie Tucker, and Ethel Shutta. . . . Tony Wons and Gina Vana, prima donna of his program, went to Kansas City yesterday to make an appearance at the food show. They'll be back for their broadcast Sunday.

Inaugurating the festivities in connection with the 25th anniversary of his coronation, King George will speak over the air from Buckingham palace on May 6. Rudyard Kipling also will speak, and the words of king and poet will be relayed to America. . . . Abe Lyman has turned restaurateur and is part owner of the spot where Rudy Vallee plays in New York.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Sluggish bowels cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and relief from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take one or two Olive Tablets at bedtime. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Mrs. Virginia West Balke, 22 years old, resident of Batavia who became a dancer with the Folies Bergere in Paris and returned to America with its show, yesterday was granted a divorce from Roger Balke in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva.

Taking the stand before Judge Frank Shepherd, Mrs. Balke testified she was married in Wheaton on Feb. 20, 1931, and that she and her husband soon afterward went to France to study dancing. They remained there two years.

In a voice that bore more than a trace of Parisian accent, Mrs. Balke declared that she had treated her husband "ordinarily well" and that he had been cruel and had deserted her. Judge Shepherd awarded her the custody of her son, Kay Karl Balke, and $25 a month for his support. Mrs. Balke is the daughter of Dr. John C. West, Batavia physician. Balke is now a music teacher in Highland Park.

(ADVERTISMENT)

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 79,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes

Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestines, yet the kidneys contain nearly 10 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 79,200 feet if laid end to end. Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and poisonous waste out of the blood.

Healthy persons pass thru the bladder 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this, your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Kidneys should be watched closely and need cleaning out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to wash out your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

The Charles Y. Freemans are other vacationists who will return to Chicago next month. They are near Charleston, S. C., visiting Mrs. Freeman's brother, Donald Dodge.

Mrs. Niblack Thorne, who went to Aiken with Mrs. Charles B. Grace to visit the latter's parents, Col. and Mrs. Robert S. Dougherty, will return within a fortnight.

The Stuart J. Templetons and the Thomas L. Marshalls, who are on a cruise through the Panama canal to California, will remain in the Golden state for at least two or three weeks before returning home.

Robert Hixons Home from Cruise.

The Robert Hixons recently returned from a West Indies cruise. Their daughter, Miss Peggy Hixon, went to California three weeks ago to visit Mrs. Rodman Lent Hooker [Nancy Morse] and other friends. She has extended her stay there, and no one knows just when she will arrive home.

Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, who spent a few weeks at Winter Park, Fla., with her sister, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, returned a few days ago. She is making plans to go to Europe late in April to spend the summer in her Swiss chalet. The chalet is just across the road from that of her daughter and son-in-law, the Arthur Sweetsers, who were over here last summer with their children.

Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift and her daughter, Miss Marie Swift, will spend the Easter holidays in Bermuda. Miss Swift is a student at Bryn Mawr.

Miss Catherine J. Hepburn, daughter of Mrs. Helen C. Hepburn of Kenilworth, is the only young woman from Chicago or its environs to have been selected to carry the daisy chain this June at Vassar college. The ceremony, a school tradition of long standing, is a part of the commencement festivities. Twenty-six sophomores were chosen to carry the chain.

Yale Class of '17 Holds Reunion Tonight.

The telegraph wires between Chicago and New York will be humming this evening, for the Yale alumni of the class of 1917 in both cities are going to hold dinners and keep in telegraphic communication with each other. The Chicago dinner will be held in the College inn at the Hotel Sherman and the New York dinner at the New York Yale club. Thirty-one alumni of this class live in and near Chicago. The arrangements for the dinner here are in charge of Percival G. Hart and George M. Murray.

Since Mrs. Ralph Church spends the greater part of her time in Washington with her congressman husband it is necessary for the Chicago Wellesley club, of which she is president, to plan its meetings at the time of her visits to Chicago. Having received word that she will be here this week-end the club has issued invitations for a meeting at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place. Mrs. Church will tell of the graduate council meetings she recently attended at Wellesley.

Y. W. C. A. to Hold International Dinner.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon and Mrs. William L. Hodgkins have accepted invitations to be special guests at the dinner next Tuesday evening at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial, 1001 North Dearborn street, at which 300 young business and professional women of the Y. W. C. A. will take part in an annual nation-wide observance. Simultaneously there will be dinners throughout the country and in every foreign country in which there is a Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Hixon is chairman of the business and professional woman's department of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Hodgkins president of the Chicago association. Dr. Albert Buckner Coe of Oak Park is to be the speaker, discussing "Working Together on New Frontiers."

Celebrating the return of a large number of Chicago Vassar students this week-end for the spring vacation, the North Shore Vassar club is holding a reception and lecture next Wednesday evening at the home of Charles H. Dennis, 1225 Michigan avenue, Evanston. Mr. Dennis' daughter, Mrs. Julian Anderson, is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Commander Cortlandt C. Baughman will speak on "American Samoa in the South Seas." He served as assistant governor of Samoa in 1929 and 1930. Proceeds from the lecture will go to the Vassar scholarship fund.

History Is Told with Flags of N. Shore D.A.R.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

American history from the day of discovery in 1492 through the admission of Arizona in 1912 as the forty-eighth state of the Union will be reviewed by way of flags this afternoon in the drawing room of Mrs. Erastus Root Phelps' residence at 275 Prospect avenue in Highland Park.

For the first time the North Shore chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of which Mrs. Phelps is a member, is going to show the collection of flags upon which it has been working since 1913. Recognized by authorities as one of the most remarkable achievements of its kind in the country, the collection includes four sets of flags with 17 flags in each set.

The first of the seventeen in each set is the flag of Spain. The last in each set is the confederate flag with its three red and white stripes and 11 white stars on a blue canton. Dominating the collection will be the present American flag with its 13 stripes and 48 stars.

The sets have been made during these last 22 years by the members of the North Shore chapter under the direction of Mrs. Walter T. Rice. Mrs. Ross J. Beatty has painted the pine trees, the coiled snakes, and the mailed fists coming out of the clouds that appear on some of the flags. Mrs. Sewell Truax applied the stars and other insignia.

The flags are made of wool bunting and felt and each one measures 18 by 27 inches. The first set completed has already been presented to the Elm Place Grammar school, where it is used in the study of American history and in the Flag day exercises each June.

In each set the second flag is the flag of the expedition, the personal flag of Columbus, which was presented to him by Ferdinand and Isabella.

The rest of the flags in their historical sequence are the flag of France, the Cabot flag, the Scotch flag, the king's colors, which is a combination of the Cabot and Scotch flags; the meteor flag; the Concord or Bedford flag, used at the battle of Lexington, where "the shot was heard round the world"; the white pine tree flag, the red pine tree flag, the Bunker Hill flag, the Fort Moultrie flag, the Gadsden flag, the Cambridge flag, the Betsy Ross flag, the Fort McHenry flag, and the confederate flag.

During colonial days pine trees on the flag denoted a northern colony and snakes a southern colony. In the Cambridge flag it is interesting to note that there were 13 red and white stripes to signify the united 13 colonies, but the king's colors were carried in the canton. The king's colors were dropped, however, in the Betsy Ross flag and 13 stars on a blue field used instead.

The Fort McHenry flag with its 15 stars and stripes was the "star spangled banner" that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the national anthem.

Drama Club

Members of the junior auxiliary of the Mothers' Drama club will present a one act play, "Alice's Blue Gown," this afternoon before the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations at its headquarters in the Republic building. Miss Carroll Hoff, president of the auxiliary, will direct the performance. Mrs. Walter C. Evans, president of the Mothers' Drama club, will preside.

MISS HOFF.

WOMEN IN WHITE

NURSES CAN'T AFFORD to take chances. Their uniforms must be snowy white, clean and fresh-looking at all times. All their clothes—everything they wear—must be washed spotlessly clean with absolute safety. That is why so many nurses have their clothes soaked whiter in Rinso suds. They know that Rinso actually makes clothes 4 or 5 shades whiter—without scrubbing or boiling. And this gentle, "no-scrub" method is so easy on clothes that they last 2 or 3 times longer. That means a real saving in dollars and cents. In tub or washer, a little Rinso gives rich, lasting suds even in hardest water. No bar soaps, chips or softeners needed. Marvelous for dishwashing and all cleaning. Easy on the hands. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Endorsed by the makers of 34 famous washers. Rinso is the biggest-selling package soap in America. Get the BIG box at your grocer's.

There's Irony in Film Rise of These Stars

Two Studios Once Rejected Miss Hepburn.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 21.—[Special.]—There's irony in the film rise of Katharine Hepburn, Shirley Temple, Jean Muir, and Franchot Tone. Katharine was given screen tests both by Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but the powers that be could see little possibility in her. Now Katharine is worth a queen's ransom at Radio studio and Jean Muir is being featured in some of the best vehicles Warner studio can find for her.

Tone worked in a couple of Paramount stories at its old Long Island studios and then dropped from its salary list. The Paramount coast studio borrowed him at a stiff price from M. G. M. recently to strengthen a rôle in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which has become one of the year's hits.

Consider Grace Moore who appeared in two musicals that did not turn out profitably at Metro and was dropped from the movies for a couple of years only to bob back last year in a more interesting vehicle and with better handling at Columbia studio to become one of the year's smashes. Now Metro is regretting its haste and weighing the possibility of starring Miss Moore in "Maytime," although this studio has Jeannette MacDonald, another fine singer and fine looker on its contract list.

In the case of Shirley Temple, Educational Comedies had used the child in a series of short reelers and needed only to renew her contract at $50 a week, but stumbled over the gold mine Shirley now represents. When Educational dropped her, Paramount had the sensational 6 year old for one picture, "To the Last Man," with Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick. Paramount also dropped Shirley without a contract. Fox signed her. Since then Paramount has borrowed Shirley twice at much expense and would borrow her again, but Fox isn't lending Shirley's services any more.

Betty Heth, Northwestern university beauty, has taken a screen test at Metro studio, but won't know the verdict about her chances for a contract for a couple of weeks. She has taken Beth Marion for a film name.

Johnny Weissmuller got so sentimental about his wife's, Lupe Velez, tear stained face when she caught the eastbound train for a personal appearance tour yesterday that Johnny tried to climb aboard for one more clinch as the choo-choo pulled out. The next the depot crowd knew, Tarzan had fallen off and was rolling face first in the cinders with Lupe looking back and screaming to the conductor to stop the train so she could see if Johnny was hurt.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Let Rival Step Aside.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl friend and I like the same fellow. He seems to pay more attention to me. Should I try to put her in my place.

"SMILES."

It's not up to you to further her cause, Smiles. He has shown a preference for you. Let her be the one to step aside.

Children Must Share Support of the Mother

One Child Should Never Have Burden Alone.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"For four years I've been going with my young man. I am 25. He is 29. Both of us old enough to be married. But he has been supporting his mother since his father died five years ago. He has a brother and two sisters married and in homes of their own. He wants to marry and I want to marry. But there is his mother. What's to become of her? Should we take her with us or shouldn't his brother and sisters be reminded that they have a duty, too, in connection with their ageing parent—Patsy R."

It looks as if a family conference hould be held wherein mother's support is considered. The 29 year old son, by all means, should be given his chance at a home of his own. He could contribute so much a week to his mother's support, his brother so much, and his sisters contribute their share, too. One of the latter, it would seem, could have heart enough to open her doors to her own parent. Or, together, if it seems feasible, enough could be contributed from all four to permit the mother to maintain the home she has always known and in which, perhaps, she would be happiest.

In any event, it is not the intended bride's place to make the sole concession to the parent problem. The woman, being her intended husband's mother, not her own, would complicate the new home with her presence.

It's strange in homes how the support of a parent often depends upon one sole member of the family. The other members of said family lose complete sight of their share of the responsibility. We have seen it happen, time and again, that these other members resent the marriage of the one left behind to care for mother because they fear their program will be upset. It's up to them, nevertheless, to chip in and lighten the burden and permit that remaining unmarried member of the family to enjoy the privileges of marriage, too.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts a post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician, who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron and Baronne Henri de Bellesnaves, Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel. Sarah gathers that Dr. Gilcrest is in love with the baroness. Harry arrives. The evil looking gardener of the De Bellesnaves arouses Sarah's suspicion. Beryl Tomlins dies suddenly. She had just had a prescription of Dr. Gilcrest's filled by his dispenser, Marjorie Barrows. Sarah had received capsules for Miss Venables at the same time. Dr. Gilcrest states that her death was caused by an intestinal hemorrhage. Miss Venables receives another threatening letter telling her she has one more day to live. The fatal day comes. Harry is on a visit to Monte Carlo. The baroness has gone to Arles for the day. Mrs. Cripps, Beryl Tomlins' sister, has tea with Miss Venables. The day passes safely. Miss Venables takes her capsule and retires. Shortly after Sarah is awakened by her agonized call. She dies within the hour, after declaring to Sarah that she was poisoned. In a letter she left Sarah, enclosing 100 pounds, she asks her to demand a post-mortem in case of her sudden death.

INSTALMENT XXXV.
ACCUSATION.

Gilcrest was still beside the bed, looking down. Hearing Sarah's step he turned, revealing to her a face leaden gray in tint, set and drawn as by a stupendous effort of will, but negatively impassive. What emotion was he struggling to conceal? As on that other occasion, she could not tell. She paused three paces away, the strong overhead light shining on both of them. Her throat was dry, the voice which came from it seemed to belong to a stranger.

"Dr. Gilcrest," she said steadily, "before we go into this, I had better make one thing quite clear. One of us—and it should, I think, be you—will have to insist on a post-mortem."

"Post-mortem?"

She met his gaze without flinching.

"Yes. She believed, you see, that she was poisoned. She told me so, and left definite instructions. How does one go about it?"

"And you—do you think it was poison too?"

He had laid his hand on her arm. Trying to placate her, a voice whispered—as he had wanted to do yesterday. Perhaps he had been advised to take this course. . . . She backed away from him.

"You think I'm hysterical? I'm not. Mrs. Bulstrode heard what she said, only she won't tell you, because she wants to believe it was delirium. It wasn't. She was as sane as you or I."

He was silent for another long moment. When he spoke his voice was low and expressionless. "And you?" he asked. "Do you think it was poison, too?"

"What I think doesn't matter, does it? But—it does seem to me possible." She looked him straight in the eyes.

Friends a few hours ago, and now—were they enemies? As they stood there facing each other it seemed to Sarah that Gilcrest was stupefied, nonplused by the change in her.

"Let me assure you," he said with an effort, simply, logically, as though expounding matters to a child, "there can be little doubt over what has happened, lamentable though it is. Several times, before Miss Venables came under my care, she narrowly escaped an operation for gastric ulcer. For two years she improved, but last spring she slipped back into her former condition. She was a highly nervous subject, you know. . . . When I saw her after an interval of almost a year—she had come to London, knowing I would be there, in order to consult me about returning to this place—I was shocked by the alteration in her appearance."

"And you advised her to come here?" Sarah demanded.

"I did, certainly. She had made up her mind in any case, and was sure to be happier in her old surroundings. I see, you are thinking about the persecution business. Whatever your opinions, common sense will tell you she was as safe here as elsewhere, and in many ways better off. With a nervous system like hers there was always a danger of the gastric trouble recurring, for which reason I've watched her closely, or tried to do so."

"It took in all a little over an hour. Is that usual?"

"Not very, but it does happen. It depends on several things—general stamina, rapidity of development, exact location of the ulcer—but what is bothering you?" His voice, though abrupt, was kind. "Haven't I made matters sufficiently clear?"

"Quite clear," she said carefully, "why she ought to have died from gastric ulcer. Not at all clear that she did die from that cause. Aren't you trying to convince yourself as well as me?"

"Why in God's name do you say that?" he flashed back, turning a dull red. "I'm only doing my best to disabuse your mind of an utterly absurd idea. This isn't poison. There's not a single indication of it. Don't you suppose I should know? I don't say it's not a shocking, damnable occurrence. It is. Why, I saw her only last night! Was she feeling ill and keeping it dark?"

"Listen. I'd better tell you the whole story."

He gave attentive ear.

"So that's what happened! I'm understanding things. At least," he corrected himself, "according to her these gastric bouts always went hand in hand with the mental disturbances. . . . Couldn't you have given me a hint? I felt something was wrong. If I'd had any inkling——"

She interrupted him coldly.

"You believe that fright brought on this attack? I'm sure it didn't. If she'd shown any sign of real illness I'd have sent for you, but beyond a very slight discomfort the evening you were here there's been nothing, nothing."

"In most cases they faint at first, and the pain comes later," he remarked. "But you say she was asleep? Then we can't know what happened, can we? No belief can alter facts."

"Perhaps you're mistaken about the facts," she retorted. "If I report this—as I must do, if you refuse— the chef de commissaire may insist on an investigation."

"You think so?"—dryly. "I'm afraid you've little knowledge of the official attitude in this country. The French authorities aren't likely to concern themselves over an alien's death unless direct pressure is brought by the next of kin. You may find that Venables is entirely satisfied with the death certificate I, in all confidence, am prepared to sign."

"Harry be satisfied? I promise you he'll do everything in his power to carry out his aunt's wishes."

"You seem very certain," he observed caustically.

"You'll see," she said. "But I think you'd better read the note Miss Venables wrote me twenty-four hours before she was taken ill. It will show you exactly how she felt."

She watched him narrowly as he took the note and studied the dead woman's fine, sloping characters, saw his expression alter, but not quite as she had expected. He seemed to ponder before replying—playing for time, she thought.

"I see," he mused. "Well . . ." He drew a deep breath. "As you probably realize, a matter as important as this calls for more consideration than either you or I can give to it now. Suppose we postpone further discussion till tomorrow morning, after we've both had some sleep and a chance to think things over? I'll be with you at nine, and when Venables arrives we can tell him what's decided. You agree to that?"

"Certainly—though I shall feel exactly as I do now."

There remained his own letter from Miss Venables, and this he must have at once. With a word of explanation she crossed to the bed table and took it out of the drawer.

With the envelope in her hand she hesitated, and then, half ashamed of her action, did something she hoped he did not see. Turning she handed him his letter, which appeared to puzzle him.

"For me? Written at the same time?"

"You were to have it if she died. There's one for Harry, and another besides." She could not bring herself to mention the baroness' name. "Good night."

He slipped the envelope into his pocket.

Two Rules for Posture.

K. P.: Two simple rules to follow, and your posture will show great improvement in a short time. Hold up your chest. By this simple movement your abdomen is pulled in, your back becomes straightened, and your shoulders fall into an easy line. Point your toes straight ahead. Child Should Be Taught the Beauty of Work

Modern Art Shows How to Dignify Commonplace.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Do you remember the kind of art we used to have before the modern art movement permeated America? And do you go to art exhibits now and realize the difference?

One glorious thing modern art has done has been to make us aware of many things we were blind to—to find interest in the everyday things of life, and often beauty.

Wanda Gag can give a kitchen stove intense interest. Another artist has made the dilapidated "L" station a thing of hilarity and beauty. Miners at work in the tunnels, factory workers, weary and bent, returning from their work, children dancing in the street to a hurdy gurdy, turbines or fly wheels or generating plants are considered worthy subjects for our best artists. The depression has reinstated the dignity of all work. No matter what kind it is, labor is honorable, and a part of man's inheritance.

There is a little boy whose parents are wealthy and sensible. There is another little boy whose parents are wealthy and not sensible. They were discussing railroads.

"I can get a ride on a railroad any time I want," said one, boastfully.

"You can—really?" answered the other. 'Does your father work on a locomotive?" This last wistfully and wishfully.

"Huh! I should say not. He has a big office and a shiny desk. He isn't a working man."

"O, in an office," said the other, his voice falling—and I wish we had some tiny type to represent the shrinking of his interest. "I thought perhaps he was an ENGINEER or a FIREMAN." And only large type can give the effect of the difference in his voice.

If you are of the white collar class or are in the upper rounds of the ladder financially, are you sure that your attitude—not only the surface attitude but your inner feeling—is one that all and any kind of honest work is honorable—that those of us who labor with our hands are doing as worthwhile work as those of us who work with our minds?

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A WELCOME LETTER FROM CANADA.

Mr. R. A. Flavell of Grenfell, Sask., writes me requesting the bidding procedure on two hands; and I think that many other readers of these articles may care to follow the reasoning which I can best give by "thinking the bidding aloud"—if only to check up on their understanding of earlier articles covering these points.

SOUTH

♣K-Q-x-x

South, dealer. One spade.

West. If vulnerable, cannot advisedly risk a double and should pass. If not vulnerable, an interference double would be quite justifiable.

North. Two diamonds. If West has doubled, this bid is much more constructive than if that player has passed. No question of any jump takeout, obviously, as all the stuff is in one suit, while this player cannot be at all sure of a fit for his partner's spades until the latter has rebid them.

East. Pass. Diamonds is his suit, too.

South. Three clubs. A constructive rebid, paving the way to game in either spades, no trumps, or clubs; possibly in hearts if North can bid them secondarily. Also, by showing a black suit two-suiter, he is preparing to convey to his partner the information that the diamond suit is a misfit and a duplication.

West. Pass. From now on, this pair can make no further move. The barricade double, if West did double, has failed to disconcert the enemy; so West must now keep quiet, hoping they will overbid or misbid against his three almost sure defensive tricks.

North. Three diamonds, picturing his hand—or rather, its limitations—and denying support for either black suit; until rebid, at any rate.

South. Three spades, showing five or more in that suit and disclaiming any interest in diamonds or no trumps.

North. Four spades. The picture is now clear; the diamonds are mostly duplication, but in conjunction with the heart singleton, will give South sufficient early control of the off suits to enable him to discard as well as ruff some losing hearts, and to stand a trump lead. Spades is plainly the right spot, and game must be bid in that suit whether it can be made—as actually it can—or must perhaps go down one if the adverse distribution is awkward.

The Second Hand Is a Slam.

NORTH	SOUTH [Dealer]
Sp.—J x x	Sp.—A x x
Ht.—x x	Ht.—A K Q J
Di.—K Q x x x	Di.—A 10 x x
Cl.—K x x	Cl.—A 10

The opponents never bid, and their hands need not be given.

South. One heart. This would be a bad no trump bid as if the partner has four small hearts but little else, the partnership may have a spread for four hearts, but no play for more than one or two no trumps. Also, this hand is of dummy type, not declarer type; so it is desirable that North should be the first to mention no trumps if his hand is weak and it is touch-and-go for three no trumps.

North. Two diamonds.

South. Three no trumps, one of the most urgent slam tries in my system. This shows at least one high diamond, which North, of course, knows to be the ace; and high card control of the unbid suits, and reserve primary values in excess of the opening bid.

North. Four no trumps. He does not want to bid merely four diamonds, preparing for a signoff at five diamonds. He wants to confirm the length and now evident solidity of his diamonds and show some outside high card—the king of clubs.

South. Six no trumps. If North had a second high card such as the king of spades as well as what he actually has, he could read South for all the aces and might well bid seven despite the possibility of a heart finesse being necessary. With an ace instead of a king in an off suit, he certainly could bid seven. As it is, he must pass as South may hold K-Q-10 or so in spades and not the ace.

Underweight Remediable by Rest and Diet

Fashion Vetoes Figure That Is Too Thin.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We are so busy most of the time, looking after the overweight problems, we're inclined to forget about that other group left hanging out on the limb, the underweights. They "can't go near the water," either, if they haven't the figure to pictorialize the bathing suit. They have to fill out the Patou or Augustabernard model according to the new C. O. [curved outline] code. [By the way, why shouldn't we go in for alphabet jigsaws? We're doing relief work on figgers, aren't we?]

I'll think up one for the fats one of these days. You hollow chested, skinny-armed-and-legged ones can subscribe to the C. O. in the meantime. You really ought to be getting more attention because skinniness just doesn't get the admiring glance any more. You have to have a good chest and bustline and arms and legs with more than skin and bone thereon.

If you're underweight because you're not well, I can't do a thing for you. Or, won't. That's your doctor's job and none other's. But if you're one of those women whose days and nights are continued rounds of more or less senseless activity, I can tell you that you'd better pipe down and take hold of yourself before the family calls in the medico. You have to force yourself to take rest periods, get to bed earlier, and take a day in bed once in a while to calm you down, whether you enjoy it or not.

If you're guilty of hurried eating, which you thin ones are, stop it. Get up early enough to eat a good hearty breakfast. And eat it, your fruit juice, oatmeal with a pat of butter worked in, cream and sugar, loads of butter on your toast. Butter is a great weight builder. Add it to your meat, to your vegetables. It's easily assimilated and nourishing.

Your diet should contain around 2,500 calories a day.

A balanced diet is what you need, which means including plenty of vegetables and fruits. Drink milk at the end of each meal so as not to interfere with consumption of other needed foods. Take extra milk in the form of cream soups and milk and custard desserts. Fats in the form of butter, cream, bacon, nuts, and vegetable oils should make up a large portion of your 2,500 calories.

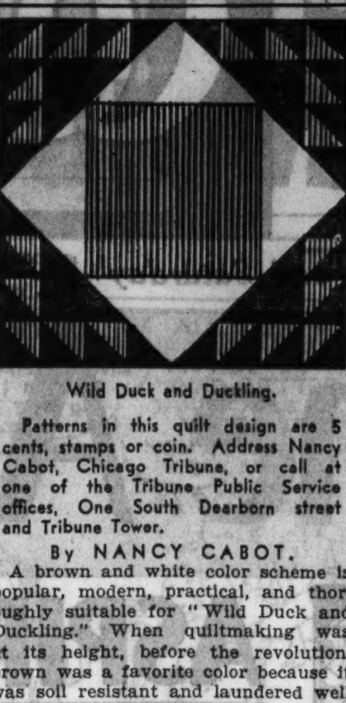
Brown and White Color Scheme Is Ideal for Quilt



Wild Duck and Duckling.

Patterns in this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By NANCY CABOT.

A brown and white color scheme is popular, modern, practical, and thoroughly suitable for "Wild Duck and Duckling." When quiltmaking was at its height, before the revolution, brown was a favorite color because it was soil resistant and laundered well without danger of fading or "running."

FENWICK LOSES 24 TO 18 LOYOLA TOURNEY GAME

St. Xavier Sets New Scoring Record.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

[BOX SCORES ON FOLLOWING PAGE.]

Fenwick High school of Oak Park was eliminated from the National Catholic basketball tournament when it was beaten by Marmion academy of Aurora, 24 to 18, last night at Loyola university gymnasium.

The game was marked by the most determined guarding shown thus far in the tournament. Seldom was any member of either team able to get in close for an easy shot. So effective was the defense that the first quarter ended 3 to 3, and the half 8 to 7, with Marmion in the lead.

In the third period the Aurora team began drawing away, improving steadily in its passing as the game advanced. No matter how close the guarding neither quintet showed a tendency to lose its head and try wild shots at the basket. The third quarter ended 16 to 10 in Marmion's favor, and for the rest of the way Fenwick was unable to come closer than four points from the pacesetters.

St. Xavier Sets Record.

A number of highly rated teams devoted themselves to piling up enormous scores against hapless opponents during yesterday's morning and afternoon games.

The outstanding performance was given by St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky., which defeated St. Benedict of Shawnee, Okla., 77 to 17. St. Xavier's total constituted a new record for the tournment, the previous mark of 55 points having been set by Campion academy of Prairie Du Chien, Wis., in 1931. In the opening minute of the last quarter, St. Xavier made its 55th point and continued to score until it had improved the old record by 22 points.

Phil Reverman, St. Xavier forward, established a new individual mark in the same game, his total of 29 points breaking the record of 23 set by Ed Krause of De La Salle in 1929. With two minutes to play, Reverman equaled Krause's record and then made three more baskets in quick succession. His 29 points consisted of 14 field goals and one free throw.

St. Xavier teams are well known to followers of the tournament, this institution having won the championship in 1926. This season's representatives earned a large following by yesterday's performance, but they have yet to show what they can do against first class competition.

St. Mary's High school of Huntington, Ind., another old time favorite of the tournament fans, came through its first round game in impressive fashion, defeating Notre Dame academy of Mitchell, S. D., 50 to 9. In the last half Notre Dame made only one field goal.

Milwaukee Team Wins.

Milwaukee's entry, St. John's Cathedral, had little trouble eliminating St. Mary of Niagara Falls, N. Y., 33 to 13; De Padua of Ashland, Wis., thoroughly outclassed St. Elizabeth of Oakland, Cal., 30 to 16, and St. Catherine's of Racine whipped Serra, of Hollister, Cal., 24 to 22.

The first round will be concluded this morning when De Paul academy plays De La Salle of Minneapolis and St. Mel meets Reitz Memorial of Evansville, Ind.

GOLDEN GLOVERS WAGE FIGHT FOR TEAM POSITIONS

The fight for places on the Golden Gloves team which will clash with New York in the intercity matches at the Chicago Stadium next Friday is on in earnest at the Illinois Athletic club. Whereas practice bouts between members of the Chicago squad on the three previous days were spirited, the battling became terrific yesterday.

As in previous years, the eight champions will meet the best of the eastern invaders, unless a champion is injured or is taken ill. Then the next best man will supplant him. Principals in the eight preliminary matches who will meet New York's second stringers will not be selected, however, until after the training routine is ended Thursday of next week.

Everybody Has a Chance.

Accordingly, despite the fact a boy is runnerup to the champion, he will lose out to the alternate in his division if the latter shows marked superiority. All 24 fighters—eight champions, as many runnersup and eight alternates—want to whip a New York foe. Eight will be disappointed, and every one on the team is trying desperately and hoping his name will not be among the octet on the black list.

Take, for example, the drill between Clint Bridges, colored 175 pound third stringer, and Chet Le Vere of the Allerton hotel. Le Vere was eliminated in the north side trials when he lost on a foul. That didn't stop him from trying to make a show of Bridges. As a result the colored sharpshooter and Le Vere fought in a thrilling manner for three minutes. They were scheduled to box another round, but the slugging was so enthusiastic in the first round Coach Johnny Behr called a halt, fearing one or both might be injured.

These Were Good, Too.

Then take the one round workouts between George Dungey, third string lightweight, and Lorenzo Lovings, runnerup in the same division, and Kenny Lottman, Northwest gymnasium, and Jesse Levels, flyweight runnerup. These two bouts were followed in the ring by a one round encounter between Jimmy Urso, 112 pound alternate, and Lottman. And so on down the line the warfare continued until late in the afternoon.

Coach Behr said the boxers were

Schaller-Buhler Bike Team Ties Reboli-Thomas for Lead

BY FRENCH LANE.

Slowly, but with a machinelike pace that had every other rider in the six day bicycle race at the Chicago Stadium worried to a point where hair was standing on end, the "big team" of Letourner and Georgetti pulled up nearer the leaders last night.

At 1 a. m. the red jerseyed favorites, who have picked up nine laps in three nights of brilliant riding, were but three laps out of first place.

The Schaller-Buhler and Reboli-Thomas teams were tied for first place, yet they, too, were frightened and were looking around trying to find out what Letourner and Georgetti were doing.

Two Teams Tie for Second.

A lap behind the leaders, tied for third place, were the Rodman-Ritter and Krosmeier-Ehmer combinations.

Letourner and Georgetti were in fourth place and there was no telling when they would move forward another notch. Their followers in the crowd of 10,000 hardly had a lung left when they finished up the job of cheering for them.

The Frenchman and the Italian have been riding a smart race, however, and their followers now believe they will be content to let some other team make the pace until the race nears the end tomorrow night. Then they expect to see the fleet fellows in the red jackets dash on to victory.

That would be the perfect story book tale of the thirty-third international six day race in Chicago, and even the hardened reporters in the press box are beginning to look forward to the grand climax.

Peden, Audy Win 12 Sprints.

Torchy Peden and his teammate, Jules Audy, gave the greatest speed exhibition of the week last night when they won a dozen of the 20 sprints staged at 9 o'clock and at 11 o'clock. They made little progress toward the lead, but they did pull themselves out of last place and were pedaling along in ninth position as the midnight hour neared. Still they were ten lengths back of the leaders.

Frank Kramer, the Orange, N. J., police commissioner who is the referee of the race and virtually boss of it, grumbled considerably at the riders during the afternoon and night sessions.

Deals Out Penalties.

He came to the conclusion that some of the boys were growing a bit careless with their work, so during a dull session he read the riot act to them. Then just to show that he wasn't making any loose talk he proceeded to penalize five teams a total of nine laps during the afternoon sprints and four teams seven laps last night.

Bob Lipsett, who was penalized a lap on three occasions, asked Torchy Peden, "who is that guy, a Supreme court judge?"

Kramer's rulings stood as he made them. There was no one to give a minority dissenting opinion.

Walthour, Yates Out.

Referee Kramer reduced the field to 11 teams by ordering the combination of Bobby Walthour and Cecil Yates out of the race shortly before 3 o'clock. They were 20 laps behind at the time. This caused Peden and Audy to become the rear guards for a while.

The results of the 1 a. m. sprints:

1—Buhler, Audy, McNamara, Reboli.
2—Lands, Georgetti, Deulberg, Grimm.
3—Spencer, Rodman, Wissel, Lipsett.
4—Thomas, Testa, Krosmeier, Grimm.
5—Ehmer, Reboli, Letourner, Lipsett.
6—Peden, Testa, Georgetti, Krosmeier.
7—Wissel, Buhler, Spencer, Audy.
8—Ritter, Testa, Lands, Croley.
9—Wissel, Buhler, McNamara, Reboli.
10—Ritter, Peden, Schaller, Georgetti.

MACK GARNER IS SET DOWN; ROUGH RIDING CHARGED

Miami, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Mack Garner, 35 year old veteran of the saddle, today was suspended for the remainder of the Tropical Park meeting for rough riding aboard W. A. Jones' Furfiber in the six furlongs of the Ocoee purse at the Florida course. The meeting closes April 1.

Furfiber led the field of four other speedy sprinters in the fast time of 1:11 4-5, but the stewards charged he had fouled Mrs. C. S. Bromley's Brannon.

Champaign, Ill., March 21.—[Special.]—Thornton High school of Harvey, which lost out in the final game for the 1934 Illinois high school basketball championship, took up the chase for 1935 honors today with a 43-30 victory over Marion.

Thornton players had plenty to worry about, however, as they prepared to meet Peoria Central in the second round tomorrow. Also among today's winners was Quincy, last year's title holder, which defeated Rockford, 27 to 24. Thornton was left alone to represent the Chicago area when Deerfield-Shields was whipped by Champaign, 25 to 21.

Crowds Set Record.

Record crowds totaling 17,700 attended the three first round sessions of the tournament at the University of Illinois men's gymnasium. C. E. Bowen, ticket manager, said morning attendance was 3,500; afternoon, 7,000, and evening, 7,200. More than 500 were turned away tonight.

Three sharpshooters aided Thornton in its victory over the Marion quintet. Ken Hellmann and Gordon McComb each scored six baskets and a free throw, while McMorris dropped in five baskets and a free throw.

Cheered on by a sizeable delegation of home town fans, Champaign rallied in the third quarter to eliminate Deerfield-Shields. Champaign, trailing at half time, 12-6, scored 12 points to Deerfield's 4 in the third quarter and forged ahead, 18-16.

Another rally, also in the third period and also just as successful, brought Quincy through to victory over Rockford. At the end of the first half Rockford was ahead, 12 to 11, but when play was resumed Reuben Berkowitz of Quincy dropped in three field goals from long range. With two minutes to go Rockford was within three points of the champions, but couldn't catch up.

Joliet Blanked Two Periods.

Joliet's team played two bad quarters and two good ones against Moline. In the first quarter Joliet failed to score a point, but in the second picked up 11, and was trailing only 14-11 at half time. Joliet again failed to score in the third period, and Moline flashed out into a safe lead, eventually winning, 34-15.

Springfield's tall team, champion of the Big 12 conference, whipped Mount Carmel, 25 to 21, with Herb Scheffler, center, leading the way with 11 points.

Intercity Team to See Film of Golden Gloves

Chicago's intercity team this morning will see a preview of the motion picture, "Golden Gloves Champions," which will be released in Chicago and scores of other midwest cities in the next few days. The three reel film not only shows the eight championship bouts blow by blow but also contains some shots behind the scenes of the machinery which makes the Golden Gloves tournament a model of promotional efficiency.

College athletic directors, football coaches, famous professional fighters, and other sports celebrities appear in the picture. The film will run in at least 250 theaters from Cleveland to Omaha and from the Canadian line to the Gulf of Mexico. This is the territory embraced in the Chicago tournament.

Rain Halts Sox; To Start Series with Pirates Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 21.—Rainfall took a bit of a kick at today's White Sox training program, which was to be an exhibition against the Hollywood Coast league Sheiks. The game wasn't possible, but so far as the Sox were concerned there were no regrets. Manager Jimmy Dykes welcomed the rest because his boys have a strenuous schedule immediately ahead. Now he can cease clamoring for concellation of the contest scheduled against the Pirates at San Bernardino next Monday.

Had today's exhibition been put on Dykes was going to start with a lineup vastly different from that of the games played to date. He was going to have an outfield made up of Bud Hafey, Al Simmons, and Mule Haas, reading from left to right. He was going to install Marty Hopkins at short in Luke Appling's place. Among other novelties that couldn't be revealed because of the rain was the playing of Glen Wright at first base.

Remember This Outfield.

The above was planned merely because Dykes wanted to see how it would work out. It will be tried later, although not tomorrow when the long series with the Pirates begins. This outfield made up of Hafey, Simmons and the veteran Haas is worth keeping in mind. It wouldn't surprise many people if this same trio should be among those active when the regular season opens April 16. To prevent this lineup in the outfield Vernon George Washington and Rip Radcliff, the two now highly thought of rookies, will have to do some fancy hitting during the next few weeks.

The idea to give Hopkins a whack at short is not with any thought that he will be able to displace Appling. The latter is too handy with his bat. But the Sox need a second string man in case Appling should come up with another bad ankle. Dykes believes Hopkins is the fellow for such an emergency. There isn't any reason to doubt his ability at the post. He played short for Earl Mack's Barnstormers last fall and was a revelation to the latter. Hopkins also will be a third base replacement.

Tietje Pitches Today.

Tomorrow's pitching strength against the Pirates will have to come from Les Tietje, Whitlow Wyatt, and Vernon Kennedy, the first and last named being billed for regular starting jobs this coming season. Dykes has no definite plans for Wyatt, either as relief or starter, because Whit hasn't yet revealed that he has overcome his old lack of control.

The Pirate pitching for tomorrow will be somewhat of a Cub alumnus affair. None other than Guy Bush, who won eighteen games, and Jim Weaver, who won eleven, for the Cubs last season, only to be shuffled off in what appeared to be a one-sided deal, will work for the Pirates.

John Lefty Michaels, George Earnshaw, and Babe Phelps will be employed Saturday against the Pirates. Earnshaw wasn't much of a performer in one of the two beatings handed the Cubs, but this caused no concern. He was trying to get by without putting too much strain on his aged arm. He was cracked on the shin by a line drive off Augie Galan's bat that afternoon and for a time it was thought to have serious possibilities, but an x-ray revealed that there was no damage beyond a bruise. He pitched to batters yesterday.

WARNEKE AND FRENCH PUZZLE COAST BATTERS

Hartnett, Herman Top Sluggers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakland, Cal., March 21.—Vice President Charley John Grimm today abandoned his policy of kindness toward wandering schoolboy pitchers, pitched a couple of Cubs who'll be Cubs when summer comes, and inspired his fellows to bear down and play a game of baseball for a change. The aforesaid major league pitchers are named Lawrence French and Lon Warneke and the score was Chicago 9, Oakland 0.

French, who has been crying for work ever since he took a licking from the White Sox in Los Angeles last Saturday, held the Oaks to two hits in five innings and struck out six, including three in the fifth. Warneke was a little more generous, allowing the enemy four safe ones.

Batting Practice Helps.

Vice President Grimm, aroused by the fact that yesterday and the day before his outfit had been tortured by rookie pitchers on a grand total of nine hits in two days, rooted his jolly stalwarts out for morning batting practice. Whether this helped sharpen up the boys is not known, but the evidence in the matter was fifteen hits. Billy Herman was in the lineup after his spell of sickness and returned with a bang. He made four hits in five times at bat. Gabby Hartnett made three hits in three times at bat.

Tomorrow the Cubs will play Lefty O'Doul's Seals of the Coast league at San Francisco. Bill Lee is scheduled to make his exhibition season bow and Clay Bryant also will be asked to work.

Cubs Score in First.

A two base throwing error by Hawkins on Stainback's grounder enabled the Cubs to bust through for a run in the first inning. Stainback advanced to third on Herman's single to right and scored on Demaree's fly to left.

In the Oaks' half of the first inning Keyes singled and Bryan walked after two were out, but French called a halt by fanning Muller.

Hartnett singled with one down in the second but French fanned and Stainback forced Gabby with a tap to Molesworth. In the Oakland half Molesworth doubled to the left field fence and McMullen walked. Douglas forced McMullen, Molesworth stopping at third. The threat evaporated when Mailho flied to Cuyler.

Cuyler Drives in Two.

Walks to Herman and Lindstrom and a double by Cuyler were good for two runs in the third.

Errors by Lindstrom and Jurges gave the Oaks an opening in the home third, but Anton was called out on strikes to retire the side.

Hartnett opened the fourth with a double. He went to third on French's single to left. Stainback popped to Hawkins, but Herman doubled to left, Hartnett scoring and French stopping at third. Demaree singled to left, scoring French and Herman. Lindstrom singled to left. Cuyler and Grimm could not help.

Hartnett made it three hits in a row when he singled in the fifth, but nothing came of it for Gabby later was forced by Stainback for the third out.

Nice Work, Larry!

French concluded his work in the fifth by fanning Mailho and Hawkins, walking Keyes and striking out Bryan.

Herman led off against Ludolph with a single at the start of the sixth and reached third when Muller errored on Klein's grounder. Lindstrom singled to left, Herman scoring and Klein reaching third. Lindstrom was doubled off first on Cuyler's liner and Cavarretta flied to Keyes.

The Cubs netted two more in the eighth and had the bases full when the fire was extinguished.

MULCAHY LOSES TO WRIGHT IN ST. HILARY BOUT

Capacity Crowd Watches Charity Show.

Herman Wright of the Savoy Athletic club last night won a three round decision over Jerry Mulcahy of Hennis' gymnasium in the windup of the annual charity boxing show at the St. Hilary church auditorium, California and Bryn Mawr avenues. A capacity crowd, which included Barney Ross, Joe Louis, and the eight champions of the recent Golden Gloves tournament, watched the show. Other results:

Stanley Stockings knocked out Joe De Pasquale [3].
William Goldsmith stopped Sam De Pasquale [1].
Pat Heneghan beat Mike Osher [3].
William Edwards knocked out Mickey O'Rell [1].
John Pecora knocked out Frank Scibior [1].
Joe Hackett beat William Malloy [3].
Milton Johnson beat Bud Leader [3].

A series of bouts between Mount Carmel High school boxers and a St. Bede college team will be held tonight at St. Bede, Peru, Ill. The Mount Carmel team includes J. Chern, J. Robinson, W. Heatherly, J. Siner, T. Heatherly, J. Nellis, E. Reardon, K. O'Ryan, E. Robinson, V. Gilbertson and J. Clancy. The Rev. Raymond Huttner, Mount Carmel athletic director, will make the trip. So will the Rev. Frederic Mannion, Arnold Reardon, Mike Murphy, and the Rev. Theodore Hutton.

Roy Lazer, Paterson, N. J., heavyweight, and Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., expect to clash in an eight round supporting bout on the card headed by Joe Louis and Natie Brown at Detroit Olympia next Friday. Both trained at Trafton's gymnasium yesterday. At the same gymnasium, Louis sparred several rounds with Willie Davies and Ed Wills. In an adjacent ring, Barney Ross boxed with Mickey O'Shea and Phil McQuillen for his twelve round junior welterweight title fight with Henry Woods at Seattle, Wash., April 9.

An amateur show will be offered tonight at De Bray's arena, 3968 Milwaukee avenue. Ernie Kulasik and Dennis Jones will be opponents in the five round windup.

Felix Kolk, connected with various Chicago gymnasiums in an official capacity for the last ten years, will open his own gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 227 West Madison street. The 29 year old physical culture and boxing instructor was employed by Kid Howard Carr from 1924 to 1929, when the latter operated his gymnasium at 62 West Madison street. He served under Dave Barry when the Tunney-Dempsey referee took over the Mullen gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street, five years ago. George Trafton, the old football player, took possession some months later and Felix's duties included management of the place. Kolk left Trafton's employ a year ago to obtain a position as athletic director at Mayfair casino, once Midwest Athletic club.

The Polish Youth organization will offer an amateur boxing card at P. Y. O. gymnasium, 4637 South Ashland avenue, tonight. Walter Dulcis, 1935 Golden Gloves novice heavyweight king, will clash with James Clanton in one of the eight contests. Another will match Tony Musto and Charles Williams. Other bouts:

Sam Zelins vs. Joey Conrad.
King Cole vs. Bert Jones.
Art Galesburg vs. Tony Dziatkiewicz.
Joe Skovson vs. Ray Esparza.
Orville Lee vs. Marty Williams.
Stanley Ducal vs. Walter Mayers.

SMITTY—THE STONE AGE

Professional, Amateur Net Stars to Play

Hans Nusslein, national professional tennis champion, and Vincent Richards will meet tomorrow night in a match which will headline an American Olympic fund benefit performance at the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

An unusual feature of the show is the presentation of both amateurs and professionals on the same bill—a proceeding hitherto almost unheard of in tennis circles. Ralph Westcott, secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis association, announced that that organization has sanctioned the show because not even profesionals will receive compensation. Everything will go to the Olympic fund.

The amateur part of the performance will consist of a doubles match between George and Russell Ball, Northwestern university, and Trevor Weiss and Elmore Patterson, University of Chicago.

After the Nusslein-Richards match George O'Connell will pair with Richards and George Jennings with Nusslein for a doubles match. Both Jennings and O'Connell are local professionals.

As an added attraction a sound film, "Winter Sports at Garmisch-Partenkirschen" will be presented. Garmisch-Partenkirschen is the site of the 1936 Olympic sports.

JOHNSON, A. A. U. HIGH JUMP KING, RULED INELIGIBLE

Pasadena, Cal., March 21.—(AP)—Cornelius Johnson, National A. A. U. high jump champion, was declared ineligible for further conference competition this season at a meeting held here yesterday, it was learned today. Johnson, it was said, had failed to enroll for the second semester at Compton Junior college within three weeks after classes reopened. He was competing in eastern indoor track and field meets at the time.

INDIANAPOLIS QUINTET BOWLS 2,876 AT A. B. C.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 21.—(AP)—The Indianapolis Hotel association, formerly the Berghoff Beers, rolled into sixth place in the American Bowling congress on the second five man squad tonight with a total of 2,876.

While no member of the team was able to click for a 600 series the outfit put together games of 901, 1001, and 974. Dan Abbott and Basil Hanna shared scoring honors for the team with totals of 586.

Indianapolis bowlers were responsible for the changes forced in the minor events during the afternoon. Don Johnson went into a tie with Carl Mensenberg, Scranton, Pa., for fourth with 672, and Lee Carmin took sixth place with 666 in the singles event. Johnny Fehr and Jess Pritchett tied for sixth in the doubles by connecting for 1,223.

REV. FARLEY OF NOTRE DAME AT SULLIVAN RITES

Notre Dame, Ind., March 21.—[Special.]—The Rev. John Farley, C. S. C., Notre Dame's 1900 football captain, left here today for New York to represent the university faculty and administration at the funeral of Joseph Sullivan, football captain elect, Saturday morning.

Father Farley was a close personal friend of Sullivan's. He has retained his ardent interest in Notre Dame athletics through his 28 years as a member of the Congregation of the Holy Cross. He has been rector of historic Sorin hall for seniors for several years.

142 Matmen Open College Tourney Today

Bethlehem, Pa., March 21.—(AP)—The biggest national collegiate wrestling tournament in the eight year history of the event will swing into action tomorrow with 142 wrestlers from 42 colleges entered.

Headed by the defending champion, Oklahoma A. & M., the field will cut itself to semi-final size through preliminary round competition tomorrow, and then will wind up Saturday.

Beats Record by 50 Per Cent.

The entry list this year eclipses by more than 50 per cent the number of contenders in the previous largest meet two years ago, when Lehigh was host to 86 wrestlers.

Defending their laurels in the current competition are the two lightweight athletes from Oklahoma A. & M.—Rex Peery, 118 pound titlist, and Ross Flood, 126 pounder. Wayne Martin, Oklahoma's lightweight crownholder, advances to the welterweight division this year. Peery and Flood are seeking to retain their titles for the third straight year.

Illini to Compete.

Illinois, Big Ten champion—Tufts, New England leader; Southern conference champions from Virginia Military institute and Washington and Lee and seven Missouri Valley champions from Oklahoma and Kansas State are represented in the preliminary round bracket.

YALE SWIMMING TEAM BREAKS RELAY RECORD

New Haven, Conn., March 21.—(AP)—Yale swimmers broke the national 400 yard short course intercollegiate relay record during a contest with Connecticut State college today which resulted in a 63 to 21 victory for Yale.

The new national record, set by the four man team, is 3:34.5. The former mark was 3:35.8 held by the Northwestern university.

In other first round games Grinnell downed McCallsburg, 29 to 24, and Ledyard defeated Luana, 23 to 18. Grinnell and Ledyard will clash tomorrow.

Bronson, a team from a consolidated school of 36 students, staged the first major upset of the tourney, when it defeated Washington, 21 to 19.

Davenport appeared invincible tonight as it walloped Sharon, 45 to 11. Davenport regulars played the first quarter, and then the second team continued to run up the score.

Murray High school's team that averages 6 feet 1½ inches in height, eliminated Forest City tonight in an overtime game, 31 to 27. Forest City, trailing all the way, rallied in the final quarter to tie the score at 27 all at the end of the game.

rapidly reaching the peak of condition. Most of them were so close to fighting edge he is contemplating giving the team its first layoff Sunday. At that rate, the letdown process would be started Monday with a light workout Tuesday and a grand splurge Wednesday when the last sparring sessions will be held.

The only ones who had no part in yesterday's punching festivities were Troy Bellini, No. 2 bantamweight, and Bill Borchert, No. 3 welterweight. Borchert was excused from sparring because of a slight stomach ache and Troy because of a sore nose. Each did four rounds of floor work.

The coaches sent out an S O S call for additional sparmates last night. They are attempting to obtain a couple of heavyweights, a light heavyweight, a middleweight, a welterweight, and a lightweight.

Behr Is Cautious.

Coach Behr is taking the recent announcement from New York that replacements are being made because of an attempted "shakedown" of the New York Daily News by some of the star boxers with a grain of salt.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the New York team detrain here Sunday with the original representatives," Behr said. "The gesture is just strategy on the part of the eastern coaches."

Dave Clark, the middleweight champion, became alarmed when he read he weighed 169½ pounds prior to Wednesday's workout and he got busy. He was four and a half pounds lighter yesterday. Even the boys in the heavier classes went to work with a vengeance in an effort to reduce. Big Otis Thomas has taken off nine pounds since he checked in. He now weighs 202. Lorenzo Pack, heavyweight first stringer was down to 198 from 204 the previous day, and Bridges worried handlers by paring down to 171, three pounds less than he scaled Wednesday and four under his division weight.

TWO HOUR N. Y. WORKOUT

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—New York's newly formed Golden Gloves team today opened training at Stillman's gymnasium. The boxers will stage their final drill in this city tomorrow, and Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock will board a special section of the Twentieth Century for Chicago. The annual inter-city matches are slated for the Chicago Stadium next Friday night.

Led by little Georgie Coyle, dynamic flyweight, and Charley Villareale, bantamweight, the two smallest men on the squad, the New Yorkers went through a smashing two hour rehersal.

Not one of the 42 Golden Glovers loafed for a minute during the fast workout. Louis Stipo, Dom Scappatura, Bjarne Ekeland, Tony Giello, Otis Johnson, and Gaetano Rosezzi, some of the newcomers on the squad, mixed it up with the holdovers who included Gaspare Abruzzo, Sedgewick Harvey, Johnny Cabello, Eddie Steele, James Howell, Larry Green, and Ray Olive.

Somehow or other these New York fighters give the impression that they will come through in the great tournament at Chicago. They have, from the start, displayed a great desire to win this year above all. They are on edge—ready to fight the whole of Chicago tomorrow night, if necessary.

Hard boxing will feature the drill tomorrow. Road work in the morning and a loosening up period will complete the drilling just before the departure Saturday.

MOSTLY about DOGS

By Bob Becker

Training Counts

The arrival of warm days, bringing an increase in the number of pet dogs being exercised in the open again emphasizes the need for some kind of training for dogs. Another complication of the season is that dogs not under control can cause a home owner no end of annoyance. Within a short time new lawns and flower beds will be getting a lot of attention from their owners. Nobody wants a freshly made flower bed trampled by roaming dogs.

An interesting demonstration of how much more pleasant it is to take a trained dog out for a walk than one that knows no discipline, was presented the other day when I was checking on the kind of dogs out for an airing and their behavior, along the Oak street beach. For about an hour the show was quite entertaining. Some of the notes jotted down were as follows:

Here come two Irish setters on a leash. Must be a handler in charge. Both dogs walk well on a leash. Now he is unleashing them. The question is: are they under control? What a lot of pep they have! But they do not run far, nor do they head for the street where the trafic is heavy. Here comes a wirehaired terrier on a leash. This will be a test. The terrier is literally dancing on his hind legs in his eagerness to meet the red setters. [No wonder Mrs. Becker is exclaiming over the picture that clean, well groomed terrier is making. He's an acrobat with personality, all right.]

The setter handler whistles and in come the red dogs. He puts them "down" on command. Nice work. One of the setters [obviously the younger dog] is barking an invitation to the handler to throw the ball because he wants the boss to start some fun.

Here comes a chow on a leash. This will be interesting because approaching from the opposite direction is another dog also being walked by a woman. This second canine is a cross bred. Long haired. It is rarin' to get at the chow, which shows no excitement. Here is a surprise. The owner of the chow gives the command to sit and down goes the dog, eyes on the other canine, but behaving beautifully. Now that the other canine has passed, still pulling and tugging at the leash, the chow is told to come along and away they go. The chow has had home training all right, or it could not have been commanded to sit and then stay put as it did.

That German shepherd out on the sand is certainly minding its business. It has eyes only for its master and the fun of retrieving. It is noticeable that when the dog shows any interest in a passing dog, it is given some command and immediately its attention is focused on the master and the sport of chasing a ball.

KANSAS CITY FIVE TRIUMPHS OVER DENVER PIGS, 30-28

Denver, Colo., March 21.—(AP)—The Southern Kansas Stage Lines, Kansas City, blasted the favored Denver Pigs out of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament here tonight before a capacity crowd of more than 6,000. The score of the quarter-final game was 30 to 28.

The big upset of the tournament was the Pigs' second defeat in their last 39 games. They had been rated all season as the odds-on favorite to win the first tournament ever held in their home town.

The Globe Refiners, McPherson, Kas., champion of the Missouri Valley league, defeated the Italian Athletic club, Seattle, 51 to 26.

TIGERS SCORE 2 IN NINTH TO BEAT BRAVES, 5-4

Rowe, Crowder Work for Detroit.

Lakeland, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers put on a ninth inning rally to defeat the Boston Braves, 5 to 4, in an exhibition game here today.

The American league champions came to bat in the ninth one run behind the Braves and collected the necessary two runs by combining a double by Fox, a single by Hayworth, and a triple by Gehringer. Fox scored the tying run when Walker, running for Hayworth, made a delayed steal of second and Lewis' throw was wide.

Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe pitched the first three innings, yielding four hits and fanning five, including Babe Ruth. The Bambino who played five innings but went hitless got an ovation from the crowd of 3,120. Crowder finished on the mound for the Tigers.

CARDINALS, 9; GIANTS, 3.

Bradenton, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—A seven run assault on Rookie Frank Gabler in the first inning today paved the way for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals' 9 to 3 victory over the New York Giants. It was the fourth straight setback for New York.

Gabler was knocked out temporarily by a drive from Joe Medwick's bat during the Cards' opening attack, and most of the damage came after the injury. The rookie right-hander stayed in the box, however, and pitched five innings.

MILLERS, 9; DODGERS, 6.

Deland, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Jess Petty, former major leaguer, hurled four hit ball for the last five innings as the Minneapolis Millers of the American association came from behind to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 6, today.

Ray Benge was on the mound when Harris, who made three hits, doubled in the ninth, and Gill followed with a single to send the Minneapolis first baseman home with the deciding run.

NEWARK, 3; RED SOX, 2.

Clearwater, Fla., March 21. — [Special.]—The Newark club of the International league today won a ten inning battle from the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 2. Newark scored seven hits, while the Red Sox collected five safeties. Score:

REDS, 5; YANKEES, 3.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Neither Russell Van Atta nor Johnny Murphy were much of a mystery to the Cincinnati Reds today as the National league club defeated the New York Yankees, 5 to 3, to even the two game series.

The Reds made thirteen hits, eight off Murphy in the last four innings. They bunched three hits with two errors to score three times in the fifth and counted twice more in the seventh on three singles and a couple of infield outs.

Lou Gehrig continued in his hitting slump, getting only one hit, a single, in four times at bat. In the ninth, with two men on and a chance to win the ball game, he fanned.

SENATORS, 7; INDIANS, 6.

Biloxi, Miss., March 20.—(AP)—A ninth inning triple by Jake Powell, rookie outfielder, that scored another freshman, Freddie Sington, gave Washington a 7 to 6 triumph over the Cleveland Indians here today. It was Washington's second victory in three exhibition starts.

Washington today announced the acquisition of Henry Coppola, right handed pitcher, from Albany in a deal which sent Ray Prim, a southpaw, back to Albany.

Tampa, Fla., March 21. — (AP) — The Phillies, helping themselves to offerings of minor league pitching, swept the Toronto Maple Leafs from Plant field today, 16 to 4.

Micky Haslin, at second for the National leaguers, knocked out four hits in five times up, followed by George Watkins, who doubled twice and singled. The Phils made 18 hits. Score:

Braves Happy; Ruth Assures Spring Profit

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Babe Ruth is hitting only .250 so far against the assorted pitching of the Grapefruit league, but the elderly Bambino is batting 1.000 at the box office.

The consequence is that the Boston Braves, in Broadway's parlance, will be "off the nut" for their spring training trip for the first time in the club's history.

Major league clubs count themselves extremely fortunate if they come close to breaking even on the cost of their pre-season activities. Most of them drop at least $10,000 on the conditioning process. The Braves, however, who need financial help no more than a drowning man needs a lifeline, will return to Boston with a substantial profit to show for their first Ruth inspired tour of the southland.

Pass 1933 Total Already.

With only eight of their 27 scheduled exhibition games played so far, including today's contest with the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland, Secretary Edmund P. Cunningham reports that the Braves already have collected more at the gate than they did in their entire 1934 training trip.

Ruth has been the magnet for 20,000 paid admissions, with total receipts figured around $12,000 and the Braves' cut at $6,500. Cunningham figures Ruth will help swell the total attendance for the exhibition route to 150,000. The club has single games scheduled in Washington, D. C. and Newark, N. J., April 7 and 9, and then three games with the rival Red Sox in Boston, April 12, 13, and 14. On the way north, an additional stop over has been arranged at Fayettville, N. C., where the Babe first trained in the south with the Baltimore Orioles.

Looks Like Babe Is Set.

The spring pay-off probably will be sufficient to cover most if not all of Ruth's $25,000 salary as well as the club's entire training expenses. The Babe has a personal cut in the exhibition profits in addition to the percentage he will get—as second vice president and assistant manager—during the regular season. Altogether it may prove one of the most successful financial ventures in the slugger's long career.

The proof seems conclusive that Ruth will draw as long as he can take his place in the regular lineup.

Y. SWIMMERS TO RACE FOR TITLES ON MAY 10 AND 11

The Chicago Y. M. C. A. swimming championships will be decided May 10 and 11 at George Williams college. Several new events in the junior, intermediate, and senior divisions will be added to the program.

Hawks, Maroons Drill for Opening Playoff Battle

MONTREAL, Que., March 21.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks and the Montreal Maroons went through a final workout at the Forum today in preparation for their first Stanley cup clash, which is scheduled for Saturday night. The second game will be played in Chicago Tuesday. The Montreal Canadiens, who are booked to open against the Rangers at Madison Square Garden Sunday night, left for New York today. The Toronto Maple Leafs open their best three out of five games series at Boston tomorrow night.

Of the six teams who will compete in the playoffs the Toronto team, because of its high scoring power, is looked upon as having the best chance to take the cup away from the world's champion Blackhawks. The Leafs' feat of compiling 157 goals in the season's play is a record under the present rules.

A couple of weeks ago nearly everybody thought Boston had a better than an outside chance to win the world's title, but their second 5-2 defeat at the hands of the Hawks upset calculations. In that game the Bruins did not look formidable either offensively or defensively.

The New York Rangers, who made the most spectacular dash of all the teams by going through 13 straight games without a defeat, staggered toward the finish of the season and this team of veterans may find itself unable to cope with the speed of the Canadiens.

By winning their last three games in easy style away from their home ice the Blackhawks showed themselves to be in better shape physically than any of the Stanley cup contenders. On the season's play the Maroons and Hawks split even, each winning three games. The Maroons had a slight edge in the scoring, making 15 goals to the Hawks' 14.

LAWSON LITTLE PLANS DEFENSE OF GOLF TITLES

Palo Alto, Cal., March 21.—(AP)—W. Lawson Little Jr., will toss his clubs back into the golfing wars in the next few days.

The world's top ranking amateur of 1934, just finished with his examinations at Stanford university, said today he would leave Saturday or Sunday on a tour that eventually will involve defense of his crowns, the national and British titles, and probably a shot at the British open.

Little's campaign will take him first to compete in Bobby Jones Masters' tournament at Augusta, Ga., early next month. Afterwards he plans to get in some practice at Pinehurst, N. C., and Washington, D. C., before sailing for England, probably on April 27, to prepare for the British amateur late in May.

He expects to stay over for the British open, thus missing the United States open.

Sir Malcolm Is Through at Daytona Beach

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell's speed argosy ended today—successful as far as figures in the record book are concerned—a complete washout for the man who will never rest until he drives an automobile 300 miles an hour.

He walked along Daytona's sands, where on March 7 he sent his mighty Bluebird roaring to a new world's record of 276.816 miles an hour, and shook his head. "It's no use," he said. "The beach isn't right. Pack up Old Lady Bluebird and let's go home."

So tonight his six mechanics were pulling the car apart after seven discouraging, often hazardous weeks here, crating and packing its tires and accessories for the trip back to England. There is more than a slight probability that the Bluebird never will run again on this beach, regardless of what Campbell does about speed records in the future.

Feels Limit Is Reached.

This trip has convinced the 50 year old titled Briton of several things—and the most important is that there are definite limits to the speed that can be accomplished on a sand sea beach.

What was smooth enough, long enough, for speeds up to 275 miles an hour, or even the 281 he hit on one of his record runs, is both too rough and too short when automobile wheels try to speed over it faster. The tiniest lumps, unnoticed at lower speeds, become mountains threatening to tear a car apart, punishing it terrifically, ripping the tires.

There was strong evidence, too, that the science of automobile engineering must make important discoveries before even Campbell can add more than a mile or two to his present mark, raised only a fraction more than four miles an hour above the 272.108 he set two years ago. Tires, tested for 300 miles an hour, apparently won't stand that speed under actual racing conditions. The innovation of four rear wheels instead of the normal two hasn't eliminated wheel slippage at top speeds.

Bluebird Faces Overhauling.

Campbell will take Bluebird back to England for a complete overhauling and is full of plans for his next venture. There is every likelihood he will be back in the United States, racing on the salt beds of Utah, perhaps in July.

He feels that only a manmade course can carry the speed he knows is inside Bluebird's monster hull, and he has gathered all available data, has watched motion pictures, of the rocklike salt stretches that reach for miles. Experts tell him it is the only stretch in the world where he has a chance to reach his 300 mile goal.

Bluebird will be trundled to a flat car tomorrow and will make New York in time to travel home on the Berengaria March 30 with Campbell.

Hamas Finds Crown Prince Can Take It

BERLIN, March 21.—(AP)—Steve Hamas, who fights for a living, and Ex-Crown Prince Wilhelm, to whom boxing is a hobby, engaged in a bout today—the former to show he has recovered from his beating by Max Schmeling, the latter to prove he can take it.

Perhaps a boxing match never before has been staged under such circumstances. It was held in a beautiful palace, ornate with porcelains, rich with tapestries, on Berlin's famous boulevard, Unter Den Linden. The palace now serves the Hohenzollern scion as an official residence.

Steve, hesitant in gait but otherwise apparently entirely recovered after ten days' rest in a sanitarium outside Berlin, spoke of his meeting with the ex-crown prince and their boxing bout as "corking."

Wilhelm Is Courteous.

The royal sportsman welcomed the Americans in the lobby of his sumptious dwelling. His first remark after greeting his visitors was to compliment Mrs. Hamas on her attire—her dress was in two tones of brown, with brown hat and coat. The prince inquired solicitously about Steve's health and was given a reassuring reply.

Then followed hours of conversation with Hamas about boxing and sport in general. This led to more direct action.

The prince jumped up, rolled up his sleeves to show his biceps, then hurled a challenge in ringing tones:

"Punch me there," he said, pointing to the solar plexus.

Steve obliged.

Hamas, relating the episode afterward, asserted he had given the prince "my hardest punch."

"Of course it wasn't as hard as some of those I gave Schmeling," the American added. "You see I'm not in training now."

Prince Seems Satisfied.

The prince, Hamas said, seemed satisfied with the demonstration. Wilhelm, who had given Hamas a gold cigaret case at Hamburg after the Schmeling bout, handed the Americans two autographed pictures, showing him in sports attire punching the bag.

Addressing the boxer in perfect English, the crown prince called him "Mister Hamas," but the American corrected him. "My name's Steve," said the fighter, and "Mister Steve" he was henceforth.

Adams Elected De Paul Basket Captain for 1936

Ray Adams, one of the leading scorers for the last two years on De Paul university's basketball team, has been elected captain for next season, Coach Jim Kelly announced last night following the annual banquet of the squad.

In the two seasons that Adams has played forward for the Demons they have been beaten only once—by Purdue.

Adams is a former St. Patricks Academy boy.

LASKY, BRADDOCK BATTLE TONIGHT IN 15 ROUND BOUT

New York, March 21.—(AP)—Another heat in Madison Square Garden's long drawn out heavyweight elimination tournament will be run off tomorrow night with Art Lasky, Minneapolis, and the veteran James J. Braddock meeting in a 15 round bout This is only the third match in the tournament inaugurated more than five months ago with the idea of developing a contender for Max Baer's title.

Lasky rules a favorite because of his ring polish and general boxing ability, but all admit that if Braddock who was in his heyday ten years ago, ever connects solidly with his right it is apt to be good night for the opposition.

The Garden will try to match Carnera with the winner.

PICKING ILLINOIS TURF WINNERS GETS TOUGHER

It's All Because of New Graded Handicaps.

When Chicago's thousands of hibernating race followers last January read dispatches from Miami that the annual convention of state racing commissioners had decided to do away with claiming races—save for horses of the cheapest sort—the news interested them so little that they rolled over and went back to sleep.

But when President John P. Harding of Washington Park, and his new racing secretary, Charley McLennan, arrived from Miami yesterday to explain what the new claiming rule will mean to Illinois racing this season, local turf enthusiasts awoke with a start. Today their pencils are being sharpened and the form charts of the winter meetings are being dug up with all haste, for it has become painfully apparent that picking winners this season is going to require care and research.

It'll Be Tougher Than Ever.

"The most commonly used guide to the class of horses—the claiming price for which they are entered—will be almost entirely lacking in the type of races which Illinois tracks expect to stage this year," McLennan pointed out. "All horses valued at $2,000 or more are barred from claiming races under the new rule, and will be forced to run in graded handicaps instead. The racegoer will have to make his own judgments as to class of horses and how weight affects them."

McLennan, who was one of the first racing secretaries to handle the new rule—he serves at Hialeah—expects to confer today with Secretary George Foster of the Illinois Racing commission, in order to get an idea of how many graded handicaps he will be expected to stage daily during the Washington Park meeting which opens May 25. Because of the rich purses and stakes the Homewood course is offering in its first meeting under new management, it is not likely that many horses of the cheaper sort will race there. And with few owners willing to risk their horses in races where they can be claimed for less than $2,000, most of the races on the daily cards will have to be either graded handicaps or allowance affairs.

Horses in Four Classes.

Under the graded handicap plan the racing secretary divides the thoroughbreds at his track into four classes. Horses in class A race among themselves, as do those in classes B, C, and D. The weights they carry are assigned by the racing secretary. Under the old claiming race method the owner or trainer of a horse decided against what sort of horses he wished to race, and if he dropped his horse down into company too cheap he was almost certain to have him claimed by some other horseman with an eye for a bargain.

With racing now popular in so many sections, and with so many opportunities for winning purses with a good horse, claiming reached a new high point during the early part of last season, and so many horses were being lost just as their trainers had brought them to winning condition that restrictive action had to be taken.

It's Up to Secretary.

"There is no denying that the new plan has its good points," McLennan admitted. "But it puts a great responsibility on the racing secretary at a major meeting. At Washington Park, for instance, there will be well over a thousand horses, and it is up to the secretary to decide whether they belong in class A, B, C, or D. Naturally, when no horse can be claimed from a graded handicap, most owners are going to insist that their horses should be placed in the easier competition afforded by class D races. However, the new rule is there, and with the fair trial that it will be given we all hope it will be satisfactory."

McLennan will leave Sunday for the Arlington Downs meeting in Texas, will go from there to Havre de Grace, and will return to Chicago about May 1 to take up his duties at Washington Park.

OLDE TYMERS, ALL-STARS TO MEET TONIGHT

The Olde Tymers, colored team, Central A. A. U. champions, will face the College All-Stars tonight at St. Phillip's gymnasium, Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue. The Olde Tymers have won 78 games. Leading the All-Stars will be three captains, Lyle Fisher and Al Kawal, Northwestern co-captains, and Frank Linskey, De Paul leader. Mike Novak, center, and Marven Colen, Loyola's leading scorer, will complete the All-Star lineup.

The Andy Frain Usherettes, 1935 Central A. A. U. girl champions, will meet the Club Store Co-eds, claimants of the national colored girls' championship. The Franklin Park and A. B. C. 105s will open the card.

TONY WILLAMAN FIGHTS TO HOLD AUTO RACE LEAD

Tony Willaman, point leading driver of the Midwest Auto Racing association, will be fighting to protect his front rank standing in the next series of races at the 124th Field Artillery armory Sunday night. Blending consistent driving with a fair share of racing luck, he has built up a formidable record during the current Chicago season.

Following Willaman in order are Ted Hartley, Harold Shaw, Pat Warren, and Wally Mitchell. The latter will return to the track Sunday with a new Barco special.

Englewood, 111th Street Win in Y. M. C. A. Tourney

Englewood, defending champion, and 111th Street last night advanced to the finals for the Y. M. C. A. city lightweight basketball championship. Englewood defeated Wabash, 39 to 25, while 111th Street eliminated Wilson, 26 to 23. They will meet for the title April 6 at the 132d armory.

GAIN IN ILLINOIS INDUSTRIES MORE THAN SEASONAL

Work and Wages Improve During February.

Industrial activity in Illinois during February, as measured by employment and wages, showed a greater than seasonal gain over January, the Illinois department of labor announced yesterday. The number of persons employed rose 2.4 per cent and pay rolls increased 4.3 per cent, compared with average increases of 0.8 and 2.2 per cent, respectively, in the twelve years from 1923-'34.

The survey is based upon the reports of 4,471 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing enterprises in the state. Gains were also reported by these industries over a year ago. The employment index, with the monthly average from 1925 to 1927 as 100, stood at 72.5 in February, compared with 68.0 in February, 1934, while the pay roll index was 56.7, against 48.8 a year ago.

Manufacturing Gain Largest.

Manufacturing industries, totaling 1,996, showed gains larger than the average change for all Illinois industries, employment rising 4.6 per cent over January and pay rolls 8 per cent. Nonmanufacturing industries, on the other hand, reported declines for the period, with employment off 0.8 per cent and pay rolls down 0.6 per cent.

Statistics by sex show that male workers increased 3.8 per cent and female, 1.6 per cent for all industries. Wages paid to men rose 6.3 per cent and those to women 3.5 per cent.

The number of man-hours worked in February increased 4.8 per cent over January for both sexes, while the number of man-hours worked rose 6.6 and 4.7 per cent for male and female workers, respectively.

Increases Largest in 12 Years.

Increases reported by the metal, machinery and conveyances group were the largest in twelve years employment rising 7.9 per cent and total wages 15 per cent over the preceding month.

Greater than seasonal gains were reported by the wood products and the fur and lether groups.

Of the nonmanufacturing industries, the greater than seasonal declines in employment and wages of the wholesale and retail groups offset contraseasonal gains in the services and public utility groups and a substantial improvement in the coal mining industry through more hours of work.

Weekly earnings of both sexes averaged $22.77 for all industries, $25.19 for men and $15.57 for women. In the manufacturing industries average weekly earnings were $21.88 for both sexes, $24.06 for men and $14.65 for women. In the nonmanufacturing industries weekly earnings of both sexes was $24.21 or $27.97 for male and $16.86 for female workers.

COTTON SAGS $1.50 A BALE BUT RALLY WIPES OUT LOSS

Reports from Washington indicating the administration had no intention to remove the processing tax on cotton caused a break of around $1.50 per bale from the early high point yesterday, but trade was not large and after scattered liquidation had been absorbed a rally got under way in sympathy with stocks and the finish was well toward the top. Closing trades in Chicago were 2 points higher to 7 points lower; New Orleans off 3 to 8 points and New York unchanged to 6.

Spot cotton closed 5 points lower to 5 points higher, with New Orleans 10.95 cents, Galveston and Houston 11 cents, and New York 11.05 cents per pound. Prices follow:

TREASURY CHIEF FLOUTS ECCLES' BANKING PLANS

Split on Control of Market Operations.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—A difference between the treasury and the federal reserve board on the question of control of open market operations of the federal reserve system was disclosed today. T. Jefferson Coolidge, undersecretary of the treasury, told the house banking and currency committee that he would not "subscribe" to a view held by Marriner S. Eccles, governor of the board.

The omnibus banking bill being considered calls for determination of open market policy by a committee composed of the governor of the board, two members of the board, and two governors of federal reserve banks, selected by the twelve governors. Eccles recommended to the committee that this be changed to vest policy power in the board.

Suggests Advisory Committee.

Eccles suggested a provision that an advisory committee of five bank governors must be consulted before the board could act. However, the board would not be bound in any way to follow advice of the committee.

"I cannot subscribe to that," Coolidge said today when Chairman Steagall asked him what he thought of the Eccles suggestion. "The money is owned by the reserve banks and some governors ought to be on the committee investing those funds."

Under the bill the reserve banks are required to "conform their open market operations to the provisions" of the policy determined by this committee, a feature whose intent is declared by the Republican members of the committee to be to enable the government to force reserve banks to buy its obligations even against the judgment of the bankers.

Fear U. S. Will Strain Credit.

"It is this compulsory situation which worries me chiefly," Representative Hollister [Rep., O.], ranking minority member of the committee, said today. "The credit resources of the country might be compelled to help the government as it continues to pile up deficits. There should be some way the massed opinions of the bankers of the country might be allowed to dissent from what they might consider a dangerous course."

Representative Gifford [Rep., Mass.] asked Coolidge if the treasury favored the bill because of the necessities of government financing.

"I favor it because it gives a control over the money market," Coolidge replied. "The treasury is now borrowing at very low rates and doesn't need this legislation. The banks buy government securities because of their earning power. While that may be a temporary situation, some one else may buy them later."

Warns of Federal Deficit.

"I think this committee is entitled to the views of the treasury on the dangers of financing deficits," Gifford said. "You and I come from a part of the country where we once heard a voice say: 'If the banks lend too much money to the government they won't have any left to lend to the people.'"

"Doesn't this bill give the government control of the banking system?" Gifford insisted. "It seems to me you encourage congress to spend all it wants to. I might as well vote for this soldiers' bonus."

Representatives Hancock [Dem., N. C.] and Brown [Dem., Mich.] came to Mr. Coolidge's support to say that the bill had no political implications; that it was designed to benefit the entire country, and that its effect would be to cause the banks to "loosen up" when they knew they could borrow from federal reserve banks on sound assets.

STEEL MERGER DECREE ABOUT MAY 1 EXPECTED

Cleveland, O., March 21.—(AP)—A decision in the government's suit to halt the proposed merger of the Republic Steel corporation and the Corrigan, McKinney Steel company will be delayed until May 1, Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond said today. Informed by defense counsel that its side of the case would be concluded tomorrow, Judge Raymond said he would give both sides until April 15 to file briefs in argument.

Donald G. Gillies, president of Corrigan-McKinney, testified today that if the proposed merger is not completed "I don't know what the future of my company will be."

"Unless we get some new form of financing I can't predict what will happen," he said.

The government, contending the merger would violate the Clayton anti-trust act, seeks an injunction. Defense witnesses said the merger would not influence competition in the steel industry nor would it make possible a combination or trust capable of influencing the steel market in any way.

MIDLAND UNITED TO DISCONTINUE ANNUAL MEETING

Annual stockholders' meetings of Midland United company have been discontinued until further notice in order to save expenses, according to G. C. Ellis, assistant to the vice president, yesterday. The company's meeting would ordinarily have been held yesterday.

In view of the fact that trustees in bankruptcy are in possession under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act, and the cost of postage alone in announcing the meeting to the 40,000 stockholders would be $1,200, directors felt that a meeting would be a useless expense.

Eccles' Plans Carry a Chill for Taxpayers

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Marriner S. Eccles, Utah banker who was hoisted into the chairmanship of the federal reserve board because he had a scheme for trying to restore prosperity by government borrowing and spending, yesterday ended ten days of testimony before the house banking and currency committee in favor of the banking bill which he has devised to carry out that scheme.

Packed into these ten days of testimony are thousands of words of economic theory. Many of the opinions expressed by the reserve board head were confusing even to the members of the committee and sometimes Eccles appeared to be contradicting himself, but the text of the banking bill and its sponsor's remarks make it clear that the gist of his scheme is approximately as follows:

1. Have the politicians at Washington spend billions of dollars to stimulate business and compensate for reduced private expenditures.

2. Borrow these billions from the banks.

3. Revise the banking laws to increase the government's grip on the banks so that it can force them to lend these billions to the government.

4. Don't do anything about providing for repayment of this borrowed money until the arrival of the prosperity its expenditure is supposed to bring makes it easier for taxpayers to bear the load. In other words, let the tax increases come after the next election.

* *

Mr. Eccles has said publicly that the "real money" of the nation consists of bank deposits and it has been adequately demonstrated during the last two years that bank deposits increase in proportion to the increase in the federal debt. That means inflation of what Eccles himself calls the nation's real money.

But he tells the congressional committee not to worry about inflation. "All this inflation talk we have heard for three years is imaginary," he is quoted in Washington dispatches as saying.

He goes on to add, however, "It is true that, based on excess reserves, there is the possibility of building a tremendous credit inflation.

"That doesn't mean you are going to get that inflation. You must get people willing to use the banks' credit.

"Unless the people in this country without money and without jobs are put into possession of money through jobs; unless the people and corporations with money will spend the money they have, inflation cannot be gotten by merely changing the gold content or by silver exchange."

From these remarks alone it isn't clear whether Eccles thinks his scheme will bring about inflation or whether it won't. The general public is puzzled.

* *

But bankers in principal cities are not puzzled. Eccles passed the word along to them privately a few weeks ago through reserve bank officials and later repeated part of his plan publicly. It runs about like this:

Bank deposits are the "real money" in this country. Actual cash money, which some of the inflationists in congress seek to expand, is merely "chicken feed." To make commodity prices go up and thereby reduce the burden of debts—public and private—the thing to do is to inflate bank deposits back to the levels of the boom period of the late 'twenties. Bank deposits are still nearly 20 billions below what they were in 1929. Bank deposits can be increased by increasing the government debt, because the money spent by the government goes right back into the banks in the form of additional deposits.

Therefore, the banks must lend more billions to the government by buying more billions of its bonds. If and when the commercial banks become saturated with government bonds the federal reserve banks must buy subsequent offerings. If the banks won't buy the bonds or won't buy enough of them then the government will simply print greenbacks, but the government debt must increase and the politicians must spend more and more billions until business becomes so active that confidence will return and permit the government to stop spending and let private business take up the slack.

* *

Even Eccles admits that when the bill for these billions upon billions is presented to the taxpayers it will have a chilling and deflationary effect, but his scheme is to postpone presenting the bill until this bootstrap prosperity is brought about, and then he figures that every one will be making so much money, that prices will be so high and that money will be so cheap that nobody will have trouble digging up a few depreciated dollars to pay the taxgatherer.

Such a scheme of deliberate inflation has never been tried before, but Eccles is willing to bet everybody else's money that it will work.

ALUMINUM CODE TRADE PRACTICE SECTION DROPPED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—The NRA today threw out the trade practice section of the aluminum code after finding it inadequate to protect small operators from monopoly.

The action, which was aimed at the Mellon controlled Aluminum Company of America, followed a refusal by the company to agree to code amendments which the NRA advocated as adequate to protect small companies outside of the aluminum trust.

Charges were made that the Mellon company controled the entire industry by selling aluminum ingots more cheaply to its subsidiaries than to independent fabricators. In an effort to check this alleged practice, a provision was put in the code specifying that sales to independents and subsidiaries must be at the same price.

New Zephyrs to Be Fastest Trains in U. S.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The twin Zephyrs of the Burlington road will travel the 431 miles on that line between Chicago and St. Paul in 390 minutes, or at an average speed of 66.2 miles an hour, making them the fastest trains on the continent, according to Albert Cotsworth Jr., passenger trafic manager, who announced that regular service will begin on Easter Sunday, April 21.

Because its route is shorter between the two cities, the North Western's "400" will have only to maintain an average speed of 63 miles an hour to cover the 390 miles between Chicago and St. Paul.

Mr. Cotsworth announced the northbound Zephyr will leave Chicago at 2 p. m., arriving in St. Paul at 8:30 and Minneapolis at 9 p. m. Southbound the Zephyr will leave Minneapolis at 12 noon and St. Paul at 12:30 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 7 p. m.

Plan Faster Time to East.

While officials of western railroads were preparing yesterday for the faster train speeds, a group of passenger department officers of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads will meet in New York today to discuss the arranging of schedules for the coming season which opens with the advent of daylight saving.

It is reported the running time between the two largest cities of the country will be cut as much as an hour on some trains. It is known that suggestions to reduce the running time of the Twentieth Century Limited and the Broadway Limited to 17 hours have been considered. These two trains now cover the distance in 17 hours 45 minutes.

Railroad officials said yesterday the tendency at conferences on train schedules is to whittle down running time wherever possible.

Follow The Tribune's Suggestion.

In announcing the schedule for the Zephyr service between Chicago and the Twin Cities, officials of the Burlington gave credit to THE TRIBUNE for its suggestion that the time of arrival and departure of the new fast trains of this road and of the North Western and Milwaukee be staggered. The Milwaukee road has not yet announced its plans for the fast train it will put into service between Chicago and the Twin Cities, but it is expected it will match the six and one-half hour time of the other two trains.

Mr. Cotsworth said a careful investigation was made to determine the wishes of residents of the Twin Cities and Chicago to determine the most satisfactory train times. In the Twin Cities the majority of those interviewed desired an early arrival in Chicago which would permit attendance at the theater and some taste of this city's night life. A majority of Chicagoans, however, wished to be able to delay departure to give them more time for business here.

The advent of the Zephyrs will not cause any reduction in the Burlington's train service between Chicago and the Twin Cities, it was stated.

UTILITY ELECTS BUSINESS MEN TO DIRECTORATE

The policy of placing representative business men on the board of directors of Northern Indiana Public Service company was inaugurated yesterday at the stockholders' annual meeting at Hammond, Ind. William M. Gissin, president of the Wayne company, Fort Wayne, and A. P. Colby, president of the Chicago and Calumet District Transit company and president of the Gary Railways company, were elected to the directorate.

James A. Kennedy and Guy M. Johnson were elected directors to serve until two other men, not employed by the company, are selected. Directors reëlected were John N. Shanahan, D. H. Mitchell, and Laurence K. Callahan.

Directors declared a dividend at half the stipulated rate on the various classes of preferred, payable April 15 to stock of record March 30. Similar dividends were paid Jan. 14.

RFC HEAD HAS DOUBT OLD DAWES BANK WILL PAY ALL OF BIG LOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Whether the old Dawes bank in Chicago will ever repay the full 90 million dollars which it borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation is a matter of doubt with Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman.

Besides making this admission today Mr. Jones conceded that the Public Utilities Securities corporation, utility holding company which the RFC now controls by virtue of its Dawes bank loan, is nothing but a worthless husk.

"I don't think I would like to predict about that," Jones said when asked by reporters if he thought the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company, now in receivership, would ever repay the entire 90 million dollars.

The bank has repaid 37½ million dollars to date, of which 4 millions has been applied to interest and the remaining 33½ millions to principal. The bank therefore has 56½ millions to repay.

Jones added that although the late Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, and George M. Reynolds, formerly of the Continental Illinois National bank, had both certified to the RFC that the Dawes loan was "fully and adequately" collateralized, they could not be held liable if the RFC comes out with a loss.

"I would like to give that away to you boys. I'm not fooling. I'd like to give it to you," Jones protested when asked about the Public Utilities Securities corporation.

This utility superholding company over which the RFC has taken control, because its entire common stock was part of the collateral which the Dawes bank gave the RFC, is virtually worthless, Jones inferred. The holding company was the key to the utility empire of Harley L. Clarke, which centered in St. Louis.

BRITISH POUND SAGS SLIGHTLY AGAINST DOLLAR

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—While the financial world today awaited the formation of a Belgian cabinet, upon which the economic policy of Belgium depends, foreign exchange dealers were cautious in their attitudes toward the gold bloc currencies.

In a dull exchange market here and abroad scattered offerings of sterling, with few takers, brought about a decline in the pound.

In New York the pound opened at $4.75⅝, off 1⅛ cents. Within a half hour of the opening sterling was up to $4.76½, but closed at $4.76⅛, off ⅝ cent from yesterday.

In the Paris market the dollar was quoted at 15.17½ francs [6.589 cents to the franc], but in the New York market the franc opened at 6.60¼, up ⅜. Soon afterward francs moved down to 6.59½, off ⅜, but later moved up to close at 6.59¾ cents.

The value of the dollar against francs at this price was $1.0054, compared with $1.0058 yesterday, while the gold value of the dollar, based on the old parity of the franc, was 59.38 cents, against 59.41 cents.

Guilders rose above the gold import point to close at 67.65 cents, up 2 points from yesterday. Belgas and Swiss francs remained below their import points at 23.30 cents, off 3 points, and 32.37, unchanged, respectively.

London gold was advanced 1 shilling 4½ pence to 146 shillings 10½ pence per fine ounce, equivalent to $34.97.

Gold Can't Bar Inflation, Says Dr. Kemmerer

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—The possession of a large gold reserve affords no guarantee against a serious inflation, Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, professor of economics at Princeton university, today told a distinguished assemblage of financial leaders at the Bankers club.

President Roosevelt's economic policy has been deliberately inflationary, he said, and the inflation virus administered is working "slowly but powerfully." The country is glutted with money and deposit currency, and this glut has for a long time been exercising a strong upward pressure on prices, he asserted.

Discusses Price Possibilities.

"If the value of gold remains where it was in February, 1933, and approximately where it is today, in the free gold markets of the world, the cost of living will have to rise by about 50 per cent above what it is today before the 'slack' represented by the reduction of 41 per cent in the gold content of our dollar has been completely taken up," Dr. Kemmerer said.

"If, however, as appears more likely, the value of gold depreciates to its 1926 level after the present crisis-stimulated and world-wide scramble for gold has subsided, then once the 'slack' represented by the reduction in the gold content of the dollar has been completely taken up the cost of living will be about 116 per cent higher than it is now."

Dr. Kemmerer said these estimates were made on the conservative assumption that there will be no further reduction in the gold content of the dollar and no uncontroled inflation.

View on National Debt.

Discussing the national debt, Kemmerer said the dangerous situation is not its alarming size so much as the rate at which it is growing and the fact that the forces that usually curb excessive government expenditure are at present comparatively ineffective.

"The usual antidote for extravagant government expenditures is heavy taxation and the resulting vigorous protests of the electorate against rising taxes," he said.

Kemmerer said the drying up of commercial and industrial demands for bank loans was due to the lack of confidence concerning the nation's immediate economic recovery created by reason of the many extremely radical measures considered in Washington.

Austria Admits U. S. Apples; One for Each 20 Persons

VIENNA, March 21.—(AP)—The American apple was destined after all today to find its place in an Austrian apple strudel. After a previous prohibition, the ministry of agriculture notified the American legation that 100,000 pounds of apples may be imported from the United States in 1935. It was calculated that this quantity is enough to give one large American apple to every twenty Austrians.

PUBLIC SERVICE TO REDEEM TEN MILLION BONDS

Wisconsin Company Offers $7,000,000.

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois last night called for redemption May 1 the $10,681,500 outstanding first lien and refunding 6½ per cent series G bonds due July 1, 1937. At the same time, the Wisconsin Public Service corporation announced an issue of $7,000,000 first lien and refunding mortgage 5½ per cent bonds due in 1959. The latter is said to be the first important corporation bond offering since the gold clause decisions were handed down by the Supreme court last month.

No new issue is planned by Northern Illinois Public Service, as the management expects most of the series G bonds to be converted into series H bonds bearing the same interest but not due until 1952. The call price of the series G bonds is $101.50, and holders may obtain cash at the rate of $50 per $1,000 principal amount in conversion to the H series.

Offer Ends April 29.

The conversion offer always has been open, but will end on April 29. Interest on the G series will cease on May 1.

By removing the G series, the company will cut in two its requirements for retirement in 1937, as approximately $10,000,000 of 7 per cent debentures is due in that year. Because of the cash bonus in the conversion offer the company expects little call for cash in straight retirement of the G series.

The original issue of series G bonds in 1932 was $20,000,000. Since then, however, $5,421,500 have been converted into the H series and about $3,897,000 have been reacquired and canceled through operation of the sinking fund, market fund, and previous redemption calls.

Latest earnings statements of the company show gross of $6,382,547 during January and February, compared with $6,244,068 for the first two months of 1934. Net earnings for the two months were substantially the same in both 1934 and 1935 despite the rate reduction that went into effect June 1, 1934.

Issue Priced at 95½.

The Wisconsin Public Service offering is priced at 95½ and accrued interest to yield about 5.85 per cent. It is secured by direct mortgage on all fixed property subject only to $5,990,000 bonds on part of the property.

Properties of the company are carried at $49,063,761 against which total bonds to be outstanding amount to $24,220,000. The system serves 224 communities in Wisconsin with electricity, gas, railway, or bus facilities. For the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1934, total electrical output was 257,854,890 kilowatt hours. Gross operating revenue was $6,945,156. Net income for ten months ended Oct. 31 last amounted to $559,068.

The new bonds are being offered by a group including the First Boston corporation, H. M. Byllesby & Co., W. C. Langley & Co., Edward B. Smith & Co., A. C. Allyn & Co., and Halsey, Stuart & Co.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to pay off $6,375,000 in bank loans made to meet obligations of the Wisconsin Valley Electric company, which was acquired in 1933; for retirement of other bank loans, notes and underlying bonds, and for working capital.

PERSONAL LOAN BANK DECLARES 50 CENTS EXTRA

Personal Loan and Savings bank yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents. A liquidating dividend of $1 was also declared on the Personal Home Mortgage company. All dividends are payable April 1 to stock of record on March 30.

Pacific Lighting corporation rated a quarterly dividend of 60 cents a share on the common, payable May 15, reducing the annual rate from $3 to $2.40. This is the first dividend cut since 1899.

Ford Motor company, Ltd., voted to pay a dividend of 5 per cent on the common stock for 1934. The payment was omitted on April 2, 1934.

Brands Utility Bill Industry's Death Decree

Washington, D. C., March 21.—(AP)—The Wheeler-Rayburn holding company abolition bill was pictured to the house interstate commerce committee today by a utility executive as a "penal" measure carrying the death sentence for privately operated utilities.

"One of the first things that strikes me is that this bill reads more like a penal statute than any regulatory law I ever saw," said Edmund W. Wakelee, vice president of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey. "I submit that when the penalty is death there should be much more exactness in defining the crimes charged and much more clearness as to whom the penalties are to apply."

Sees States' Powers Nullified.

Wakelee not only warned against what he foresaw as certain swallowing up of the states' regulatory powers over utilities, but flatly charged that the real reason behind the regulatory section was "the desire on the part of some to nationalize and socialize this industry."

"That accomplishment would spell the end of private ownership and also of state regulation," he declared. "It is apparent that if the federal government assumes the power of management over local companies the powers of the states to regulate public utilities within their borders will soon sink into insignificance.

"The practices complained of and stated as the reason for this bill cannot recur. If, after consideration, you determine some federal regulatory legislation is necessary, such legislation should not superimpose federal management on state regulation."

Foresees Doom of Industry.

"This bill," he declared, "regardless of its effect upon investors and customers, imposes the sentence of death upon the just and the unjust alike. Do you wonder investors are frightened and the whole business world is wondering what will come next?"

"There is no reason," he insisted, "for the dissolution of Public Service corporation, the holding company, or for the separation of its operating units. Neither is there any need to burden these operating companies with regulation from Washington.

"I submit that any companies which are unfortunate enough to come within the proposed provisions of title II. of the act will be regulated, controled, and managed from Washington by the federal power commission, and that state regulation will be a thing of the past, notwithstanding the expressions contained in this title to the effect that state jurisdiction shall also be retained."

FREE RAILS OR CONTROL TRUCKS, SAYS EASTMAN

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Railroads should have a freer hand in their management and operation unless congress directs that competing carriers such as motor transport systems are made the subject of regulation by the interstate commerce commission, Joseph B. Eastman federal transportation coördinator, and Former Judge Robert V. Fletcher, general counsel for the American Association of Railroads, today told the committee on commerce of the American Bar association meeting in the state chamber of commerce.

Eastman and Judge Fletcher agreed that the railroads were entitled to a relaxation of regulations if their competitors were not placed on the same regulatory lines.

Since the introduction of motor transportation, the federal coördinator said, an oversupply of transportation facilities has been developed, producing economic conditions which are satisfactory to no one.

He foresaw the possibility of motor transport companies, born on account of the depression, taking advantage of conditions to consolidate into a monopoly.

"It is better to start now to regulate such mergers before the damage is done," he said.

Smaller Federal Awards Cause Construction Drop

Smaller federal awards were the prime factor in the slackening volume of new engineering construction to $22,641,000 this week, compared with $27,721,000 last week, Engineering News Record said yesterday. Private work was about unchanged at $4,858,000.

HEAR NEW DEAL CHECKS DRIVE ON UTILITIES

Securities Spurt on Report of Change.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—Rumors that the New Deal may retreat from some of its more radical experiments in public ownership of utilities were rife here today.

The threat to build a federal power plant in New York City in competition with private utilities is understood to be definitly waning. Another report is that none of the 5 billion dollar work relief appropriation will be used to finance municipal power plants as was done under PWA.

On the strength of these reports utility stocks and bonds boomed in value in New York today after being battered down recently by the trend of New Deal action against utilities and especially against holding companies.

Securities Up 3 to 4 Points.

Second grade utility bonds spurted as much as 3 and 4 points up from their lows and maintained most of the gain, despite profit taking. Similar gains were scored by utility stocks, bringing the first relief to utility shareholders since the New Deal attack set in. Other stocks and bonds followed the utilities upward.

Both of the rumors which infused the healthy tone into the utility stocks and bonds met mixed receptions in official circles here. Official confirmation of each was impossible.

Reports that the federal government would abandon its most spectacular gesture against utilities by giving up the proposed federal power house in New York City, caused Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, sponsor of the plan, to arrange a hasty conference with President Roosevelt. At the conclusion of the conference the mayor denied that the plan was dead.

But Treasury Indicates "No."

A definitly contrary impression emanated from the treasury department, however. Without committing itself directly, the treasury, whose procurement and supply division was to build the New York power plant with PWA money, indicated that the project was fading out.

The offer which Consolidated Gas, dominant New York utility, made to the government following the threat to build a power plant probably will be accepted in the end, despite the protests or denials of Mayor La Guardia. The treasury apparently is willing to accept the reduced rates offered by Consolidated Gas if final details can be worked out.

The rates offered are understood to give the government a 35 per cent reduction in the cost of the power it uses for naval stations, offices, and other branches in New York City.

PWA Sticks to Guns.

Rumors that the government is giving up also its plan to finance municipally owned power plants out of the 5 billion dollar work relief bill met less encouraging comments. PWA officials, although pointing out that they did not yet have jurisdiction over the money, said their policy of financing municipal plants had not changed.

One PWA official accused Wall street of having started the rumor for its own ends. He insisted that PWA would never retreat from its plan of building municipal plants and distributing systems, especially in the Tennessee valley, where they are necessary to complete the TVA scheme.

As a key to the PWA attitude it was pointed out that PWA is continuing its court fight against the injunctions which Federal District Judge W. I. Grubb handed down in Birmingham, Ala., forbidding Alabama towns to use PWA money for municipal power plants. This decision, which will block both TVA and PWA power plans if it is upheld, is still being fought by PWA, it was emphasized.

RISE IN UTILITY STOCKS PUSHES WHOLE LIST UP

Hint Agreement Between New York and U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—Vigorous buying of public utility stocks on the strength of widely circulated but as yet unconfirmed reports that an agreement had been reached between administration leaders and New York City power and light companies reversed the trend of the entire stock market list in the last hour today, resulting in gains ranging from major fractions to three points.

The pickup in the power shares had a far-reaching effect. Sentiment all over the street improved and traders who had been on the sideline for many a session rushed into new commitments to catch the change in trend. Stocks which had been lower in the early dealings came up with the utilities and in the last hour the tape lagged several minutes behind transactions on the floor.

Utility Shares Soar.

Consolidated Gas, which has been the focal point of the city's attack on utility rates, was particularly strong. The common stock rose more than a point, while the closing gong found the preferred up 4 points. The largest gain in the list, however, was chalked up by Columbia Gas preferred B, which advanced 9¾ points. The preferred shot up 5 points and the common stock gained more than a point.

Other utility shares, including Public Service of New Jersey, United corporation, American Telephone, and North American, were up fractions to more than two points.

The day's turnover amounted to 889,615 shares. Going into the final hour only 420,000 shares had changed hands, the rest coming in the last hour. Demand covered a wide area.

Railroads Join Upswing.

The rails, which had been slovenly in performance earlier in the session, whirled upward under the leadership of Atchison, Union Pacific, and New York Central, after being held in the toils of rumors of receiverships.

United States Steel and other industrials threw off their sluggishness and took part in the advance. U. S. Steel preferred was up two points at the close, while Bethlehem was up $1.

Coca-Cola continued its leisurely advance, getting up to a new high.

The pivotals came in for a bit of attention in the general upswing. American Can staged a strong comeback to better its previous closing mark by more than a point. Du Pont also shot up in company with Westinghouse and General Electric.

SEC ASKS GUARDS AGAINST 'INSIDE' EXCHANGE RULE

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—The program of the New York Stock exchange to increase its governing board to forty-eight members by adding eight nonmember office partners is acceptable to the securities and exchange commission, but if the nominating committee system is to be continued effective safeguards must be erected against perpetuation of control by the "ins," according to a memorandum prepared by the commission and sent tonight by Chairman Kennedy to Richard Whitney, president of the exchange.

The sharpest point of controversy has been over the commission's recommendation that the nominating committee system be eliminated and candidates for the presidency and membership on the governing board named by petition.

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES UNCHANGED TO HIGHER

Production of butter during the last week showed a reduction contrary to the expectations of the trade and started a buying movement on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday which advanced the March delivery ¾ cent per pound to 29⅝ cents. Distant futures were unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Egg futures were unchanged to ⅛ cent per dozen higher.

According to the centralizer's report butter production last week showed a decline of 2.5 per cent from the preceding week and 9 per cent from a year ago. Short covering developed and disclosed a lack of pressure. Sales of butter were 57 cars and eggs 64 cars. Prices follow:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—Italian and German bonds were the outstanding weak spots in today's quiet market for no reason that could not have been applied with equal force to obligations of France and Great Britain.

The break in Italian 7s and Meridionale 7s carried them to new lows for the year. Rome 6½s, Milan 6½s, and Fiat 7s were weak. German Agricultural Bank 6s broke several points and sharp declines were registered in Reich 7s and Rhine Westphalia 6s. Belgian 7s were heavy and Argentines lacked their accustomed support.

Utilities Issues Rally.

A vigorous rally in utilities snapped the bond market out of its drowsiness in the final hour. Rumors that the federal government would use none of the relief funds called for in the bill now before congress to erect municipal power plants, and that New York City would abandon its recently announced intention to erect its own plants, circulated through the financial community, and almost immediately a buying rush was in full swing.

Treasury bonds found much better support and were able to improve slightly on yesterday's final prices. The new treasury 2⅞s were easily the most active issue on the list.

Have Selling Choice.

Holders of called Fourth Liberty 4¼s, who do not want a permanent investment in government bonds, are finding it more profitable to sell the amount of 2⅞ per cent bonds to which they're entitled to subscribe, than to sell the 4¼s themselves. To do this it is necessary for the holder to take a short position in the new bonds.

Milwaukee railroad bonds were freely offered and broke sharply to new lows. They were influenced first by a report that the directors at today's meeting would act on a capital readjustment plan, and later by adjournment of the meeting without anything being said about a plan.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on the financial standing of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. —W. W.

Answer: Goodyear Tire and Rubber company ranks as the largest producer of rubber goods in the world. Automobile tires and tubes account for the largest share of its output, representing 29 per cent of total domestic output during 1933. Sales of other rubber products supply a substantial source of income.

Most of its tire sales are for the more profitable replacement trade, although substantial sales of tires for original equipment and for Sears, Roebuck & Co., under exclusive contract, at a small margin of profit, are important factors in keeping overhead low. The sales arrangement with Sears-Roebuck is being attacked by the federal government on the ground that it violates the anti-trust laws.

The company has its own rubber and cotton plantations and coal mines. Low crude rubber prices have held the company's development plans for crude rubber production in abeyance.

The policy pursued by the company in its miscellaneous rubber goods division has been to concentrate on relatively few lines which permits large scale production in each. Some of them are rubber flooring, hose and mechanical goods, such as belting, rubber bands, etc.

The company has operated profitably in each of the last nine years except for 1932, when heavy writedowns of inventories brought operations under the profit line. The four year record of earnings follows:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Inc. per com.shr.
1934	$136,801,000	$4,554,000	*$0.48
1933	109,656,000	6,022,000	.47
1932	109,052,000	*850,000	*1.12
1931	159,200,000	5,454,000	.04

*Loss.

Current position at the close of 1934 was strong. Working capital of $96,709,000 compared with funded debt of $53,749,500.

There are outstanding 753,760 shares of cumulative $7 dividend no par preferred and 1,493,769 shares of no par common. On April 1, 1933, the preferred dividend was cut to $2 a year, and increased to $4 a year on April 2, 1934. Nothing has been paid on the common since Feb. 1, 1932.

U. S. TREASURY OFFERS TO SELL GOLD ABROAD

Regarded as Plan to Aid World Money Situation.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—The treasury is ready to consider applications of countries wishing to obtain gold from the United States, Secretary Morgenthau announced today in discussing the sale of 32,000 ounces of gold to Mexico yesterday.

The fact that the treasury was prepared to sell gold at the present statutory price of $35 to Mexico, and to other countries which, as they sell silver to the United States, might want to build up their gold reserves, was interpreted as an indication that there was no intention, for some time at least, to devalue the dollar further.

Is Gold-Silver "Swap"?

The Mexican transaction was in the nature of a "swap" of gold for silver which the United States has bought from the Mexican government, which desired the gold to strengthen its depleted monetary base.

If other countries want gold for a similar purpose, Morgenthau intimated, each application will be considered on its merits. Payment would be made either in silver or commodities where the necessary balances could be built up.

When asked if the procedure involved the theory of a restriction of part of the large gold stock of the United States, Morgenthau replied: "That's going a little too far."

No Applications Pending.

No other applications are pending, but in some quarters it is believed that, as the United States continues to purchase Mexican silver, that government may desire to make further purchases of gold. Practically all of the silver which has been leaving Mexico has come to this country.

Some speculation was stirred by the opening of the treasury gold store. Wall street saw the move as a gesture of willingness to coöperate in improving world monetary conditions.

The treasury is committed to a policy of increasing its silver stocks until they reach a point at which they are one-third of its gold reserves. It has been buying silver at home and abroad in quantities under that policy. However, the circumstances of foreign commerce, foreign trade balances, and foreign exchange levels have been such that the last year has seen such high imports of gold that little progress toward the 3-1 ratio has actually been made.

CHARGES LABOR BOARD FOSTERS LAWLESS REIGN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—James A. Emery, general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, told a senate committee today that the National Labor Relations board and its predecessor, the National Labor board, had perpetrated "a reign of lawlessness" which the Wagner labor disputes bill seeks to make permanent.

Emery's allegation of lawlessness came during an altercation with Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], author of the bill, when the latter said the labor relations board had no authority to enforce its decisions except in respect to elections, and even then the aggrieved party had recourse to court review.

"It enforces its decisions by extra-legal methods, by a reign of lawlessness," Emery replied. "It either takes away the manufacturer's certificate of compliance, which prohibits him from doing any business with the government, or it revokes the Blue Eagle, which exiles him from any commercial intercourse with his neighbors."

Milwaukee to Meet April 1 Payments, Says Scandrett

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, said after a board meeting today that the company would meet interest and equipment trust principal payments due on April 1. Asked whether the board considered a reorganization plan at the meeting, Scandrett said that no reorganization plan was under consideration. "What may be done in the future will depend on future events," Scandrett said.

Former Insull Official Files Bill in Bankruptcy

Charles W. Daniels, 5317 North Christiana avenue, former assistant secretary of Corporation Securities company, bankrupt Insull investment company, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. He listed liabilities of $21,536 and assets of $23,932. With the exception of $300, practically all of the latter consist of the face value of three insurance policies.

RAILS AWAIT RATE BOOST RULING BEFORE ADOPTING WAGE PLAN

New York, March 21.—[Special.]—Action by the railroads on a national wage policy will be delayed pending a decision by the interstate commerce commission on a petition by the managements for a general rate increase, it was said today. The railways asked for the rate increase to offset rising costs.

The anticipated return from the rate increases proposed by the railroads was $100,000,000, but, until the managements know how many, if any, of the increases will be granted by the commission, and, if granted, whether they may be applied without driving away traffic, they will not be able to estimate their revenues for the year. Without this knowledge, it was explained, determination of a wage policy must remain in abeyance.

H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, said: "The railroads can not ignore the effect of the completion of a restoration of a 10 per cent wage cut on April 1 under the agreement, no new wage action may be initiated before May 1."

Patrick H. Joyce, president of the Chicago Great Western, has set 10 per cent as the net saving in wages which the railroads need.

URGES PRIVATE BANKING FREED FROM POLITICS

The Illini Club of Chicago yesterday heard G. Prather Knapp, publishing director of Rand-McNally banking publications, declare for an American system of private banking free from political control. Taken as a whole, the system of private banking in the United States was sound and serviceable despite abuses, he said.

"Sound and uniform banking laws enacted by the federal and state governments, plus a strictly nonpolitical and nonpartisan body of trained bank examiners, could have prevented all the credit and banking abuses of the 1920s, and are all we need for the 1930s and for any future that human foresight now perceives," said Mr. Knapp.

"There were ulcer spots, and bad ones," he continued. "But to say that the whole system, which since the civil war has kept the United States credit the highest on earth, which financed the development of the west, the industrialization of the east, the prosperity of twentieth century America and the winning of the world war—to say that this body is or ever was cancerous, is downright misrepresentation.

"Such a statement puts the stigma of stupidity or bad faith on the President of the United States. It seeks to discredit his judgment and with it his leadership. To the extent to which such statements are believed, to that extent is recovery hindered."

RFC WILL STUDY REORGANIZATION OF MO. PACIFIC

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—The Reconstruction Finance corporation, in studying plans for reorganization of the Missouri Pacific railroad prepared by the Van Sweringen interests, will not pass judgment for some time and is prepared to hear arguments by any groups of security holders, Chairman Jones said today.

The corporation has not given its approval to any plan, he said, nor made any loan commitments. Jones said that he did not know the exact status of the proposals of the Van Sweringen interests at this time.

Possibly as much as $75,000,000 in new cash would be used, either by obtaining loans from the RFC or bankers or sales to the investing public. Jones said he did not know just how the Van Sweringens proposed to raise the money.

BANKER DIDN'T KNOW INSULL, BUT LOAN WAS MADE

New York, March 21.—(AP)—Louis F. Timmerman, vice president of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, testified today that he was uncertain whether he knew Samuel Insull in June, 1931, and that if he did know him he had "only a vague, remote idea" who he was.

Timmerman's testimony was before Federal Judge Julian W. Mack in the case of 23,000 debenture holders seeking recovery of $30,000,000 collateral held by five New York banks and the General Electrical company for loans advanced to Insull Utility Investments, Inc. The plaintifs claim restrictive covenants in the debentures were disregarded and their interests not safeguarded.

TREASURY DIPS INTO ITS GOLD 'PROFIT' FUNDS

Report of Reserve Shows $9,000,000 Used.

The United States treasury dipped into its devaluation "gold profit" account to the tune of $9,000,000 during the last week, it was indicated in the weekly banking statistics issued last night by the federal reserve system. The treasury deposited $13,000,000 of gold certificates with the reserve banks, but gold imports of only $4,000,000 were reported for the week.

The discrepancy in these figures indicates that the $9,000,000 represented deposits against the free gold which the treasury credited to itself when the dollar was devalued.

The treasury announced several days ago that 2 per cent government bonds, eligible as backing for national bank currency, would be redeemed out of the free gold fund. This operation has not been begun yet, but apparently the fund is being used for other purposes, perhaps in government bond market or in the foreign exchange market to stabilize the dollar.

National Banks Retiring Notes.

Evidence that national banks throughout the country are making haste to provide for the retirement of the national bank notes they have in circulation, in accordance with the treasury plan announced on March 10, was provided in the report. Member bank reserves balances on deposit with the federal reserve banks went down $217,000,000, while the cash and deposits to the credit of the treasury at the reserve banks rose $211,000,000.

The process of retiring national bank note circulation involves the payment to the treasury by the issuing national banks of funds to be used in redeeming the outstanding currency. This payment is made by having the reserve bank debit the accounts of the issuing national banks and credit the account of the treasury.

Demand Deposits Decline.

Demand deposits of the New York and Chicago member banks dropped sharply. Demand deposits have been rising along with reserve funds.

In Chicago bank demand deposits fell approximately 80 millions, while the New York banks lost about 176 millions in these balances. The total credit outstanding in both cities also contracted moderately. New York banks reduced their loans and investment by $63,000,000, which was accounted for principally by the decline in brokers' loans, which fell $69,000,000. Holdings of government bonds were $2,000,000 above the preceding week.

Commercial loans of the New York banks expanded $6,000,000. Chicago banks sold a total of $31,000,000 of government securities, but invested $4,000,000 in other securities. Loans to brokers here were $7,000,000 higher.

WHEAT HIGHER AS AAA ACTION HINTS SHORTAGE

Larger Acreage Regarded as Lesser Factor.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading in the grain pits on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday resumed a more normal appearance following the explosive activity which took place in the last hour of business Wednesday. Wheat added a fraction of a cent to its previous 2 cents a bushel advance but corn futures lost up to a cent a bushel.

The surprise announcement of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that the production curtailment program would be suspended this season as far as spring wheat is concerned would normally tend to depress prices on the prospect of larger supplies.

Fear Another Short Crop.

The announcement, however, signalized official recognition of the prospect that the country may experience another year of short production. It was this belated admission of the crop's uncertainty that governed the market's action yesterday and sustained prices.

The most amazing feature of the AAA's switch in policy was the news that the farmers will receive their benefit payments this year although they will be entitled to sow their full wheat acreage.

The market's action in the face of the prospective increase in wheat acreage was somewhat paradoxical. It was calculated, however, that suspension of the curtailment program will not boost acreage more than one to two million acres because of the short time which remains until the planting season.

The late futures in wheat advanced along with the May contract, an old crop delivery. July wheat was up ⅝ cent a bushel at the end of the day.

Closing Prices on May Futures.

Closing prices on the May futures, with comparative quotations, were as follows:

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Wk. Ago.
Wheat	$ .94⅛	$ .99¾	$ .92⅜
Corn	.78⅛	.78⅞	.80
Oats	.44	.43⅞	.46½
Rye	.55⅛	.55¼	.57¾

News from the winter wheat belt in the southwest yesterday said that the dust storms, evidence of the arid soil, had subsided in most sections. Light rain was reported in Oklahoma. Moisture was also received in northwest Texas, where it provided much needed relief for the crop.

The corn market was obscured by the interest in wheat. Corn prices, however, developed weakness independently of the rest of the market and all futures ended the day below Wednesday's quotations. July corn lost over a cent a bushel.

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES GAIN 12½ TO 17½ CENTS

Short covering in lard and commission house buying, induced by firmness in the hog market, disclosed a lack of pressure on the market yesterday, and prices advanced readily. There was some selling on the advance credited to hedging operations by cash interests but the finish was at net gains of 12½ to 17½ cents. Bellies were unchanged to 20 cents lower with the nearby futures showing the decline. Cash lard, loose, and leaf were quoted at $12.87 and bellies at $16.37 per 100 pounds. Prices follow:

HOGS ADVANCE SLIGHTLY WHEN RECEIPTS SAG

Hog prices staged a mild rally yesterday as receipts at the leading markets fell to new low volume. Prices moved up 5 to 10 cents here, but buying interest lagged, and it was evident that only the sharp curtailment of supplies rescued the market from another break. Reports from the wholesale pork trade gave the selling side no encouragement.

Only 34,000 hogs arrived at the eleven leading markets yesterday, as compared with 69,000 a year ago.

Packers paid up to $11.10 for selected 205 to 263 pound butchers, including the processing tax, and brought the bulk within a range of $10.75 to $11.05. The average for the session at $10.85, tax included, showed 5 cents gain over the previous day, but it was 95 cents under early last week.

Cattle sold on an erratic market. Best grades met fair action at prices strong to 15 cents higher, but others were neglected at barely steady rates.

Farmers are holding back their best steers because of the weak demand, and few sold over the $12.50 line yesterday. The bulk cashed at $8 to $12, with inferior grades yielding little beef selling down to $5 and less. The top was $14.20.

Lambs fell 25 to 40 cents under pressure of a heavier run. Shippers bought a few lambs up to $8.25, while packers obtained the bulk of desirable fat stock at $8 and less, paying up to $8.15 sparingly.
